Construction of Black River Flood Control Dam
Bids Close August 11, 1983
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
Advertisement for Bids

RECEIPT OF PROPOSALS. The Board of Managers of Red Lake Watershed District will receive bids at the office of the Red Lake Watershed District, 309 Labree Avenue North, Thief River Falls, Minnesota until 1:30 p.m. on August 11, 1983 for the Construction of Black River Flood Control Dam in Red Lake County.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION. The Black River Flood Control Dam is a zoned earthfill structure located on the Black River in Section 35 of Wylie Township in Red Lake County. The dam embankment will be approximately 1000 feet long with a maximum height of 39 feet. The concrete principal spillway will consist of a 42-foot weir controlling the permanent pool with two 8x14 foot slide gates and a concrete secondary tower spillway controlling the flood flows. The conduit through the dam will be a 12x12 foot retangular conduit.

The estimated quantities of major items are:

Core Trench Excavation, 4,700 Cu. Yds.; Embankment Material, 145,600 Cu. Yds.; Concrete 4000 psi, 1,300 Cu. Yds. and Rock Rip Rap, 330 Cu. Yds.

BID CONTENT. Bids will be received for the entire work as one job. Bid forms are furnished with the specifications and all bids will be submitted in a sealed envelope marked: Bids for Construction of Black River Flood Control Dam; and accompanied by a certified check or bidder's bond for not less than 10 per cent of the amount of the bid as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract and furnish bond as required by law.

BID OPENING. Proposals will be publicly opened and read at 1:30 o'clock p.m. on the 11th day of August, 1983, at the office of the Red Lake Watershed District, at 309 LaBree Avenue North, Thief River Falls, Minnesota. The job will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, subject to the requirement that he furnish both a surety bond and a performance bond to the District each in the amount of 100 per cent of the contract price. The District reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to make the award in the best interest of the District.

OBTAINING CONTRACT DOCUMENTS. Plans and specifications are on file and can be obtained at the Watershed District office at Thief River Falls, address above. A $50.00 DEPOSIT IS REQUIRED FOR PLAN AND SPECIFICATION SETS. THE DESPOIT WILL BE REFUNDED TO THE LOW RESPONSIVE BIDDER AND TO ALL OTHERS IF THE PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS ARE RETURNED IN GOOD CONDITION.

New Law Gives Relief To Farm Mortgage Payers

For many hardpressed Minnesota farmers currently facing foreclosing proceedings on their property, the 1983 state legislature has brought some potential relief, according to the office of Minnesota attorney general.

Enacted May 24, 1983, the new law effectively places a moratorium on certain foreclosures for periods of up to a year for those eligible farmers who choose to use it.

The new statute, generally referred to as a mortgage moratorium law, is something of a resurrection of the mortgage moratorium legislation of the 1930s. But the concept should not be misconstrued or equated too closely with those old laws. The new law does not call for an across-the-board suspension of foreclosure proceedings. Rather, it provides farmers taking advantage of it with a judicial remedy which can temporarily halt foreclosure proceedings for up to only a year. It also provides for longer notice time periods for commencing mortgage foreclosure proceedings or for terminating contracts for deed.

The law narrowly defines what kinds of mortgages and contracts for deeds are eligible: the law applies to all first mortgages secured by homesteads and contracts for deed conveying homesteads which have been executed prior to May 24, 1983, and for which a foreclosure sale sale has not yet occurred.

The law does not apply to mortgages or contracts for deed executed after May 24, 1983, the attorney general's office said, nor does it apply to property which has already been sold at a foreclosure sale or for which a contract for deed has been terminated.

The law also does not apply to mortgages or contracts which are renewed or extended after May 24, 1983, which run for a period of more than a year.

And the law does not apply to mortgages or contracts if a second or subsequent mortgage is made against the property after May 24, 1983. So any farmer concerned with the status of his first mortgage or contract for deed should consult with his attorney and review his options before agreeing to an extension or restructuring of the original debt, and certainly before agreeing to the attachment of any additional liens on his property.

For farmers whose mortgage or contract qualifies, the new law provides substantial relief. For one thing, the statute defines a "homestead" as real estate, a portion of which, is entitled to receive homestead credit for tax purposes. This means that the moratorium is not just limited to foreclosures on land within the 80 acre homestead exemption for agricultural land, but can extend to an entire agricultural operation.

Moreover, because it is based on property tax classifications, the law extends its provisions to family farm corporations and cooperative associations, as well as to individual farmers.

It is important to understand that the law doesn't automatically halt a foreclosure proceeding. It requires a landowner who had received a notice of foreclosure or of contract termination, to petition the district court for an order postponing the sale. For agricultural land, the court may order a postponement of up to 12 months where a mortgage is involved and up to 90 days where a contract for deed is involved.

The petition must be filed before the date of sale or expiration of the contract for deed termination notice. But even this does not guarantee the postponement will be granted. The law sets forth various criteria the court may consider in deciding whether to grant a postponement. These include consideration of the landowner's financial situation and ability to continue payments.

It should also be understood that postponement does not mean a farmer's payments stop. Landowners will have to keep making payments in the amount and manner the court has determined is just and equitable based upon the rental or income value of the property.

The trade-off for a postponement is a reduction of the redemption period. The redemption period — one year for agricultural land — is reduced by an amount of time equal to the length of the postponement. However, a redemption period cannot be reduced to less than 30 days, and postponement times does not start to run until the day the court issues its order. In most cases — particularly those where foreclosure proceedings have already begun — a postponement under the new law, coupled with its extended notice requirements, can effectively stretch out the time period a landowner has to reinstate his obligations.

The act expires July 1, 1984, but any postponement granted before then continues until it expires by its own terms.

For further information, contact your local attorney or the Minnesota Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155; or the State Mortgage Hotline at (612) 297-4111.

Proposes Bill To Help Local Phone Service

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has co-sponsored legislation intended to prevent local telephone bills from growing rapidly in the near future.

The legislation (H.R. 3440) would preserve the practice of subsidizing local phone service with profits earned on long-distance calls.

"If this bill is not passed, low-income families and the elderly won't be able to afford telephones," Congressman Stangeland said. "This would be especially dangerous in rural areas, where a phone line to emergency services can be a life-or-death necessity."

In order to avoid anti-trust action last year, the American Telephone and Telegraph (AT&T) company agreed with the justice department to divide telephone services. Some companies will handle profitable "long-distance" service, others will provide local service.

Because the Federal Communications commission has not issued regulations to cover the new situation, local phone companies do not know how high they will have to raise local rates to replace revenues lost to the "long-distance" companies. Some local firms are estimating that monthly rates for local service could double or triple.

"That would deny phone service to many people who need it most," Congressman Stangeland said.

The Stangeland bill would create a "service fund" by adding a surcharge to the fees which "long-distance" companies must pay to use local phone exchanges. These funds would subsidize the charges of certain local telephone companies.

For local firms whose charges are over 115 per cent of the national average, the "service fund" would provide support if they deliver REA services or have fewer than 50,000 customers.

"A telephone is not a luxury item," Congressman Stangeland said. "Congress must act quickly to ensure that service is affordable for low-income families, the elderly and rural residents."

Roseau Teacher Finalist In State Event

Four men and four women, including Donald R. Miller of Roseau, have been selected as honor roll teachers in the search for 1983 Minnesota teacher of the year. Miller teaches the learning disabled in grades seven through 12.

The eight honor roll teachers came from 31 "teachers of excellence" who had previously been selected from 118 teacher of the year nominees from 112 school districts in Minnesota. Janet Shaw, home economics instructor at Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, had been among the 31 teachers of excellence.

Others on the honor roll include Loretta Mitchell, Brainerd; Joanne M. Clepper, Holdingford; John Wallin, Pequot Lakes; John Lee, St. Cloud; Sharon Euerle, St. James; Mary Sperley, Staples; and Donald Lagoon, White Bear Lake.

Host Home Is Sought For EF Students

Educational Foundation for Foreign Study is seeking local families to serve as hosts for a few carefully selected high school students from Europe and Japan, according to foundation president, Bill Harwood. Educational Foundation is a non-profit organization, officially designated by the United States information agency as an exchange visitor program.

The students are 16 to 18 years old and have been chosen for their command of English, good academic grades, character and maturity. All are covered by comprehensive medical and liability insurance and have spending money provided by their parents. The host family furnishes meals and housing and a caring, supportive environment.

The Educational Foundation program offers families an opportunity to share American Cultural and educational experiences with a young person from abroad and, at the same time, to learn about another culture and language.

Harwood indicated that a volunteer area representative provided by Educational Foundation will contact the host family and guest student on a regular basis to assure that everything is going smoothly.

Families interested in serving as hosts for the 1983-84 school year should contact: Mrs. Kathy Nickelson, 420 Ross Ave., Erskine, MN 56535, phone 1-(218) 687-5131. There is presently a boy from Finland looking for a host home in this area.

Crop Report Is More Optimistic

Hot, breezy weather gave fields a much-needed chance to dry out after the heavy rains of the fourth of July weekend, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. During the week, an average of four days were suitable for fieldwork.

Hay producers were busy finishing up with their much-delayed first-crop harvest. Some spoiled hay had to be chopped and blown back on the fields, while much of the hay eventually baled was of reduced quality; soft hayfields got rutted up by machinery in the wettest areas.

State topsoil moisture is rated three per cent short, 52 per cent adequate and 45 per cent surplus.

Weed problems continued to be severe where fields were too soft to cultivate or spray, or where weather caused poor herbicide activation. In the northwest district, excessive moisture and heat has led to potential insect problems. Hessian fly has appeared and the sunflower beetle infestation is reaching economic proportions. Fungal diseases also made their appearance under conditions very favorable to their spread.

Row crops generally benefited from the high temperatures. Small grains were pushed very quickly by the heat. Moisture already received should be adequate to see the early crops through to harvest in most of the growing areas; however, small grains are likely to undergo some heat stress unless the forecast for continued high temperatures does not materialize.

Field corn has been 82 per cent cultivated, compared with 95 per cent for the five-year average. Soybean cultivation at 73 per cent compares with the five-year average of 90 per cent. Corn height is 27 inches versus 29 inches last year and 36 inches for the five-year average. The tallest corn is generally in the central and west central districts where planting was completed earlier than elsewhere. Tasseling has just begun; one per cent is tasseling, compared with the five-year average of three per cent. Corn condition is rated five per cent poor, 46 per cent fair, 46 per cent good, and three per cent excellent. Soybean height of 10 inches equals the 1982 figure and compares with the five-year average of 12 inches. Soybeans are two per cent blooming versus 14 per cent for the five-year average. Condition of soybeans is rated five per cent poor, 52 per cent fair, 41 per cent good, and two per cent excellent.

Small grain heading has surpassed both 1982 and the five-year averages. Spring wheat is 87 per cent heading or past, compared with the five-year average of 76 per cent and only 68 per cent last year. Oats heading stands at 92 per cent versus 80 per cent a year ago and 83 per cent for the five-year average. Barley is 90 per cent heading compared with 69 per cent last year and 79 per cent a year ago. Ripening of small grain fields lags behind the five-year average but equals or surpasses 1982. Spring wheat is two per cent turning ripe versus one per cent last year and 10 per ccent for the five-year average. Oats are four per cent turning ripe, the same as a year ago, but behind the five-year average of 13 per cent. Barley is eight per cent turning ripe versus six per cent a year ago and 17 per cent for the five-year average.

Sunflowers are 79 per cent cultivated, compared with the five-year average of 91 per cent. Sunflower height of 15 inches compares with 11 inches last year and 20 inches for the five-year average. No sunflowers are blooming yet; the five-year average for this date is two per cent. Alfalfa hay first crop cutting is 87 per cent complete, compared with 96 per cent last year and 94 per cent for the five-year average.

FFA EXPERT

Todd Michels, 18, views his involvement with Future Farmers of America as a learning experience. "FFA taught me how to keep accurate records for my swine and crop enterprises," he said. "It also taught me leadership skills that I have been able to apply in other areas."

As part of his FFA activities, Michels owns and raises 40 sows, consisting of Hampshire and Yorkshire purebreds and crossbreds, on his family's 1,500-acre farm near Mankato. He also rents 17 acres from his father, on which he grows soybeans for a crop project.

Michels' FFA projects earned him the title of regional Star Farmer earlier this year. The award was based on the scope of his activities, knowledge of his projects, the accuracy of his records and leadership abilities.

Michels' expertise as a swine breeder was evident last year in FFA competition at the Minnesota State Fair. He exhibited the grand champion Hampshire female and the junior champion Hampshire female.

Michels graduated from Nicollet High School recently where, in addition to his FFA activities, he was senior class president and a member of several organizations, including the National Honor Society, basketball team, science club and chorus. He plans on attending the University of Minnesota to study animal science.

Michels' swine will be on display Aug. 25-28 during FFA livestock competition at the 1983 Minnesota State Fair. The '83 exposition runs Aug. 25 through Labor Day, Sept. 5.

4-H Fashions Judged During Revue Thursday

With temperatures hovering between 90 and 95 degrees Fahrenheit, and the relative humidity somewhere around the same figure, girls in the Pennington county 4-H program gathered at city auditorium on Thursday to compete in the annual 4-H fashion revue.

Having learned from past experience that having to model clothing designed for winter wear can be a trying experience under such conditions, organizers of the event made arrangements this year to have various classes of the competition moved to smaller rooms, including council chambers in the auditorium building, the meeting room at the Pennington county courthouse, and the Pennington county law enforcement center, where air conditioning was available.

To ensure impartiality, judges were brought from outside the area, and girls were identified by a number assigned at registration. Judging was conducted in three classes: beginners, intermediate and advanced. Clothing was judged first on construction, with judges examining the garments and questioning the girls to determine their knowledge of the materials and techniques used in making them. They were then required to model their garments before a panel of judges and their fellow competitors. Although the decision of the judges was considered final, the girls also filled out rating sheets on each other. Judging was based not only on the fit and construction of garments, but on the overall look of the outfit including accessories. Grooming, posture and selection of styles based on the individual's personality, size, body build and age were taken into account.

Although judges' decisions have been made, all outfits will be on display at the Pennington county fair, and announcement will not be made until that time. Winners will participate in a 4-H dress revue at the grandstand on Sunday, July 24, at 2 p.m. Representatives to compete at the state fair will also be announced at that time.

Nigerian Team Plans Visit To Wheat Area

Three-man Nigerian wheat millers team will be touring the spring wheat area July 18 to 21 as guests of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council and the North Dakota wheat commission.

According to Minnesota wheat council chairman, Ed Ross, of Fisher, the Nigerians are good customers for U.S. wheat, purchasing 43.7 million bushels during 1982-83 marketing year. This included 9.8 million bushels of hard red spring wheat, a significant increase over the 2.3 million bushels of spring wheat that Nigeria purchased the previous year.

Ross indicated that Nigeria is the largest commercial market in the West African region and has the potential to grow even larger due, in part, to a population growth rate of 3.3 per cent per year and also due to oil revenues. As a result, the Nigerians have indicated that they will be increasing their milling capacity. This increased flour production points to increased purchases of wheat in the future, Ross said.

During their visit, the team members will be shown the superior quality of spring wheat grown in the area, as well as future varieties that may eventually be their supply. Highlights of their tour include meetings with farmers at East Grand Forks and Stephen. They will also visit the North Dakota state mill and elevator in Grand Forks and the northern crops institute in Fargo. A tour of the University of Minnesota-Crookston experiment station has also been arranged.

Abuse, Neglect Team Operates In Marshall Co.

A child abuse and neglect team was developed in Marshall county in 1978 to aid welfare and law enforcement officials in carrying out Minnesota law, reminds Shari Swanson, social worker for the Marshall county welfare department.

The team continues to protect children and, in accord with action of the 1980 Minnesota legislature, has added vulnerable adults to its responsibilities, Swanson said.

The ten team members are: Laurie Christianson, social worker for the Marshall county welfare department; Dr. Allen Fannin, clinical psychologist in private practice in Karlstad; Ray Hunt, Marshall county sheriff's department; John Johnson, Warren high school counselor; Ron Leverington, Warren, elementary school principal; Deb Myrfield, Warren hospital; Ruth Nepper, early periodic screening and diagnosis department nurse; Muriel Roley, director of the Marshall county nursing service; Sheri Swanson, social worker for the Marshall county welfare department; and Michael Williams, assistant county attorney.

Purpose of the team is to coordinate prevention, identification, early intervention and treatment where children and vulnerable adults are in need of protection. Abuse refers to deliberate acts that harm or threaten to harm a person's physical or mental health or welfare. Acts may be physical, psychological or emotional, sexual or verbal.

Neglect means failure of the responsible adult to provide basic needs and care and may be education, medical, moral, physical and psychological or emotional.

Seven types of persons are required by law to report abuse or neglect. They are: (1) A professional or his designee engaged in healing arts as doctors, nurses, etc.; (2) social service personnel; (3) hospital administrators; (4) psychological or psychiatric personnel; (5) child care workers such as day care center, home start and head start; (6) educators; and (7) law enforcement. Failure of those mandated to report is a misdemeanor.

Protective services intend to look out for children and vulnerable adults and help parents remedy harmful conditions. It is not the purpose to punish or prosecute parents, ". . . though prosecution may occur if necessary."

Any person participating in good faith and exercising due care in the making of a report shall have immunity from any liability, civil or criminal, that may result. The name of the reporter shall be disclosed only (a) if the report is found to be unsubstantiated (untrue or false) or, (b) upon court order if the report is found to be true.

To report an abuse or neglect case phone Marshall county welfare department at Warren weekdays at 745-5124 or Marshall county sheriff's department evenings and weekends at 745-5411. Identify the child or vulnerable adult and describe injuries and circumstances. Follow with a written report as soon as possible to either the welfare of the sheriff's department.

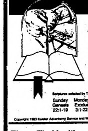
SHE SAILS PROUDLY



Good, basic material has gone into her construction. Her skipper is capable, courageous and confident. She is well equipped to handle treacherous storms.

Are you prepared when storm signals appear in your life? The answer may depend upon your own basic training and experience. If your life has been built on faith, a further gift will be that extra measure of courage . . . when the going gets rough.

Fortunately, our life can be rebuilt. Through regular worship we can find a new faith that will guide us to that safe destiny.

Strandquist

Mrs. Irene Larson, Strandquist
436-2690

Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. Lyland Erickson and Laurel Erickson from the cities spent the weekend at the Anne Bernhardson home. Eldred and Shirley Swanson also spent time visiting the relatives at Halma and Hallock.

Spending the weekend at Warroad were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Kleinwachter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Holmstrom. Saturday Gene attended the Barbara Berggren-Gary Lewis wedding at the St. Mary's Catholic church at Warroad. The Kleinwachter children, Kent and Hope spent the weekend at the Lloyd Larson home rural Thief River Falls.

Elsie and Ivon Kimbrough visited with Oscar Hageland Tuesday evening and with his house guests Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hagland who are here visiting from Alaska.

Thursday Adeline Stennes visited at Roy Stennes home in Thief River Falls. Gladys Lunde who has visited there returned to Strandquist with Adeline and returned Friday to her home at Stephen.

Jim Larson and Larry Johnson were home from Dakota for a brief stay this past weekend. They hope to move to Larimore soon so they will be nearer home.

Senior Citizens News

Thursday, July 14 there were 14 registered at our center. Marguerite Ellefson was an afternoon guest and Ingvald Rokke was a lunch guest.

Anne Holmstrom sewed up the ends on a baby quilt and most of the other ladies fluffed up Arctic scraps for bed pillows. What we fluffed up in one afternoon only makes enough filling for a pair or two of pillows. That's why we must continue at it, in order to get a few pairs made up, but it's a good job as one can talk and visit and not have to concentrate on what you are doing that much, still the work goes on.

Elsie Kimbrough gave a door prize that Anne Holmstrom won.

We prayed the table grace before lunch. Elsie served a delicious lunch.

Its getting to the end of the month again, so remember to bring some prizes if we play games on our fun day.

The ABC's Of Allergy Relief

Air-condition your home.

Bathroom mold and mildew can cause allergy symptoms. Scrub sinks and fixtures regularly.

Cats and dogs can cause runny eyes and sneezing. Avoid pets, or restrict them to certain areas of your house.

Damp-mop hard surface floors at least once a week.

Enclose your fireplace. Stay away from smoke and fumes, and don't store wood indoors.

Fluff-dry drapes and small rugs in your dryer to keep them dust-free.

Go see your allergist regularly — on schedule.

High-efficiency, Research Products Space Gard®, non-electronic, ozone-free air cleaners, can remove up to 99% of airborne contaminants from circulation. Have one installed on your furnace.

Invest in an efficient kitchen exhaust fan.

Junior's fabric toys can trap dust and other irritants — stay away from them, keep them clean.

Keep emergency medication handy but out of reach of small children.

Leave trees and plants alone during allergy season.

Mattresses should be vacuumed weekly.

Notify school nurse and teacher of children's allergies and symptoms. Provide emergency phone numbers if your child has a serious problem.

Outdoor activities should be minimized during allergy season. Stay indoors in a conditioned area whenever possible.

Pillows and other bedding should be non-allergenic synthetic fibers.

Quit smoking — it's needless extra irritation for eyes, nose, throat, and lungs.

Replace or clean air cleaner, air conditioner, and furnace filters as needed.

Stay away from odorous chemicals and heavy perfumes. Avoid industrial areas and high-traffic areas, too.

Tile your kitchen and bathroom floors — rugs trap allergens.

Use wood or vinyl furnishings rather than those with heavy upholstery fabrics.

Vacuum your whole house every week.

Windows and doors should be shut and sealed tight.

Xtra care is needed during summer months.

Year-round attention is important to allergy relief.

Zip right through the allergy season with symptom relief, using common sense and these preventive tips.

Dissatisfaction Guaranteed

Manner in which the judicial system disposed of the case of confessed double murderer Roger Caldwell a week or so ago was guaranteed to cause a groundswell of dissatisfaction throughout the state. The only people who apparently were satisfied in granting Caldwell his freedom after five years in prison were Caldwell and the legal profession involved in the bargain.

Caldwell was found guilty of killing two Duluth women in a celebrated murder case involving an aged Duluth heiress and her nurse in a Duluth mansion. Elisabeth Congdon was smothered with a pillow and her nurse, Velma Pietila, was beaten to death with a candleholder. His wife was acquitted of involvement in the crime.

Minnesota supreme court reversed his conviction and ordered a new trial because evidence disallowed at the wife's trial assisted in conviction at Caldwell's own trial. The bargain made by defendant, prosecutor and judge was to exchange freedom for a plea of guilty. A double killer convicted and sentenced to two life terms in prison was thus freed in slightly more than five years.

The first trial took several months and cost approximately $250,000. St. Louis county attorney Alan Mitchell who was a party to the plea bargain said, "The principal reason was to have the matter resolved to the point where the community knows that the person who committed the crime has been apprehended and has pleaded guilty."

Nonsense! The object isn't to give good grades to the law enforcement and investigative authorities for capturing the right person. The object is to assure that wrongdoers are penalized for their crimes and that those who pose a threat to others are not permitted to cause them harm.

An editorial in the Mankato Free Press summed the situation up well. "We can understand that St. Louis county would not want to prosecute Caldwell again," the editorial states. "The first trial took three months and cost $250,000. But this plea bargain makes a mockery of the Congdon murders. Justice never comes cheap. In this deal, it didn't come at all."

Even the Minneapolis Star and Tribune editorial writers admit that "something went terribly wrong with Minnesota's criminal justice system in the case of Roger Caldwell."

"Maybe the trade-off was the most practical way to settle the matter," the Star and Tribune editorial stated. "But practicality is not the equivalent of justice. The settlement strikes us as outrageous."

And the St. Paul Pioneer Press notes that "while it is good to be assured that the crime has been solved and the jury that convicted Caldwell was correct, the settlement agreed to by the St. Louis county attorney's office puts a very low price on human life."

Never should a person who takes two human lives in such a cold and brutal manner be set free in so short a time. By no stretch of the imagination can such a bargain be considered justice.

South Dakota's Secret

Following was written by Mark W. Beito in the Sleepy Eye Herald:

We received a copy of the Balaton-Russell Press-Tribune-Record the other day. The editor, Lou Gellerman, is asking South Dakota Governor Bill Janklow to consider annexing the eight counties in southwestern Minnesota to the State of South Dakota. Gellerman promises that South Dakota will get "about 200,000 more hardworking people, a lot of good rich Minnesota farm land and some good businesses — that so far haven't moved out."

Gellerman says Minnesota is "turning into a socialistic, high-taxes, "let's drive business out" kind of state.

Gellerman made some good points, although he can usually see a socialist or Communist behind every tree. When times aren't so rosy, like now, it's hard to criticize a business owner who decides he can make more money if he moves his business out of Minnesota. In some cases, the differences are significant.

I wonder, though, what the people who live in those eight Minnesota counties would have to give up if they were to suddenly become part of South Dakota. What with all the hoopla in the past few months about how South Dakota is luring away Minnesota businesses, I've gotten the idea that the state is some kind of wonderful place where they have discovered how to have their cake and eat it, too. It sounds too good to be true, and one thing I've learned is that if something is too good to be true, it usually is.

Would it be too much to suggest that perhaps some of our legislators might check into what South Dakota's secret is? If we Minnesotans have to be burdened down with taxes, we might get some small consolation if we knew what we are getting for our taxes that our neighbors in South Dakota are doing without.

EPA Promises

Following editorial is from the Sacramento (CA) Bee:

As William Ruckelshaus warned in his first major policy address since taking over Environmental Protection Agency, "We are now in a troubled and emotional period for pollution control." Scientists, the public and the nation's policymakers have reached a particular awkward stage: Their ability to detect health risks in the environment is far more advanced than their ability to reduce or even evaluate these risks. It is a stage inherently conducive to public fear and mistrust, and that tendency was only aggravated by two years of Reagan administration support for the scandal-ridden and environmentally negligent regime of Ruckelshaus' predecessor at the EPA, Anne Burford.

Ruckelshaus, as he acknowledged in his speech to the National Academy of Sciences, has his work cut out for him. But there are already signs he may succeed. For one thing, he has not underestimated the complexity of environmental policymaking. Nor did he try, in his speech, to turn the nation's unresolved questions about the costs and benefits of pollution control into an excuse for government inaction, as others in the Reagan administration have done. Just because there are other "societal goals" to be weighed against the goal of protecting the public from risks, he said, does not mean that federal air or water quality goals must be lowered or that the public's health concerns should be belittled.

The speech was a notice of Ruckelshaus' intention to solve problems, rather than use them as springboards for scoring ideological points. And that attitude in itself could do much to improve the EPA's regulatory activities and the public's faith in them.

Ruckelshaus' first major policy decision reflected the same sensibility. The other day, he undid months of unnecessary fear and deceptive politicking by simply rescinding Burford's plan to impose economic sanctions on 213 counties in 17 states that, despite their best efforts, have not yet met federal air quality standards.

In an attempt to scare Congress into amending — and seriously weakening — the Clean Air Act, Burford had claimed that the act gave her no choice but to punish the 213 counties. But Ruckelshaus, eschewing her ulterior pruposes was able to interpret the law more rationally. Economic sanctions, he announced, are required when a community has failed to enact reasonable pollution control measures; they should not be imposed on the county that is doing all it reasonably can to achieve the clean air goals set by law.

Where Burford was hoping to force a choice between economic well-being and clean air, Ruckelshaus is attempting to accommodate both. It's an approach aimed at making pollution control work, rather than at making it fail. And while that seems little enough to ask of an EPA head, it's more than the Reagan administration has offered before.

It's too early to guess if Ruckelshaus will succeed in creating the consistent environmental policy for this administration that he told the National Academy of Sciences he is aiming for: a policy that is economically reasonable and scientifically valid and that engenders the trust of the public. But the first steps he has taken are certainly in the right direction.

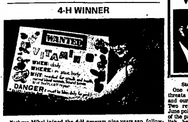
Borrowed Nonsense:

The cleaning lady was impressing on her friends her prowess at polishing floors. "When I started to work at the bank the floors were in bad shape," she said. "But since I been doin' them," she said with pride in her voice, "at least three ladies has fell down."

"I can't let you change a death certificate," the clerk told the doctor. "That would be highly irregular."

"You don't understand," the doctor replied. "They changed the forms this year and I signed my name in the blank that says, 'cause of death'."

4-H WINNER



Kathryn Mikel joined the 4-H program nine years ago, following her mother and older sister into the organization. The 17-year-old South St. Paul resident said "Four-H gives me a chance to meet a lot of different people who like some of the same things I do, but also have different interests, too."

Mikel is a member of the Kaposia Kids 4-H Club and is a past president of the group. She also is involved in 4-H at the county level and recently completed a one-year term on the Dakota County 4-H executive board.

Last year, Mikel entered projects in several 4-H categories at the Dakota County Fair. She won 17 awards for her work including championship honors for a food education poster on Vitamin C, reserve championship ribbons for photography and flower gardening exhibits and four awards for general excellence.

By winning a championship at the county fair level, Mikel and her poster were automatically eligible for 4-H competition at the '82 Minnesota State Fair, where she earned another championship ribbon.

Mikel plans to prepare several 4-H projects for the Dakota County Fair this summer. If she succeeds at the county fair level, Kathryn will once again advance to 4-H competition at the Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 25 through Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Stopping Acid Rain

One of the most serious threats to our environment and our health is acid rain. Two reports issued in late June point out the seriousness of the problem and the direct link between sulfur-dioxide and nitrogen-oxide emissions and acid rain.

The reports — one by a special White House panel of experts and the other by the National Academy of Sciences — makes it clear that something must be done to control acid rain.

Acid rain is not just a problem in the industrial belt of the northeastern United States. The Minnesota Pollution Control Agency estimates that acid rain falling in northern Minnesota lakes could cost communities in and around the Boundary Waters Canoe Area about $40 million a year in lost tourism revenue.

Fortunately, Minnesotans long ago recognized the potential disaster of acid rain and began to do something about the problem. Minnesotans have invested millions of dollars in technology to keep our air clean.

Citizens in other states, however, have not been as aggressive in fighting acid rain. The result is that pollutants from utilities and factories in other states are carried in the atmosphere and fall as acid rain in Minnesota.

A national solution is needed. Congress must find a clean-up plan that is fair, affordable, effective and we must start now. We don't have time to waste.

One key is fairness. Some of the legislative proposals we've been hearing about are not so fair, especially to Minnesotans.

For example, under a proposal introduced by Senator John Glenn of Ohio, a tax would be imposed on electricity consumption. The average consumer would pay an extra $1.50 per month. The money would be held in a special fund until enough is collected to buy pollution control equipment for power plants across the country. His plan would tax consumers in the 31 states bordering or east of the Mississippi River including Minnesota.

Minnesota Congressman Gerry Sikorski has offered a variation of the Glenn plan. Sikorski would tax electricity consumption at a lower rate, but would apply the tax to consumers in every state of the nation.

There are several problems with a tax on electricity consumption. First, it treats all people equally. That may sound fair until you remember that Minnesotans already have paid a steep price for clean air — a price that hasn't yet been paid by Ohioans or residents of many other states. It isn't fair to ignore the expensive contributions we have made already.

Second, under the plans offered the revenue from the tax would be collected in a special fund. It would take six to 10 years for enough money to accummulate to purchase the kind of technology that would have any impact on cleaning our air.

Finally, a tax on electricity consumption ignores the fact that about one-third of our acid rain is caused by nitrogen-oxide emissions from cars, refineries, smelters and other sources.

A better solution is to put the tax directly on the polluting emissions. In other words, tax the source, not the victims. An emission tax recognizes the gains already made in states like Minnesota. Since our polluting emissions already have been reduced, our tax would be lower.

An emission tax also has an immediate incentive to clean the air. Remember what happened when energy prices began to rise rapidly in the 1970s. People conserved and found alternatives. The same would happen with an emissions tax. Polluters would have an immediate incentive to invest in new techology to clean the air. The lower their emissions, the lower would be their tax.

In addition, an emissions tax would help reduce all the pollution that is causing acid rain, not just the sulfur-dioxide from utilities.

We need to continue working on solutions and debating the fairness of them. We have to move quickly, however, because acid rain is a very serious threat to our most precious resources.

Most people will be willing to share the cost of cleaning up the environment if they knew the tax was fair and well-designed. An emissions tax is just such a plan.

Technology In Our Lives

THE ELECTRONIC REVOLUTION

In the '50s and '60s, TV watching became a way of life in America. In the '80s, you may be able to do much more than just watch.

Though most Americans realize how profoundly their lives are affected by all types of electronic products ...few realize that the consumer electronics industry is actually still in its infancy.

Consider this: the AM radio — the technological grandparent of all electronics products — wasn't commercially available until 1920. FM radio broadcasts didn't begin until 1941, and stereo FM wasn't a reality until 1961. Color TV and the transistor radio made their debut in the '50s. Products that premiered in the '70s included pocket calculators, projection TV, home computers, TV and hand-held electronic games, videotape recorders, pocket language translators and electronic telephones.

What's next?

The decade of the '80s promises still more advances in video as well as audio. Experiments now underway could bring direct-to-home satellite transmission — a virtually unlimited number of TV channels available, beamed directly from satellite to antenna. Experts at the Electronic Industries Association report that systems such as the "Qube" now being tested in some parts of the country can tie in TV set and electronic keyboard into a centralized data bank, making it possible to ask and have questions answered directly from home. Not too many years from now, the television set will likely become a home video terminal, tying together entertainment, information and communications.

To build and service all these new products many skilled technicians are going to be needed, a fact not lost on many of today's workers who are preparing themselves to enter the exciting field of consumer electronics. An interesting free booklet on careers in consumer electronics is available by writing to: Electronic Industries Association, Consumer Electronics Group, Dept. N, 2001 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

FACTS & FIGURES

Using the sun's energy to heat water can reduce fuel bills by 50 percent. Small wonder Americans are warming up to a do-it-yourself modular solar water heater that can be installed in a few hours, and costs one-third the price of more complicated systems.

The Hansolar T(H20) system pumps cold water into roof or wall mounted collectors. When the water is hot, it returns to a storage tank and the process begins all over again. During the day, four gallons of hot water are always ready to use. An additional 28 gallons of solar heated water are on hand to replenish the 4 gallon supply. If more hot water is needed, the home's existing water heater takes over automatically.

The single pipe design reduces heat loss, and automatically drains itself each night to prevent winter freezing. For free information about the system, write Hanson Energy Products, Box G, River Road, Newcastle, Maine 04553.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Can you imagine two young men in their early 20's actually believing that they could compete with IBM, the computer giant? Well, still under 30, they have built Apple Computer into a company with almost $600 million in sales, $360 million in assets, and about $2 billion in market value, with more than $80 million in profits last year.

If you own a personal home computer, you have heard of Microsoft, the company that makes software (the systems that make the equipment work) for small computers. A 27-year-old college drop-out, Bill Gates, started this company, supplying software for about half of the small computers, with sales probably moving up to $100 million next year. The company is so profitable that it does not borrow money and it has no plans for going public.

There is a point to be made. Big business does not provide new jobs. Big business does not innovate. Big business does not know how to be truly creative. Big business has a tendency to get involved with entrepreneurs, people who start things, take risks, make quick decisions, and achieve big results that create new jobs and new opportunities.

Big business' involvement usually cuts the heart out of the entrepreneur with reports, meetings, rules, regulations and procedures, so that the entrepreneur loses interest and finally gives up in captivity.

I have watched perfectly good new businesses develop and grow into successes, and then sell out to the "big guys" for security and financing. I have also watched the controllers and regulators, paper shufflers and others step in and kill that success with stupid rules. For example, I saw specific rules defining the size of each officer's office area, quality of carpeting, brand of car provided for each officer and management level, and the like. I even saw a rule that told you how to figure out whether someone is dead on the job.

If we are to solve our unemployment problems, and start creating new jobs and new business opportunities, we need more new and small businesses starting up. While in Washington, I spoke with the first administrator of the Small Business Administration and other small business experts. They said:

(1) This is the best time to start a new business if you have a good idea and are willing to work with it, and make it succeed.

(2) If you need assistance in starting a new business, beyond the Small Business administration, with its offices from coast to coast. You will find that banks, consultants, accounting firms, lawyers, engineers, small business investment corporations, venture capital companies and investment bankers are sources of help. Universities and colleges should be a good place to get assistance.

(3) Our nation has a well developed distrubution system, with wholesalers and retailers always looking for new products to sell. If you have a good product idea, getting it out to the public is not as hard to do as it may appear at first glance.

(4) While many people will repeat to you, as I have done, than 7 to 8 out of every ten new firm startups ends in failure within the first year or two of business, most of these failures are the result of a lack of management talent and training, a lack of interest and an unwillingness to put in the hours and do the work. The bankruptcy laws and other government programs are all biased toward helping the new entrepreneur succeed.

(5) In starting a new business, you are not taking a big risk because you probably can go back to your old job or start over again.

(6) There are significant financial and personal rewards in having a successful business of your own.

Despite the serious economic troubles that we have been experiencing in the United States, it is estimated that we have about six million proprietorships, 450,000 partnerships, and 1,200,000 corporations, all non-agricultural businesses, plus two and one-half million farms. That is a lot of businesses.

Our problem is that with a growing population, particularly in the older age groups (where I am and hope to be for some time to come!), we need more new enterprises, and we have to properly encourage the creation of more new companies and businesses with good ideas for new and better products and services, operated by dedicated managers willing to work hard. This is the way to get solid progress toward more jobs and improved productivity.

Where is it written that we should expect a world that gives us either a "free" ride or everything we need and want at a "discount?" A look at nature in the raw reveals that the industrious survive. . . the others don't. That should give us more than a hint of what we need to do to survive and prosper.

That's Straight Talk!

O.R. Council Met

Oak Ridge Council met at the church Thursday evening. Members present besides Pastor Moberg, were Irwin Aaseby, Leonard Waswick, Evonne Moe, Marvin Moen, Eldon Moe, Don Dyrdal, Gary Page and LuAnn Lewis. Main items of business included leasing a small acreage across the road to the south to be used for recreational activities for the youth; examination of the "Search" series of Bible studies; a reminder that the Luther League is still collecting empty pop cans, for which there is a box in the furnace room and concern over a shortage of 48 folding chairs. If anyone has borrowed chairs for family gatherings, etc., and forgotten to return them, please do so. Borrowers are also asked to replace them around the tables, or as they were found, as it can be quite a job for a food committee to arrive a half-hour before serving and have to distribute a stack of chairs. Borrowers are also reminded to leave a note in the kitchen for the amount of chairs or anything else borrowed, so that items may be located at a moment's notice if needed. The council thanks the congregation for their cooperation in this matter. A request was also brought by the ALCW to the building and grounds director, Marvin Moen, to purchase combination fans and lights in the church, which the ALCW will pay for. Motion was passed to go ahead with this project.

Frozen Macadamia Mousse Sumptuous Summer Sweet

Can you believe that the elegant looking dessert above is an absolute cinch to make? Basically all you need is a couple of egg whites, confectioners sugar, some flavoring and heavy cream. What gives the mousse its pizazz, however, is adding a half-cup of sumptuous macadamia nuts from Hawaii. Their taste and texture give the mousse a special magic.

EASY FROZEN MACADAMIA MOUSSE

2 egg whites
1/2 cup confectioners sugar, divided
2 cups heavy cream
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon rum flavoring
3/4 cup chopped macadamia nuts, divided

Beat egg whites with 1/4 cup of the sugar until stiff; set aside. In a chilled bowl with chilled beater blades beat cream with orange peel, rum flavoring and remaining 1/4 cup confectioners sugar until stiff; fold in 1/3 cup of the macadamia nuts and reserved egg whites. Pour into a 1-quart mold; cover. Freeze until firm. Dip mold in warm water and unmold onto serving platter. Return to freezer until firm. Sprinkle with reserved macadamia nuts. Garnish with strawberries and pineapple chunks, if desired.

YIELD: 6 to 8 portions

More Than a Salad Dressing!

- Add to tuna or chicken salad for a delightful taste difference!
- Marinate pork chops before broiling.
- Pour over pear or peach half stuffed with cottage cheese.
- Use to top an arrangement of grapefruit and avocado slices on a bed of lettuce.
- Mix with horseradish and use as a topping for crackers spread with cream cheese.

Tiny Animals Inhabit Beaches

by Madeleine Jacobs
Smithsonian News Service

If you're heading to the beach this summer, be sure to watch out for sunburn, sand flies, sharks, water bears and mud dragons.

Water bears? Mud dragons? Well, to be perfectly honest, these critters won't hurt you. And you can't really "watch out" for them because you can't see them, even though they're everywhere — in fact, right beneath your very feet.

"There's a whole other world of animals living just a fraction of an inch beneath your feet — all kinds of creatures inhabiting the spaces between the grains of sand," says Dr. Robert P. Higgins, a zoologist at the Smithsonian's national museum of natural history, who specializes in these microscopic denizens of the sand. "Why, in just a few handfuls of sand, there are millions of them!"

There are, for instance, water bears, more properly known as tardigrades, and mud dragons, Higgins' affectionate name for animals known as kinorhynchs (rhymes with rinky-dinks). And there are worms — nematodes and polychaetes (rhymes with beats) — as well as miniature crustaceans and animals with the tongue-tying name of gastrotrich (rhymes with stick). It's a world where very small is beautiful, where an animal the size of a pinhead would be a giant indeed.

Until the 1920s, scientists knew almost nothing about the curious animal world living in the water that fills the spaces between grains of sediment and sand in the world's oceans, seas and beaches.

"That's not really so surprising," Higgins says, "since the average inhabitant there is only one-hundredth of an inch in length, almost impossible to see without a microscope. Many of my colleagues accuse me of working with mythological beasts."

Collecting and studying these sand-dwelling creatures is a challenge worthy of a mythological hero. In addition to their tiny size, the creatures are exceptionally well adapted to their environments and are not particularly willing to leave their cozy homes.

Most of them have a distinctive method of attaching themselves to the hard surfaces of the sand. Gastrotrichs, which resemble slightly flattened worms, are loaded with adhesive organs that can quickly secrete a sticky substance for clinging and just as quickly secrete a solvent to release the animal.

Tenacious tardigrades have either spoon-shaped adhesive toes or complex claws for grasping. Armed with their four pairs of short, stubby legs, the clawed varieties of tardigrades look very much indeed like minature bears when viewed in profile. Kinorhynchs also have pairs of adhesive organs on the underside of their cylindrically shaped bodies, just below their "tassel"-shaped heads.

Higgins has collected water bears and mud dragons in beaches and ocean floors all over the world, including India, Madagascar, Greenland, China, the United States, the Caribbean, the coast of Brazil, northern Europe and the Mediterranean region.

Elusive water bears live primarily in beaches, which are really just an extension of the ocean floor. To collect a sample of these beach-dwellers, Higgins needs only a shovel and a pail — and a bit of muscle. After digging a bucket of sand, he swirls a few handfuls around in fresh water for about 20 seconds, subjecting the creatures to an "osmotic shock" that forces them to loose their grip. The water is poured through a fine filter to collect the tardigrades, among the smallest of the multicellular microscopic creatures.

Kinorhynchs, on the other hand, most frequently dwell in the oceans and collecting there calls for more ingenuity — and a ship. For the past year, Higgins and his research assistant, Marie Wallace, have been making collecting expeditions along the mid-Atlantic coast of Florida aboard the "R-V Tursiops," an ocean-going research vessel owned and operated by the Florida institute of technology.

In one collection method, a sampling device is lowered carefully onto the bottom of the ocean floor while the boat is stationary. When brought back to the surface, the sediment in the sampler is cut into "cores." These "cores" are then studied layer by layer, yielding information on the density, abundance and position of the kinorhynchs in their habitat, as well as the size and makeup of the sand particles.

In another method, a device is dragged along the ocean floor while the boat is moving. This "dredge" sample delivers up vast quantities of kinorhynchs for study.

Higgins accidentally discovered one of the most effective methods for collecting kinorhynchs when he was a graduate student at the University of Washington. While working in his lab one day, he noticed that a paper towel had fallen atop a bucket containing a sample of mud and water. "A lot of 'stuff' seemed to adhere to the towel," he recalls, "and when I washed the towel and collected the 'stuff,' I counted more than 300 kinorhynchs — probably more than anyone had ever seen at a time!"

This method continues to serve him well, with a few minor adaptions. Using a portable bicycle pump, he bubbles air through samples of mud, sand and seawater, collected usually from the ocean floor. The kinorhynchs are trapped in the tiny bubbles and rise to the surface. After the sediment settles, he blots the surface with a piece of copier paper and washes the paper onto a special filter, thus collecting the microscopic creatures. The beauty of this method is that it can be used anywhere.

There are now some 150 known species of kinorhynchs and 600 species of tardigrades, living in oceans and beachers all over the world. "And more are being found all the time," Higgins says. He should know — he's the world's only expert on kinorhynchs and one of a handful of experts on tardigrades.

"There are doubtlessly hundreds, even thousands of additional species, waiting discovery," he said. "Everywhere people have looked, they've found these critters." On a recent trip aboard the "Tursiops," Higgs discovered 10 new species of kinorhynch and twice as many new tardigrade species, including one species that represents a whole new scientific family of water bears.

Even if they were not so numerous and plentiful, these animals would be considered interesting, if not downright courageous, for their perserverance in the face of adversity. Consider for a moment their inhospitable homes: Wind, waves and currents — not to mention people walking all over them — cause a continuous rearrangement of the particles in the surface layer of the sand. Temperature and salinity vary greatly with the tides and seasons. Yet these creatures thrive because of their superb adaptations to such conditions.

Many of these animals have scales or spines or other appendages, as well as the ability to contract rapidly to protect them against shifting sands. Nematodes, or round worms — among the most abundant creatures living in the sand — may have rings of hardened skin to protect them against the crushing action of the sand grains. A typical kinorhynch, which is unable to swim, moves by protruding its spine-covered head and using its adhesive glands and body spines to prevent accidental removal from its home. Then, by using longitudinal muscles, the animal retracts its head and pulls its trunk forward. By repeating this process, the kinorhynch creeps along — from one tiny space to another.

In the 18th century, one of the tardigrade's innovative adaptations led to controversy. "These creatures have a very powerful ability to withstand extremes in temperature and other environmental conditions," Higgins explains. "In a dried state, they can survive temperatures well below freezing and as hot as boiling water, and they can be revived within 30 minutes, even after years of existing in what is essentially a state of 'suspended animation.' Well, when early biologists first described these animals they used the word 'resurrection' when referring to their ability to revive after severe drying. That led to quite a ruckus in the church!"

Even today, very little is known about these and other microscopic sand inhabitants, but Higgins believes that most feed primarily on even tinier plants and organic matter. In turn, the animals contribute to the food chain by serving either directly as food for higher marine organisms or by supplying digested organic nutrients to these organisms.

He also believes that scientists can use these organisms as a tool for detecting environmental changes, since the animals live just below the surface of the sand where pollutants are likely to accumulate. "These creatures are a whole new biological frontier," he says. "Even though biologists have been studying the oceans for hundreds of years, we're just beginning to learn about these microscopic animals and their incredible adaptations and lifestyles."

Do You Have A "Hidden" Disease?

High blood pressure (hypertension), which afflicts some 35,000,000 Americans, can affect anyone — regardless of age, sex, race or physical condition. If you do have it, the disease can be easily treated before it leads to serious complications. It's one of the easiest conditions for your doctor to diagnose and treat.

Of great concern, however, is that you can have hypertension and not know it. Very often — particularly in its early stages — hypertension has no symptoms. Two out of every six Americans have hypertension and don't know it. That's why it's referred to as a "hidden" disease. If left untreated, it can lead to hardening of the arteries, heart attacks, strokes or kidney damage.

How do you know if you are likely to get hypertension, or if, perhaps, you already have it? According to Pfizer Pharmaceuticals, here are some factors to consider. Hypertension can occur at almost any age, but is more likely to occur after the age of 40. The risks also increase if you have a family history of hypertension, are overweight, smoke, use too much salt, are under stress and anxiety, and do not have a program for exercise, rest and relaxation.

Half of Americans aged 65 or over have high blood pressure. Under 50, it's more common in men than women; but after 55 or 60, it's the other way around. More men than women die from complications of hypertension.

Make it a point to have your blood pressure checked regularly by a doctor. It may be that diet and/or lifestyle modifications are all that are necessary. Hypertension can be controlled but will require accurate diagnosis and treatment by a doctor.

Remember, even a little high blood pressure requires your immediate attention. It's up to you to take control.

Three out of five women maintaining families were in the labor force in 1982; these women had, on average, completed fewer years of school than had wives and were concentrated in lower-skilled, lower-paying jobs, according to "Women at Work: A Chartbook," published by the U.S. Labor Department.

Mrs. Alfred Solem, Rt. 2,
City, 681-3897

The Rebekah circle of the Trinity Lutheran church ALCW served a variety of open-face sandwiches to the residents of Oakland Park nursing home Tuesday afternoon last week. Mrs. Shirley Yonke and Mrs. Rebecca Solem are members of the circle and assisted with the serving. Later in the afternoon Mrs. Ethel Moe was a visitor at the Solem home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jorde were coffee guests Sunday afternoon at the Otto Rupprecht home in Agder.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Glenn Knutson, who passed away unexpectedly, Wednesday, July 13. Many relatives and friends attended funeral services at the Silver Creek Lutheran church Saturday morning with Rev. Nancy Lund officiating. Pallbearers were Donald Rupprecht, Gordon Olson, Raymond Aandal, Dayle Kainz, James Thorstad and Clayton Hanson.

Among the many who attended the Marshall county fair at Warren Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke and David, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rausch, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Kron, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Yonke, Jason, Scott and Steven, Melvin Saugen and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem.

Mr. and Mrs. Curt Johnson, Sheryl and Jeff spent the past weekend camping at a lake near Park Rapids.

Daniel Larson and Brenda Hesse Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson attended the Danny Larson-Brenda Hesse wedding at the Salem Lutheran church north of Oklee Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. Harold and Alpha were host and hostess for the reception which followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Nicki Drees and Nicholas also attended the wedding and reception.

Friday evening visitors at the Alfred Solem home were Engvald and Thelma Dahl of rural Newfolden.

Visitors helping Eddie Anderson celebrate his 75th birthday at his home Saturday evening, July 16 were Donald and Maryann Norum from Bemidji, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Rodahl, Mrs. Adeline Moe, Craig Larson, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem and Julian Rodahl's sister, Mrs. Gladys West, from California. Maryann brought her father the birthday cake shaped in the numerals 75.

An overnight guest at the Harold Halvorson home Wednesday and Thursday was Bob Milliman from Anchorage, Alaska. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Halvorson and Bob visited at the Alfred Solem home. Bob makes his home with the family of his stepson Owen and Bernice (Halvorson) Saupe in Anchorage.

Muriel Copp of Red Wing arrived in Thief River Falls by plane Friday evening to attend her 30th Lincoln high school class reunion banquet at the Best Western Saturday evening. She also visited her aunt, Emma Copp and Mrs. Mabel Swanson, residents of Oakland Park nursing home and at the Alfred Solem home, the Mrs. Clara Jaennette home, the Lester and Thelma Halvorson and the Bjorkmans and visited others by telephone. Her mother, Mrs. Elsie Copp, is now living with Murial in Red Wing, but did not feel physically able to accompany her on the trip. She had fallen June 24 and broken her hip but is home again and able to get around with the use of a walker. Elsie will be 88 years old next February.

Kris Treitline and David Salo Wedding

Mrs. Lester Muzzy and Laureen attended the Kris Treitline-David Salo wedding and reception at the Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire Saturday afternoon. Laureen was a bridesmaid.

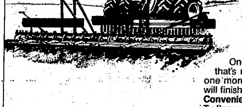
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jorde, Tami and Mike accompanied by Kim and Kelly Magner of Thornton, Colo. and Shelly McGann and Natalie Wilson, both of Thief River Falls spent the past weekend at the Clearvue resort near Bemidji with Loren and Robert Weigand, Leslie and Vicki. Tami stayed Sunday evening with the Weigands and will be home Tuesday.

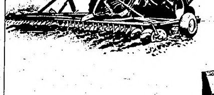
Evening guests at the Lester Muzzy home Monday, June 11 were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Cole and their grandson, Richard Cole, from Sherwood, Ore.

David and Madelene Halvorson of Bemidji spent the weekend in the Thief River Falls area while attending her 10th Lincoln high school class reunion. They, together with Mrs. Debi Drees and Nicholas, enjoyed a picnic supper Sunday at the Harold Halvorson home.

Mrs. Lloyd Larson and Mrs. Carrie Ness helped Mrs. Mabeline Furr celebrate her 93rd birthday at her residence, the Valley Home, Monday afternoon, July 11. Her daughter, Mrs. Hazel Risberg of Detroit Lakes had furnished the cake. Later in the afternoon Harryet and Carrie visited Mrs. Tillie Conklin who was a patient at Northwestern hospital.

If anyone is missing two tablespoons that were left at the Steiner Hall following the picnic Sunday, July 10, they can pick them up sometime at the home of Mrs. Eldon Moe.

APPLY PIGEONGRASS CONTROL NOW.


Now is the ideal time to apply granular Treflan®. Applying granular Treflan during your post harvest tillage is an easy way to get a jump on next year's work. And granular Treflan applied post harvest for pigeongrass control can mean bigger wheat yields and less dockage.
Apply and incorporate in one pass and you're done until next spring. You can apply and incorporate granular Treflan anytime after wheat harvest. One incorporation pass is all that's needed until spring, then one more pass ahead of seeding will finish the job.
Convenience and more. Granular Treflan works particularly well on stubble, and no prior tillage is necessary. You also get completely away from the water hauling hassle by going with granular Treflan. This convenience feature alone should convince you to try granular Treflan this year.
SAVE MOISTURE NEXT SPRING.


The less you work your ground in the spring, the more moisture you'll retain. And some years, a little moisture saved this way can give your crop some real yield help. Rough, fall-tilled ground is actually better at catching and holding snow, too. You may get to start the growing season in a little better shape by going with granular Treflan applied anytime after harvest.

Rodney Srnsky Killed In Crash Of 3-Wheeler

Fourteen-year-old Rodney Srnsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Srnsky of rural St. Hilaire, was killed Wednesday when a three-wheel recreational vehicle he was driving fell on him. The accident happened about 5:40 p.m. four miles west of St. Hilaire, south of CSAH 3.

According to the Pennington county sheriff's department which investigated the mishap, Srnsky was using the three-wheeler to jump over a gravel pile in an abandoned gravel pit. The pile was reportedly 15 to 20 feet high and well-worn tracks indicated it had been used extensively for that purpose, a sheriff's department spokesman said.

Apparently the three-wheeler became airborne when cresting the pile and tumbled forward, landing on top of the driver. Also present at the time was Rodney's brother Wesley, 20, who returned to the Srnsky farm about three-fourths of a mile east of the gravel pit to summon help. An ambulance was called and rushed to the scene but the youth was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwestern hospital.

Treasure Hunt Opens Jaycee Summerfest

Thief River Falls Jaycees Summerfest events officially got underway last night with the running of the demolition derby. If the crowds and excitement generated by that event are any indication, this year's summerfest should be the best one ever.

Chairman Al Rux has released a list of scheduled events being sponsored by the Jaycees and other groups in the community. Those events include a treasure hunt which began today. Clues will be released daily by Cluemaster Don Grabanski, who has hidden a $100 treasure somewhere within the city. The first two clues are: (1) The fair is gone, but the treasures are still here; (2) Genies don't like it.

On Tuesday, a square dance demonstration will be put on at 6:30 p.m. in the parking lot at Al and Wally's Country Market. At 7:30 p.m. a demonstration of radio controlled model airplanes will be put on by the Northern Navigators club. That show will be held at their field south and west of Thief River Falls regional airport.

Wednesday, of course, another clue will be released to the location of the treasure, if nobody finds it before then.

Thursday will be Crazy Days in Thief River Falls. Merchants will be featuring sidewalk sales and specials throughout their stores. In addition the Jaycees will have their dunking stand on LaBree Avenue; tennis tournaments will begin, and another clue will be released for the treasure hunt. A country western dance contest will be held at the Elks Club at 8 p.m., and the Rundell Electric team will be defending their title against all comers in water fights which will be held on Second Street at 8 p.m.

HARNESS RACING returned to the Pennington county fair after an absence of many years and the six heats of racing provided an entertaining program to open the fair Wednesday evening. Pacer "Mai Dilemma", driven here by Allan Backlund of Kandiyohi, holds a lead here although all four feet are off the ground. "Mai Dilemma" won two heats of racing, pulling owner Allan around the track in 2:18.3 after an earlier double circuit of the half-mile track with Allan's daughter Jan in the sulky. Jan drove the horse to a 2:14.8 finish. Best time of the night was turned in by Milford Olson, a 42-year veteran of the harness racing wars, who drove "Sirs Lovely Lady" to a 2:09.4 clocking. More photos in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Minstar Value Hearing Set Again Tonight

Pennington county board of equalization adjourned a hearing on the assessed valuations of the Minstar Inc. and Consumers Co-op properties for a second time on Thursday evening, delaying their decision on whether to lower the valuations until 8 p.m. tonight, July 25.

In spite of a large crowd of people in attendance, urging the board to lower the valuation from $2,283,200 to $1,600,000 and do it quickly, the county officials balked, noting that they wanted more information, preferably some type of contact from Minstar indicating that they were willing to negotiate. No representatives of the company were present at either of the county hearings, although a telegram was received by the auditor which stated that Minstar objected to its assessment.

Those urging the board to lower the valuation asked for a rapid decision in order to "send a proper message that Thief River Falls is a good place for new business." Concern was expressed over how a decision to not lower the assessment could affect Arctco Inc. which is currently leasing space on the property from Minstar. However, Chris Twomey, who spoke on behalf of Arctco, noted that they had no guarantee that lowering the assessment would affect their negotiations for a new lease, which he expected to begin in August. He stated that it would be in their best interests if the negotiations could be wrapped up quickly, which would be aided by a rapid decision on the part of the board.

Jim Winjum, president of Jobs Inc., noted that the community had made a financial commitment to attracting new business and jobs, adding that the board's decision must reflect that commitment.

Stan Upham, president of the Chamber of Commerce, suggested that the board follow the recommendation of the city council to lower the valuation to $1,600,000, in order to reflect a healthy business climate.

Mayor Bob Carlson commented that they were not recommending the reduction on behalf of Minstar, but because it was in the best interest of the community to lower the assessment. He said that in his conversations with Minstar representatives they had "indicated a softening of attitudes." Carlson suggested that although they had previously objected to the $1.6 million valuation and threatened not to pay this year's taxes, they might agree to pay the lower assessment.

He also noted that Alderman Ambrose Wysoski, County Assessor Gerard DeHaan and himself had toured the buildings on the property and had found them in "deplorable condition." He noted that the effects of standing vacant for two years were obvious in

Perfect Weather Helps Pennington County Fair

Not a drop of rain fell on the 82nd edition of the Pennington county fair and all programs were conducted as scheduled in front of the grandstand. Total grandstand attendance was placed at 6,823 for seven different performances, highlighted by 2,800 for the two concerts by Charley Pride on Friday evening. Country singer Pride, who stayed after the last show to sign autographs until 1:30 a.m., attracted 1,498 people to the first show at 7 p.m. and 1,302 for the second concert at 9:15 p.m.

Jaycee demolition derby on Sunday evening — the first time the event has been held on Sunday — attracted 2,042 and a first-time event — the Grandstand Jam for young people on Thursday night — drew 750 people and was likely the second most profitable grandstand program for the fair association. Gross receipts of $3,094 and expenses of $1,926 left a net income of $1,168.

Saturday afternoon tractor pull which featured only antique and out of field tractors and stock four-wheel drive pickups had a paid attendance of 531. There were about 200 people for the harness racing which opened the fair program on Wednesday evening for the extended five-day fair. An estimated 300 people attended the free 4-H dress revue and senior citizen program Sunday afternoon and about 200 witnessed the 4-H club horse show Saturday evening, which was also a free program.

Gross receipts for the Charley Pride show were $30,512, according to Richard Anderson, treasurer of the sponsoring Pennington county fair association. The program is expected to be about a break-even proposition since the entertainment contract was for $20,000 and related expenses for promotion and other items are expected to total in excess of $10,000. All admissions to the show were paid, even the county fair directors who traditionally have free admission to the grandstand shows.

Anderson was completing his final settlement with the Matt Armstrong shows carnival this morning and continuing discussions on possible changes for the 1984 county fair carnival operations. Through Saturday night the carnival gross receipts were $25,075 — slightly ahead of the 1982 fair when receipts were $23,823 for the first four days. Last year the county fair association had net receipts from carnival percentage of $8,358 and it is expected that this year's revenue will at least match or likely exceed that amount.

Auto parking, which was handled by the Boy Scouts, produced revenue of $1,042 this year, compared with $1,326 in 1982. Additional revenue is received by the fair association from several other sources, including concessions and commercial exhibits and state share of premium payments.

With 89 cars entered in the demolition derby and perfect weather adding to the situation, the grandstand was packed and people had to be turned away on Sunday evening. An estimated 75 to 100 tickets sold had to be refunded because there was no room, according to Randy Adamson of the sponsoring Thief River Falls Jaycees. Gross receipts were $7,273 with the fair association realizing about $3,000 and the Jaycees earning the rest.

Premium payment totaled $8,929 in combined 4-H club and open class competition — a substantial increase from last year due to a greater number of entries and a substantial increase in premiums paid for livestock exhibits. In the 4-H club division there were 706 entries by 216 exhibitors and a total of $2,484.50 in premiums paid. Open class premiums totaled $6,445.

Anderson also noted that the state of Minnesota benefits from the county fair operation since sales tax of six per cent is paid on grandstand admissions (which totaled $43,521 for a tax of $2,611) and on carnival receipts and concession sales.

Pageant competition is not a new experience for Paula Kay Hodne of Middle River. Not only did she win the Miss Middle River pageant last fall, she was first runner-up for the Miss Hospitality title at the Miss Minnesota National Teenager pageant in the Twin Cities last year.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hodne of Middle River, Paula is 18 years old and a 1983 graduate of Middle River high school. She is five feet three inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, has brown hair and hazel eyes. Her pageant talent number will be a vocal solo.

Paula took guitar lessons for two years and enjoys playing guitar for vocal self-accompaniment and is a member of the Hodne Family Singers. At Middle River high school she participated in class plays and earned letters in cheerleading for the basketball team, playing girls volleyball and being a member of the annual staff. She was an attendant to the homecoming and sno-daze queens, was an honor student through high school and is listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students".

Paula's hobbies include horseback riding, walking, bicycle riding, water skiing, canoeing and fishing. This summer she is employed by School District 564 in Thief River Falls as receptionist and switchboard operator.

Included in Paula's family is a younger brother, Cory, at home. Paula will attend Northland community college in Thief River Falls this fall and plans to pursue a career in computers.

Quin County Health Board Approves Plan

Quin county board of health met Monday evening in Newfolden with JoAnn Thibert of Red Lake Falls, chairman, presiding.

Action by the board included approval of the 1984-85 community health services plan. The plan provides for early and periodic screening and W.I.C. services by the Four-County EPS service. Also included are community nursing services, home health services, disease prevention and control services and health education provided by Kittson community health services, Marshall county nursing service, Inter-county nursing service and Roseau county nursing service. Also included are home health services provided by Northland community hospice.

Emergency medical services funded include: Argyle rescue squad, Grygla-Gatzke Rescue squad, Oslo first responder unit, Stephen volunteer ambulance, Northwestern hospital ambulance service, Oklee ambulance service, Red Lake Falls ambulance, Greenbush rescue squad, Roseau area hospital ambulance and Warroad ambulance.

Other action included approval of an application for maternal and child health grant funds for prenatal and parenting education and infant and adolescent risk reduction programs.

Board also decided to exercise their review and comment privilege on other maternal and child health grant applications. They further acted to oppose recent restrictive interpretations of the Medicare legislation.

Board members present were Ellen Johnson, Kittson county, Sally Rabenhorst and Marcella Gonsorowski, Marshall county, Arnold Berg, M.D. and Albert Koop, Pennington county, JoAnn Thibert and Karen Eliason, Red Lake county and John Spina, Roseau county. Also present were Mrs. Arnold Berg, Viola Rud, Quin county administration and Jan Kragness, Quin county secretary.

Negotiations Date Changes

Negotiations session between the Thief River Falls Education association and School District 564 board of education has been changed from July 27 to August 2 at 7 p.m. in the school district service center.

Negotiations sessions are also slated for July 26 at 7 p.m. with bus drivers and August 1 at 8 p.m. with the principals and directors association. Both will be in the school district service center.

RECOGNITION for their contributions to the community as outstanding senior citizens of Pennington county was given Saturday at the Pennington county fair to Mrs. Gunder (Ruth) Legvold and Morris Howick of Thief River Falls. Each was presented with a governor's plaque in recognition of the honor which also includes advancement to the state contest at the Minnesota state fair. Gifts were also presented from the Pennington county board of commissioners by Albert Koop and the Pennington county fair board by treasurer Richard Anderson. The afternoon program which included the 4-H dress revue and awards program and entertainment by the Hoot-N-Toots of Viking was part of senior citizen day at the fair.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

50th Anniversary Noted July 3 By Lewis Quams

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Quam were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, July 3, at an open house at the Ekelund Lutheran church, rural Goodridge.

Hosting the open house were the couple's children and their spouses: Mr. and Mrs. Marvin (Janyce) Bakken and Mr. and Mrs. Gaylen Quam of Goodridge, and Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss Quam, Underwood, N.D.

The Quams were married March 2, 1983 in Thief River Falls with Rev. Fjelstad officiating.

Honor guests at the anniversary celebration were Lorraine McGuinty, who was their bridesmaid, and Leonard Olson, who served in proxy for the best man, Ben Tommerdahl, now deceased.

A "This is Your Life," program was given. To correspond with the theme of the program, grandhildren Jeff and Timmy Bakken presented the couple with a quilt depicting events of the past 50 years. The quilt blocks were designed by Ethel Wiseth, Goodridge, painted by the couple's daughter and granddaughters, Lori Jo Bakken and Janell Verbout, and quilted by Ione Austad, Oklee. For the program, the grandchildren, dressed as characters in the lives of the Quams, told incidents corresponding with the blocks on the quilt. Also adding interest was the modeling of the original wedding dress and suit by grandchildren, Tami and Tommie Quam.

Highlighting the program, was Mrs. Guro Holen, 87, a longtime neighbor and friend of the family, who read the poem "The Life," which she had composed for the occasion. Kathy Erickson, Middle River, a friend, provided the musical selections: "Have I Told You Lately That I Love You," "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," and "How Great Thou Art." Lori Jo Bakken Tucson, Ariz., as Ralph Edwards, presided at the program; and Eldon Quam, a grandson, led the group in "The Lord's Prayer" and the table prayer.

Host and hostess were granddaughter, Janelle and her husband Gerald Verbout, Goodridge. At the guest book were Donavon Quam, Underwood, and Allison Quam, Goodridge. Kurt and Karla Quam, Underwood, served the punch. All are grandchildren of the couple.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered anniversary cake iced in pale gold with white trim. Roses in shades of gold, accented with candles, cascaded down the side. Topping the upper tier, supported by pillars, were a miniature anniversary couple, backed by a gold Christogram with Golden wedding rings. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Eugene Fiedler and was cut and served by Mrs. Myrtle Olson, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Ray Ellingson, Superior, Wis., sisters of Mr. and Mrs. Quam, respectively. At the coffee service were Mrs. Leonard Olson and Marion Vran, both of Goodridge.

For the reception the tables were decorated with gold doilies, roses and candles, accented with greenery. A gold colored bell and gold streamers provided the background setting.

Seated at the head table, together with the Quams, were their entire family, their bridesmaid and Leonard Olson. All wore corsages and boutonnieres, in gold tones, made by Sheryl Eckstein, Red Lake Falls. Miniature gold rosebuds were worn by Gary Quam, the youngest grandchild, and Kyle Verbout, the couple's first great-grandchild.

Garden Club Tour Held By Campanula Club

Campanula garden club annual garden tour was held Wednesday, July 13.

The event began at 12:30 p.m., with a planned lunch at the gazabo at the Valley Home park. Joining them there was Olga Grothe, a club member who is now a resident at Valley Home.

Before touring the gardens, a brief business meeting was held with President Ruth Holmes presiding. Secretary Eleanor Tornes reported on the June meeting and also read the correspondence. Included were letters of appreciation from the Deer Park, Moccasin and Sow and Hoe garden clubs for inviting the members to the 35th anniversary celebration of the Campanula club. Mrs. Holmes stated that thank-you cards were sent to Inga Geving and Terry Courneya. The financial report was given by Olga Johnson.

Information was given on the Pennington County Fair. Members were urged to bring exhibits to the fair.

The garden tour followed the meeting. Gardens visited were those of Eleanor Tornes, Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. Franson, Olga Johnson, Mrs. Koglin and Geneva Overum. Also viewed were the roses at the Ed Leiran gardens and the sweet peas and blooming mock orange at the Charles Emanuel residence.

Hostess at the August meeting of the Campanula garden club will be Mrs. Emil Koglin.

Moccasin Club Plans For Dist. Flower Show

Flower show scheduled by the 13th District Horticultural society for August 20 at Goodridge, was discussed at the recent meeting of the Moccasin Garden club held at the Connie Manke home. During the discussion, the lunch was planned and members were appointed for food donations.

President Olga Nelson presided at the meeting. Members answered roll call by naming a wild flower. They also judged their own flower arrangements, corresponding with the categories listed for the flower show. The account of the last meeting was given by Eva Lendobeja.

It was also noted that the members of the club had provided flowers and assisted in making arrangements for the Johnson-Meyer wedding.

Those attending the meeting, in addition to the ones already mentioned, were Marianne Nelson, Joan Nelson, Alice Lendobeja, Christina Anenson and Beatrice Wilson. Lunch was served by Mrs. Manke.

The next meeting of the Moccasin garden club will be held Tuesday, July 26 at 7:30 p.m., at the Alice Lendobeja home. Members are asked to bring any ideas or questions regarding the arrangements for the flower show. Roll call will be "What is your hobby?"

NW Women's Aglow Plans August Retreat

Northwestern Minnesota area Women's Aglow is having a retreat August 19 to 20 at Oak Hills Bible institute, Bemidji.

USDA Lists School Meal Income Limits

Increased income limits for free and reduced price school meals for the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC) became effective July 1, an official of the U.S. department of agriculture said.

Assistant secretary of agriculture Mary C. Jarratt said the income limit for free school meals will go from $12,090 to $12,870 annually for a family of four. The limit for reduced-priced meals will go from $17,210 to $18,315.

Family of four may receive up to $18,315 and still take part in the WIC program. Previously, the income limit was $17,210.

Congress requires USDA to update the eligibility guidelines each July 1, reflecting changes in the consumer price index. Guidelines affect the national school lunch, school breakfast, special milk, and child care food programs, all administered by USDA's food and nutrition service at the federal level.

Maximum guidelines listed by household size, free meal eligibility and reduced price eligibility are as follows: one, $6,318, $8,991; two, $8,502, $12,099; three, $10,686, $15,207; four, $12,870, $18,315; five, $15,054, $21,423; six, $17,238, $24,531; seven, $19,422, $27,639; eight, $21,606, $30,747; and for each additional family member add: $2,184, $3,108.

Effective July 1, state and local agencies will begin applying the new income eligibility standards to all new applicants, as well as to all ongoing participants at their next certification. The law provides that state agencies set income guidelines not more than 185 per cent, nor less than 100 per cent of the income poverty guidelines for each family size.

WIC program now serves a record 2.4 million participants a monthly package of supplemental foods. The program purpose is to improve the health and nutritional status of low-income pregnant, breastfeeding and postpartum women, infants and children under five by providing nutritious supplemental foods, nutrition education and access to health services.

Family size and maximum gross income limits to participate in the WIC program are: one, $8,991; two, $12,099; three, $15,207; four, $18,315; five, $21,423; six, $24,531; seven, $27,639; eight, $30,747; and for each additional family member add: $3,108.

Woman Injured In Collision With Runner

Mrs. Mildred Thorstad of Thief River Falls, 47, was injured Friday evening at the Pennington county fair and taken by ambulance to Northwestern hospital where she was treated for a head injury and released. The mishap happened about 11:30 p.m. near the midway.

According to the Thief River Falls police department, witnesses said, Mrs. Thorstad was coming around the corner of a concession when she was run into by a man who was running through the area. She was struck on the back of the head, perhaps by an elbow or an object the man may have been carrying. Investigation is continuing by the police department.

MN Airport Installs Color Radar System

Latest in a sophisticated color weather radar display system recently was installed at Falls international airport, International Falls, as a demonstration project to provide pilots with the latest detailed weather information from around the country, the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn/DOT) announced.

Richard Keinz, assistant commissioner, aeronautics division, said the RADAC color radar system, built by Kavouras, Inc., Minneapolis, was purchased and installed at the general aviation terminal at Falls international airport at a cost of $22,000.

This new, state-of-the-art radar display system will provide detailed weather information and help ensure even greater safety to pilots and the general air traveling public, he said. "Since nearly half of the aviation accidents are weather related, anything we can do to provide better, more complete information to the air traveling public is a definite benefit," he added.

Main purpose of the new equipment, he said, is to provide detailed current weather information. The system also has capability to obtain weather information concerning major thunderstorms as far as 240 miles away, Keinz said.

In addition, the system, which is a computer with a color display monitor, provides instant weather information from weather radar installations located throughout the country by a simple telephone hookup.

Falls international airport was selected as the site of the pilot program because during the summer months, it is one of the busiest airports outside the Twin Cities metropolitan area, Keinz said.

Francis Einarson, airport manager, said, "We have pilots make a special stop at International just to check enroute weather." In addition, pilots delayed at International Falls by weather conditions in other cities may monitor those areas until travel conditions are favorable again, he added.

Hobby Day Set At NW Library On Wednesday

Hobby day will be held at Northwest regional library at 2 p.m. Wednesday, as part of summer children's activities. Program is open to the public, with no pre-registration required. Some special invited guests will discuss their hobbies, and children will then be able to visit with the people whose hobbies interest them.

Special guests and their hobbies include: Dutch Merink, Stephen, stamp collecting; Marie Sorenson, Thief River Falls, photography; LaVonne Forsberg, Thief River Falls, painting; "Artist of the Month" Lowell Hoffard, Thief River Falls, woodburning; and Sue Fredeen, Thief River Falls, antiques. Several other interesting guests are also expected.

Program will be held in the library meeting room. Hobby day is being held on Wednesday instead of the usual Thursday children's program because of Crazy Days.

HIGHLANDING . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Coan, Roger, Robert and Michelle and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Olson, Alan, Wendi and Dustin of Larimore were Friday evening visitors at the Lawrence Srnsky home in Oklee. The Olsons were also weekend visitors at the Srnsky home.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Donald Braunschweig
110 Belleville Court
Thief River Falls

Marble Swirl Pound Cake

2 cups sugar
1 cup butter or margarine
3½ cups cake flour
1 cup milk
1½ teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs
¼ cup cocoa

Method: Grease 10 inch tube pan and set aside. In a large bowl combine sugar and butter. Beat until light and fluffy. Add flour and remaining ingredients, EXCEPT cocoa. Beat at low speed until well mixed, often scraping sides of bowl. Increase speed to high and beat four minutes longer. Remove about 2½ cups of batter, add cocoa to that amount and beat until well blended. Alternately spoon the vanilla and chocolate batter into the tube pan. With a large spoon cut and twist through the batter to obtain a marble effect. Bake one hour in a 350 degree oven or until a toothpick comes out clean when tested. Cool cake in pan for 10 minutes and remove from pan.

The Braunschweigs have lived in Thief River Falls about 12 years. They have two children, Todd, 13, and Ryan, 10, who attend Franklin Middle school and Mark Twain elementary school. Mrs. Braunschweig enjoys baking, sewing, crafts and all types of needlework. Her husband is employed by Forsberg's. They attend the United Methodist church.

Peder Engelstad Speaks To State Dairymen Assn.

(Editor's Note; This is the sixth installment in the historical review of the Peder Engelstad family, pioneer farmers southeast of Thief River Falls. As Peder's involvement increased in a number of enterprises and he gained additional exposure through publications, he became in demand as a public speaker. An example of his oratory is included in this installment.)

by Melvin Engelstad

Peder Addresses Dairy Association

The 48th annual convention of the Minnesota State Dairymen's association was held at Brainerd Jan. 19, 20, 21, 1926, and Peder delivered one of the principal addresses — a new role he was persuaded to accept by two of the association's officers, president L. Jensen of Clearbrook and secretary Chris Heen of Osakis. Major excerpts from his well-received speech include the following:

The write-up that was accorded me in "The American Magazine" I talk about as little as I possibly can. In fact, I never mention it to anybody. When I think of all the constructive and progressive men in every community in the valley and everywhere in the state, I feel kind of embarrassed because I do not feel that I have done any more than anybody else.

My pioneer life has not been very much different than that of most early settlers, who have ventured out beyond the border of civilization to pave the way for themselves and for coming generations. In most cases when the settlement has reached a certain stage of development, the real pioneers or forerunners sell out, move on and start pioneer life over again on the outskirts of civilization. A certain per cent, however, stick it out and grow up with that particular section where they first located.

In the community where I am located, I am one of the few original homesteaders remaining, who have had the opportunity to watch the development from the beginning up to the present time.

Practically all the land in the vicinity around Thief River Falls and St. Hilaire was taken up from 1880 to 1886. The biggest part of the settlers, I should judge about 90 per cent, were Swedes and Norwegians, mostly newcomers from their respective fatherlands, who had come to America to make a home. Those sturdy emigrants from Norway and Sweden, with a small sprinkling of other nationalities from northern Europe, were just the right kind of homesteaders to tackle a section like this. With courage and determination and confidence in the future, those settlers set out to make a home and convert the wilderness into productive acres.

The class of people coming into this section, with which I am familiar, had been brought up and reared under such conditions and environment in their fatherlands that they could easily adapt themselves to the conditions at hand. The mere idea of becoming a freeholder and owning a tract of land of 160 acres was enough to instill courage and vision into the future, that they some day would reap the fruit of their labor and toil.

When I talk about pioneering and development of a community, I like to say "we" instead of "I" so as to include all my neighbors, as they were just as industrious as I, and worked, struggled, and toiled under the same handicap. I had, for a start, I may say, 320 acres of this brush and timberland, a real wilderness, but I never stopped to consider any obstacles that might happen to come in my way or the amount of work in converting the land into tillable acres to bring some income.

The routine work for many years was this (clearing and breaking from spring until haying time; putting up the hay, which I cut with a scythe for ten years; hurrying through with the little harvest; and, then, hurrying down to older settlements in the valley to work with the threshing machines to make a few dollars for taxes and other necessities of life. The acreage of tillable land was increased from year to year, and pretty soon there was enough to take care of at home without going away seeking employment in the fall somewhere else.

Crop failures happened now and then. I remember frost years and years when crops suffered from excessive moisture and literally drowned out. There was no market for stock and its products. Stock, we could not sell for any kind of a price. Butter and eggs, however, we could get something for. Eggs were selling in summer for as low as five cents per dozen, while butter was selling for six cents a pound — only in trade, of course. In the winter time, the price was a little better, but as a general rule there was not much to sell. This market condition continued for about 12 years, when a gradual betterment was noticeable. Although the price on stock was miserably low, we could at least get rid of it. We could get from $10 to $14 for cows, and we thought it was not so bad.

The price for the product of the cow — butter, for instance — did not improve materially until the creameries appeared on the scene. Farmers sold butter to the storekeeper, and the storekeeper put most of it in barrels and shipped it away. Farmers did not make anything, and the storekeeper did it as an accommodation. Along with development of land, there followed other activities, such as the organization of school districts, the organization of church congregations according to the different doctrines of beliefs, establishing Sunday School classes, etc.

A good deal of attention was paid to road building, but funds for that purpose were very limited — only the poll tax and a small levy on the valuation for a road tax were available — so it was, for a long time, a rather slow process. Farmers, however, did a lot of voluntary work along that line in the early days. Although the organization of school districts and the building of school houses were uppermost in the minds of the settlers, the goal seemed to be to get in 40 days, so as to draw state aid. We built our first schoolhouse by voluntary contribution. We donated six logs and two dollars each, besides some other necessary labor. It served the purpose for 20 years.

In the first 15 years, not much progress was made except to bring more land into cultivated acres. Many homesteaders became uneasy and disgusted after 15 or 20 years of adventure, and lured by tales of better climatic conditions and other advantages west and south, they pulled up stakes and left the old settlement during a little land boom, which came along about that time. A good many homes changed hands for small considerations, say $600 or $700. Many had already left before this time, mortgaging the land for all they could get, from $300 to $350.

Being one of the original homesteaders in my community, I have observed with keen interest the progress which has been made to keep abreast of the times. What has happened in my immediate locality is typical of all the other communities throughout the entire valley. As I mentioned earlier, a market for cattle was finally a reality, but the stock I had to sell was not the kind that brought fancy prices at the stockyards. In order to improve the quality of our cattle, two of my neighbors and I bought a purebred Shorthorn sire, eight months old, for $75 at Chicago. This was in 1898.

Since that time, I have had nothing in the line of sires except purebred ones. The first sire we bought was a splendid investment and taught me a valuable lesson: Always to have a purebred sire heading the herd. We kept that Shorthorn for a number of years, but as could be expected, he did not produce any milkers that amounted to much, but it was a wonderful improvement on the offspring in the line of beef.

The creameries then came into existence, and another problem had to be faced — namely, to improve the milk-producing quality of the herd. With the lesson fresh in mind from the use of the first sire, I concluded that a sire of a special dairy type would bring the same result in improving the milk-producing qualities as the Shorthorn had done in the line of beef. Upon the suggestion of Professor James Wilson, then connected with the Dairy Division of the Agriculture Department, I bought my first Guerrisey sire from Professor T.L. Haecker. The same story over again, as with the purebred beef type: One of his daughters came up with 400 pounds of butterfat, and another one, with 350 pounds.

For many years, even prior to my investment in purebred sires, I kept a record of my cows, weighing every ten days, and testing once a month. At the same time that I kept a record of the herd, I took a keen interest in feeding my cows according to the amount of milk produced, following Professor Haecker's feed standard as closely as possible with whatever roughage and concentrates were available. The result of the better breeding, coupled, with feeding a balanced ration, was very encouraging. All the offspring from my first Guernsey sire turned out to be good cows. The improvement is more noticeable in the first cross than in the later ones.

In connection with my house-to-house delivery of milk in town, there have been times when I have run short of supply, so I have had to buy additional cows upon such occasions. I certainly bought a lot of scrub cows — cows that would not respond either to feeding or good care. The scale and the tester, however, were a valuable help in determining whether the cow was entitled to a place in the barn, or not.

I remember one year I bought 18 cows, most of them in the fall, for a price ranging from $45 to $75. The highest-priced cow turned out to be the poorest one, while the $45 cow was the best of the whole lot and remained in the herd for many years. Another instance was when a butcher in town persuaded me to buy a cow from him, which he believed was a good animal but very much neglected, so far as feed and care was concerned. I bought her for $22, and a skinny-looking thing, she was! After having that cow on the place for a year to recover from previous neglect, Brindle became the leading cow in the herd, for many years producing as high as 400 pounds of butterfat.

As the result of 20 years of continuous use of purebred sires, my herd of 60 cows averages approximately 325 pounds of butterfat. The high cow in our herd, which, by the way, is the high cow in the testing association in our locality, produced 591 pounds of butterfat this last year. There are about 14 cows that would average 400 pounds.

In conclusion, taking a glance at this span of 40 years, or more, quite a transformation has taken place. Some 40 years ago, I looked at 320 acres of brush and timberland. It is all under cultivation. I cleared another 100 acres, which I obtained later on. Where formerly brush and timber reigned supreme in the early days, on a summer day you will look at 200 acres of blooming alfalfa. With a herd of more than 100 Guernseys and over 100 sheep, I have a market right at home for my alfalfa crop.

Before coming to a close, I cannot help but make some comparison with the social atmosphere of the early settlers with that prevailing in our farmer settlements of today. I remember so well, in the first years, how busy we were visiting each other, how much time we had for that purpose, and how happy we were to entertain and go visiting. There was no difference whether you were Norwegian, Swedish or any other nationality, whether you belonged to a certain church, or a certain political party. We were just men and women, members of the big human family, just put into the melting pot to be turned out as good, loyal American citizens. We divided cheerfully with each other and extended a helping hand in sickness and sorrow.

Today, the old-fashioned neighborhood spirit has been scattered to the winds. Very seldom, if ever, do neighbors go visiting each other, except at funerals, which occasionally happens. The telephone has eliminated the necessity of personally going to see neighbors to talk over matters — and neighbors can rubber and listen in, too, if they feel like doing that! The automobile has contributed its share in bringing about the prevailing conditions. People do not care to crank up the car just to go a mile or two, or three; instead, visiting is generally done 10, 15 or 20 miles away. I admire, however, the spirit which prevailed among the settlers in the early days and the many ways it expressed itself.

I am glad that it was my good fortune to settle in the Red River Valley and to develop a home on its fertile soil. I am also mindful of the fact that it takes more than one class of people to build a community. It takes all classes of people, and it is only through concerted effort by men and women in all walks of life — city folks as well as farmers — that a successful community can be built up and maintained. It is the hearty cooperation of all concerned that has brought this fertile region to the place it occupies today.

INTERMEDIATE GROUP queen at the Pennington county 4-H dress revue Sunday at the county fair was Kay Kainz (center) of the Mavie 4-H club. Her attendants were Edna Johnson of the Sanders 4-H club (left) and Susie Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club.

PURCHASED GARMENTS had their place in the Pennington county 4-H dress revue this year, illustrating comparative costs between ready made clothing and material for doing home sewing. Cindi Solem of the City View 4-H club (center) earned a trip to the state fair with her entry — a matching blouse and skirt purchased at two different times at two different stores — yet matching perfectly. Attendants were Julie Finstad (left) of Happy Acres and Edna Johnson of Sanders.

Minstar Value Hearing Set Again Tonight

buildings which had gone without heat, with floors heaved and roofs leaking. He noted that the lowered valuation had the full and strong support of Mr. DeHaan. He also called attention to the Arctco employees which would be working at the facility, noting that 45 per cent would be from Thief River Falls, with approximately 50 per cent coming from outlying areas in Pennington county.

Mark Larson noted that tax credits were one way of creating a climate more favorable to creation of jobs, which was becoming a very competitive thing these days.

Gene Bello commented that the board had to focus on the real issue which was not asking for tax relief but merely asking fair market value on the property. He noted that the property had been vacant for two years, in a market situation where it was unlikely to be sold. He said that he had indications that if the company was offered a million and a half for the property they would find it hard to turn down. He also asked that the decision not be passed on to a higher body, since it was time a message was sent to the state that industry needed to be encouraged in Minnesota.

Si Hanson of Consumers Coop noted that his company was merely requesting that if they lowered the Minstar assessment that they be given the same consideration.

Board Member Albert Koop noted that they also had to consider what would happen next year if they lowered the valuation. He suggested that they would be flooded with requests from other owners of vacant property for reductions. Duane Walton commented that they would have to take each piece of property on its own merit, lowering the valuation if the owner was willing to reduce the selling price.

State Representative Wally Sparby commented that this part of the world was not alone in the situation. He noted that Canada, France and Belgium were also facing similar problems. He called attention to the recent vote by the people of the community to bond for $1.5 million to attract a flight service station to the city.

Koop noted that although a lot of talk had been heard about jeopardizing jobs, not one person could assure the board that Arctco would still be in the building after December, regardless of what the board did. He noted that they had absolutely no guarantees that this year's taxes would be paid if they lowered the assessment either, adding that "scare tactics" which Minstar had used earlier should not enter into their decision.

Mayor Carlson responded that Minstar had made a bad initial appearance, but that the board had to base their decision not on what Minstar had done, but what was best for the community.

Board member Don Grabanski offered the motion to adjourn until July 25, so that they could get more information. The motion also contained a request to ask the state for an extension of deadline on the decision until August 9. In making the motion Grabanski commented that the decision should not be made because someone has threatened not to pay taxes if a reduction does not occur, but that it should be made for reasons which were in the best interest of the county as a whole.

VA Solicits Repayment Of School Debts

Some 850,000 veterans in Minnesota and the rest of the nation who have been overpaid for G.I. bill education benefits will receive letters from the Veterans administration advising them of new statutes affecting money owed the government.

Mailing which started July 18 is the second in a series of steps taken by VA in response to a Congressional mandate to intensify collection of $954 million owed in some 1.3 million accounts. Amounts owed range from several thousand dollars to as little as five dollars, the lowest amont to be targeted for collection. Some of the accounts are more than 10 years old.

Letters regarding education accounts will be mailed at the rate of 42,000 per day from VA's centralized accounts receivable section at the VA regional office and insurance center in St. Paul. Similar letters are scheduled for veterans who owe for overpayments in compensation, pension and loan guaranty defaults.

In the first three months following the first mass collection effort in January, VA received $24 million in payments, almost double the normal amount for that period, agency officials said.

This month's mailing to veterans who have ignored their overdue obligations will advise that interest on their balance will be charged at the annual rate of 15.05 per cent.

Legislation enacted in 1980 (P.L. 96-466) authorized interest charges in such cases at the rate used by the treasury during fiscal year 1982. While the rate is reviewed each year, the initial rate assigned to an account remains unchanged while the debt is outstanding.

Veterans are advised that the interest cost can be avoided by remitting the full amount due within 30 days of the date of the letter. Those unable to repay the full amount are advised to submit a partial payment together with a proposed repayment plan. If no repayment plan is submitted within 30 days, an administrative charge of 61 cents is added each month in addition to the interest. Those who have established repayment plans will not be charged interest and administrative costs unless the account becomes delinquent.

All repayments are to be made to the centralized accounts receivable section at the VA regional office in St. Paul, a VA spokesman emphasized. A remittance form is provided with each letter. Local VA regional offices can assist in explaining remittance procedures, but all of the delinquent accounts are maintained in St. Paul.

KING AGASSIZ for Pennington county, Lowell Swanson of Goodridge, is presented with his hat and congratulations by King Agassiz for the Red River Valley winter shows, Marv Hanson of Hallock. Announcement and introduction took place Saturday afternoon during the tractor pull at the Pennington county fair. At left is Ken Mahrkens of Thief River Falls, 1982 county King Agassiz. Also pictured are Lowell's daughters Shelly, 14 and Sheri, 18 and wife Darlene. Swanson has farmed five miles southeast of Goodridge for 15 years and now has 700 acres, raising grain and sunflowers. He has also operated Swanson Air Spray for the past five years, operating from his farm where the Goodridge Flying club also keeps its plane. He is a past master of the Masonic lodge, has been Highlanding township clerk for more than 10 years, is secretary of Farmers Cooperative Grain and Seed association and a member of Faith Lutheran church in Goodridge.

4-H HALL OF FAME membership was conferred on Mrs. Louise Breznay of Thief River Falls during the 4-H club dress revue and awards program Sunday afternoon at the Pennington county fair. Membership is awarded in recognition of prior and continuing service to the Pennington county 4-H club program. Making the award was Dale Svendsgaard.

DAIRY GOATS around northwestern Minnesota had a special day at the Pennington county fair when six breeders entered 20 animals in open class competition Friday. Entrants were Bonnie Paulson and Darlene Ihrke of Greenbush, Mrs. Gerald White and Judy Vasend of McIntosh, Pat Sparks of Roosevelt and Maria Yonke of Thief River Falls. George Marx of the University of Minnesota at Crookston was judge for the show. The distinguished looking buck above was the champion buck of the show. A registered Saanen, he was entered by Mrs. Gerald White. Plans are already in the making for a larger show next year, perhaps sanctioned by the American Dairy Goat association.

Montana Man Arrested By TRF Police

Gary Randall Kay of Livingston, MT, is being held at the Pennington county law enforcement center for authorities in Montana's Flathead county after being apprehended here Wednesday night.

Kay, 30, had been stopped by local authorities earlier in the day for having expired registration on his car. A computer check on the license indicated that he was wanted by authorities in Nevada and Montana on charges of embezzlement, deceptive practices, common scheme and grand larceny. He was arrested at Noper's motel where he was staying for the night.

Reno, NV, authorities have dropped the charges against him, according to the local law enforcement center. He was being held for Montana authorities under $15,000 bond.

Eckard Lane Services Held At Oak Ridge

Funeral services for Eckard Lane, 81, of Thief River Falls, were held Friday at 2:00 p.m., at the Oak Ridge Lutheran church. Lane died Tuesday afternoon at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Robert Moberg officiated at the services. Louise Solseng was the organist and Diane Lane, the soloist. Interment was in Lanstad cemetery with the Belmont Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Keith Moen, Gary Nelson, Jeffrey Olson, Daniel Olson, Larry Langevin and Kent Ellingston.

Eckard Lane, a son of the late Ira and Mary Ellen Munsch Lane, was born July 13, 1902 in Illinois. As a child, he moved with his family to the Grygla area. Later, they settled in Thief River Falls.

He was married April 14, 1924 in Thief River Falls to Nada Phoebe Olson.

Lane was a painter by trade. He also worked for a time for the Soo Line railroad. Since retiring from painting in 1974, he had been living with his children, both here and in other parts of the country.

Surviving are five sons: Burton and Russell Lane, both of Thief River Falls; Wallace, Moorhead; William in California and Richard in Maryland; a daughter, Mrs. Norman (Joyce) Whaley, Arizona; 15 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren, and two sisters: Mrs. Dorothy McCabe in Arizona, and Mrs. Marvin (Marjorie) Lindberg in Washington.

He was preceded in death by his wife, who died Nov. 28, 1977; three grandchildren, a great-grandchild, and two brothers.

Elin Larson Of St. Hilaire Dies On Wed.

Mrs. Elin Larson, 90, of St. Hilaire, widow of Carl Larson, died Wednesday evening at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital. She had been a resident of local nursing homes and the CNC unit for several years.

Funeral services for Mrs. Larson were held today (Monday) at 10:30 a.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city with Rev. Luther Anderson officiating. Interment was in the Clara cemetery, rural Thief River Falls. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

Philip Johnson, Brother Of TRF Residents, Dies

Philip Johnson, 64, of Little Canada, brother of Robert Johnson and Mrs. Edgar Hetteen, Thief River Falls, died July 14, following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services for Philip Johnson were held Monday, July 18, at 11:00 a.m., at the Fort Snelling Memorial chapel in Fort Snelling. Interment was in the Fort Snelling National cemetery.

Johnson, a former resident of Roseau, was a carpenter by trade.

He is survived by his wife, Muriel, a son, James, at home; three brothers; Ruben Johnson, Roseville; David, Roseau; and Robert, Thief River Falls; and three sisters: Mrs. Ted (Lynn) Yost, St. Paul; Mrs. Edgar (Hannah) Hetteen, Thief River Falls; and Mrs. Ray (Irene) Graham, Palm Springs, Calif.

He was preceded in death by his parents and two sisters.

Rodney Srnsky Dies July 20 In Accident

Funeral services for Rodney Srnsky, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Srnsky of St. Hilaire, were held Saturday, at 10:30 a.m., at the Black River Lutheran church, rural St. Hilaire. Rodney died Wednesday in a three-wheeler accident in Black River township.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the services. Interment was in the Black River cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

REFLECTI NS

He who fears he will suffer, already suffers because of his fear. How many times have you worried and fretted about something bad that might happen . . . only to have the problem solve itself or, never occur at all? We can become prisoners of our fears, spend our lives in anxious anxiety. Or, we can set forth bravely each day meeting each challenge to the best of our ability. It's better to compete and lose than never even to enter the game of life.

LIVESTOCK ENTRIES at the Pennington county fair included 130 cattle and calves, an increase of about 50 from a year ago, according to livestock superintendent LaVerne Hamre. This view of the livestock arena illustrates how it was necessary to create a center area to accommodate all of the cattle entered. Although the evening of entry day Thursday was extremely hot and humid, both temperatures and humidity moderated for the remainder of the fair and made barn conditions tolerable for livestock, exhibitors and visitors to the fair.

ANTIQUE CLASS for tractors under 6,500 pounds was won by Jim Younggren of Hallock during the tractor pull at the Pennington county Fair Saturday afternoon. His restored 1939 Minneapolis-Moline "U" also won the "Out of Field" class for tractors 5,500 pounds and lighter. Younggren just completed full restoration of the tractor last winter using all original parts. Additional photos from the tractor and pickup pull will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

SWINE SHOWMANSHIP champion at the Pennington county fair 4-H club division was Peter Nygard of the Sanders 4-H club with Jerry Bjerke of Silverton as the reserve champion showman.

Bemidji Forum Set On Gifted Education

More than ever, schools are offering advanced placement programs and programs for gifted and talented students, and more students than ever are enrolling in them. Yet, over half of our gifted students do not achieve their full potential in school.

These two findings were in the recent highly publicized report, "A Nation at Risk: The Imperative for Educational Reform," by the national commission for excellence in education.

This summer throughout Minnesota, a series of public forums will be held in order to obtain recommendations on gifted-education from concerned parents, teachers, and students. The Minnesota Advisory Council for the Gifted and Talented will use input from the forums to develop program models for high ability students in Minnesota's public schools.

Northwestern area meeting will be held Monday, August 1 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Ottertail Power Company, 320 7th Street, Bemidji. Chairman of the event is Laurie Wenger, phone 218-335-2059.

The public is invited to express their opinions about the kinds of courses that should be offered to kindergarten through 12th grade students who master the required curriculum easily and have the time and desire to learn more.

Should placement and grouping of students reflect academic progress rather than age? National commission on excellence in education report said so. Parents and other individuals interested in education can respond to this issue and others at these forums.

$4,122,700 Granted In SBA Loans

Celso C. Moreno, district director of the Minnesota district office of the small business administration, announced this week that $4,122,700 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 18 Minnesota companies, and $209,000 in economic development loans for three Minnesota companies in the month of June 1983. The projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 335 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 197 Minnesota firms through the SBA's in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives (SCORE), the small business development center, and the twelve colleges participating in the small business institute program.

Two loans, amounting to $100,000 were made to minority owned firms, making the minority component of the June portfolio nine per cent of the total loans and two per cent of the total loan dollars.

Motor Vehicle Bumper Height Law Revised

In an effort to eliminate a growing safety problem caused by the number of high bumper heights on Minnesota motor vehicles, state law regulating bumper heights was revised by the state legislature this year, according to state patrol chief Roger Ledding.

Maj. Glenn Gramse, the patrol's legislative liaison officer, said the law now sets maximum bumper heights at 20 inches for passenger type vehicles and 25 inches for light trucks and multipurpose vehicles. "It (the law) requires that all bumpers be within the maximum height limit or within six inches of the original manufactured height, whichever is less. It is important that measurement be made from the bottom of the bumper, exclusive of bumper attachments, Gramse said.

Law also prohibits the raising of an entire vehicle more than six inches from the original manufactured height of the vehicle.

State law regarding bumper heights has been amended several times in the past years. The law is contained in Minnesota statues, Section 169.73.

MN Homes For Aging Booklet Now Available

Minnesota association of homes for the aging has a free, new brochure designed to help those who are looking for a nursing home.

"Called "Choosing A Nursing Home," the brochure outlines the types of nursing homes and explores many of the emotional, financial and medical issues to be considered in the selection decision. Also included in the brochure is a list of more than 200 not-for-profit nursing homes across the state and their locations.

Persons wishing to receive a free copy of the "Choosing A Nursing Home" brochure should contact the Minnesota Association of Homes for the Aging, 2221 University Avenue, SE, Suite 425, Minneapolis, MN 55414; telephone (612) 331-5571.

Polaris Cuts Prices For Several Models

In what its public relations department calls "aggressive marketing", Polaris Industries, Inc., of Roseau has announced price cuts in several of its 1984 snowmobile models.

According to a release from the company, the Star economy model listing at $1,499 is the lowest priced full-sized snowmobile on the market. The Super Sport (SS) has been cut $350 to $2,549 and the Long Track cut by $200 to $2,899. Indy Trail model will be $3,449 and Indy 600 will be $4,649 — the same prices as a year ago.

Polaris reportedly gained five percentage points in market share last year and has executed its plan to pay its debt to Textron — former owner of the company — ahead of schedule. Polaris presently has no long-term debt.

While diversification to other products is actively being pursued, company president Hall Wendel says, "Snowmobiles are the backbone of this company and our number one priority."

Snowmobile clubs wishing to use the company's new product film are invited to contact the Polaris public relations office in Minneapolis, phone 612-542-0500.

Window Tint Law Toughened In Minnesota

Minnesota law regulating tinting of motor vehicle windows has been amended, effective August 1 of this year, according to state patrol chief Roger Ledding.

Primary effect of the legislation, according to Maj. Glenn Gramse, patrol legislative liaison officer, is to eliminate those very dark windows on many motor vehicles registered in the state. We believe many of the windows are too dark and restrict the vision of the driver, thus endangering his or her safety and the safety of others on the road."

Rear windows on vans and multi-purpose vehicles are exempt from the law.

Federal standards on window tinting are:

— That the minimum amount of light transmitted through windows on a standard type vehicle should be 70 per cent.

— That the minimum amount of light transmitted through a windshield and front seat side windows for all vehicles considered trucks is 70 per cent.

— Windows to the rear of the front seat area on vehicles classified as trucks are exempt from the federal light transmittance standard and exempt from Minnesota law if mirrors give an adequate view to the rear.

— Truck front seat side windows are allowed to have the same degree of tinting as are passenger type vehicles.

New Minnesota law does allow slightly darker windows than the federal standards by setting a minimum light transmittance requirement of 50 per cent for all motor vehicle windows except the windshield. The applicable Minnesota statute is 169.71.

MN Listing Of Produce Sales Now Available

To help consumers find the freshest possible Minnesota-grown produce, the Minnesota department of agriculture has compiled a directory of farmers' markets, roadside stands and pick-your-own farms. The free directory will guide you to outlets where farmers sell their produce directly to consumers from now until late autumn.

You can obtain a free directory by calling the Minnesota travel information center at 296-5029 (Twin Cities area). Minnesotans outside the metro area can phone 1-800-652-9747 toll free and ask for the travel information center. You can also write the Travel Information Center at 240 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert St., St. Paul, Minnesota 55101.

Directories are regional, so be sure to specify whether you want the Twin Cities metro area, southern, central or northern Minnesota directory. Or, ask for more than one area directory.

Participating libraries, chamber of commerce and county extension offices also have directories.

Civic organizations, businesses and other groups that wish to distribute large numbers of directories to their members can contact the Minnesota Trade Office, 90 West Plato Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55107 or 612-296-2259 for large orders.

There is no admission charge. Lunch will be served.

States Billed For High Food Stamp Errors

U.S. department of agriculture will bill six states for more than $8 million for food stamp error rates above an acceptable level, assistant secretary of agriculture Mary C. Jarratt said recently.

Jarratt said the states to be billed are: Arizona, Alaska, Colorado, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Florida. These states, along with five other states and Guam, were notified last November that their error rates for the reporting period April-September, 1981, were above the national error rate of 12.6 per cent, or their individual goal for that period.

"Each state was given the opportunity to request that their penalties be reduced or eliminated through the 'good cause' provision of the error rate sanction system," Jarratt said.

Examples of good cause provisions include efforts to correct the problems leading to high error rates which result in substantial reductions in those rates and significant caseload growth prior to or during a six month reporting period.

Guam and all the states notified submitted good cause requests. However, USDA's food and nutrition service determined that six states did not qualify because their good cause requests did not meet the department's corrective action standards. The amounts the states are being billed are: Arizona, $236,206; Alasska, $2,148,102; Colorado, $821,180, New Hampshire, $285,165; Connecticut, $1,338,545; Florida, $3,801,937.

States will have 30 days from billing to respond to their bill. The error rates are part of USDA's food stamp quality control system which measures the accuracy of a household's eligibility for benefits and determines whether the correct coupon allotment was issued to eligible households.

States are required by law to bring their food stamp error rates in line with the national average or, in some cases, to make substantial progress toward reaching the national average. Under the law, states can get enhanced administrative funding based on their error rate performance.

Three Local Students Get BSU Degrees

Three Thief River Falls students were among the 325 Bemidji state university students who completed undergraduate degree requirements during spring quarter.

Students receiving degrees from Thief River Falls were Jane Olson, who received a BA in music, and Mendy Huttleson and Yvonne Blodgett who both earned their BS in elementary education.

Supply And Need

"In the name of humanity, an international mechanism is needed to adequately compensate American farmers for what they produce beyond the needs of their cash markets and channel that bounty to the hungry of the world without regard for their ability to pay."

This statement is attributed to Joe Kramer, a broadcaster at Radio station KCMO in Kansas City, MO. Kramer says that ". . . to my simple mind, one of the great mysteries of our time is why there has to be a recession down on the farm.

"It all seems so unnecessary when one-third of the world's people go to sleep hungry of under-nourished every night," he adds. "We tend to view the world's hunger problem only in terms of the latest famine while it's actually a day-to-day plague on one and one-half billion human beings whose lives are being ruined by the lack of adequate nourishment."

He notes that American farmers are encouraged to produce but are victims of their own efficiency by creating surpluses beyond demand. "Somewhere in the formation of this dismal equation, demand in the economic sense has blocked out all thought of need in the humanitarian sense," he says.

"Should the starving millions of the world go without food because they can't pay for it? American farmers should be able to produce all of the food they're capable of growing within the limits of good conservation practices and there should be some kind of international apparatus to compensate them for their excess and distribute it where the human need exists.

"If the moral law of supply and need could somehow be substituted for the economic law of supply and demand, there would be no excuse for America's farmers not to prosper," he concludes.

Obviously Kramer has a tendency toward somewhat idyllic simplicity in a very complex and often antagonistic world. When nations seem intent on killing the people of other nations, it seems unlikely they would willingly cooperate in an international food for all program. How seemingly impossible it would be — even if the finances could somehow be found to pay for it — to try to administer a global feeding system.

We agree with Kramer that there is really no surplus of food. But we don't believe it is possible to formalize a structure where American farmers can grow all they want to produce and be paid for it from some huge pot of money accumulated from benevolent wealthy nations.

For one thing, the generosity of Americans which is taken for granted here is not a tendency in most other nations. For another, most nations do not give without expecting something in return — and that applies to the United States as well as other countries. Therefore a cooperative venture among some nations to help others would be unlikely at best.

But it is unfortunate that productive capabilities are not utilized when a need exists for the food which could be produced. "America has the God-given ability to produce food far beyond its own needs," Kramer states. "That ability should not be sinfully wasted."

River Of No Return

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

There lurks, somewhere in the nether regions of St. Paul, the notion that whenever the state government is a little short of cash, one needs only to assess what the politicians love to call "the larger corporations" to make up the difference between state income and state out-go.

This has a nice sound among some of the voting constituency, particularly those who consider all business persons as money-grasping, short-changing leeches feeding on the "working public." That is, those business persons in some other town whom they know not.

The description is not applied to the local gas station operator who everybody knows is just making ends meet, the guy who runs the hardware store and fixes your plumbing when it busts, or any of the dozens of small business owners in one's hometown who serve on committees to help the schools, churches, community projects, etc. When the politicians in St. Paul talk about taxing the corporations nobody thinks about the impact on the small, local business but that is exactly where it lands.

The backbone of the whole state economic and job pictures is essentially thousands of small businesses. And they are getting their brains knocked out.

There is a lot of to-do, when somebody like Jeno's ups and goes to Ohio or Florida to escape Minnesota's obsession with hammering business. There is consternation when 3M says "forget it, fellas, we are looking elsewhere". . . but these people can move. The little guy can't. If the taxes kill him, he just goes belly-up. The average small business is paying over 10 per cent taxes just on employees. Before any others. There are just an awful lot of businesses that simply do not net 10 per cent.

Here is what is happening in Minnesota: As more businesses leave and more fold up, the unemployment rate climbs. The state then ups the taxes on the remaining businesses to cover the rising unemployment and other entitlements. . . which, in turn, sends more businesses down the tube and with more unemployment. It is a self-liquidating process.

Some of the politicians in St. Paul point out that the rate of business failure and business exodus is slowing down. Surely it must, as there are fewer and fewer businesses left. In all probability, whoever is Governor by 1990 can proudly announce that "only one business left Minnesota this year."

No doubt, it will be the last one.

Sentencing Guidelines

Following editorial is from the Morris Sun:

Minnesota's prisons for adult males are expected to be full by 1985. What is the solution to the problem of crowded prisons? Let the prisoners serve shorter terms! Yes, folks, that is just what the state Sentencing Guidelines Commission has proposed.

It is amazing to think that prison crowding could have such a major effect on the state's law. Are public safety, deterrence of crime, and traditions of law less important than the number of beds available in our prison system?

In questioning the Commission's conclusion, we must assign the lion's share of the blame to the state's lawmakers. It seems that Minnesota's DFL-controlled legislature was more interested in remodeling the State Office Building than in providing for something as basic as public safety. After spending $19 million on the building, that houses most legislators' offices, the politicians neglected to appropriate needed funds for some less luxurious structures — the state's prisons.

But the legislature will have a chance to allot more funds for prisons before 1985. Yet the new, ridiculously lenient sentencing guidelines are scheduled to go into effect August 1, 1983. Unless the Guidelines Commission acts to delay implementation of the new guidelines, the legislature may have to be called into special session to overturn them.

As it is, Minnesota's sentencing guidelines are too lenient. If an individual with six or more felony convictions is convicted of second degree assault, his presumptive sentence is only a little over five years imprisonment. An individual with four felony convictions who is found guilty of second degree murder is supposed to receive a sentence of 243 months, just over 20 years. The new guidelines would reduce this to 205 months. Remember: most prisoners are paroled well before they have served their sentence.

The proposed new guidelines have been criticized by Minnesota District Judges, the Minnesota County Attorneys Association, Police Chiefs and County Sheriffs. Law enforcement officials know how difficult it is to protect the public when repeat offenders are released after short terms. If criminals cannot be rehabilitated, they should at least be isolated from society.

The legislature has a habit of appointing commissions to decide unpleasant issues. However, in the final analysis, the legislators must bear public responsibility for the state's laws. It may take a special session, but the legislature should act to stop the new sentencing guidelines from going into effect.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Wife: "This is the end! I'm going home to mother."

Husband: "Wait, I'll come with you. I'd like a good meal for a change."

"My father told me never to go into a burlesque house, or I'd see something I shouldn't. But I went anyway, and he was right."

"What did you see?"

"My father."

The wise guy went into a butcher shop and ordered a yard of pork. The quick-thinking butcher quickly wrapped up three pigs feet.

GOAT SHOWMANSHIP in the 4-H division at the Pennington county fair was won by Darren Panek of the Mavie 4-H club. Dairy goat interest is growing in the area and there were a number of entries in the 4-H goat competition this year.

Keeping Phone Rates Affordable

I just cosponsored a bill authoried by Senator Bob Packwood of Oregon that hopefully will keep phone rates affordable for everyone. It seems almost unbelievable, but in this time of fantastic technological advances in telecommunications, there is also a great number of requests for rate increases. And the meteoric rises in local rates may force many consumers to give up their telephone — a necessary tool in our daily lives — because they can no longer afford phone service.

This new bill should put some stability back into the system. Packwood says that giving up telephone service is not a threat to many lower income individuals, but also a threat to America's efficient national telephone network.

This is a confusing period for the telecommunications industry — AT&T is being reorganized, new technologies are emerging faster than we can keep track of them, and the FCC (Federal Communications Committee) is changing regulatory groundrules. The apparent effect of these changes is to shift much of the cost of maintaining the universal telephone network from the major users of the network to the residential telephone customers. If these policies continue, the result will be a destruction of universal service.

The purpose of this legislation is to:

+ make sure the basic telephone service, at reasonable rates, is available to all. This would be done by subsidizing rural and residential telephone service;

+ direct the FCC to have long distance phone companies pay local phone companies for the cost of starting and stopping long distance phone calls;

+ create a subsidy fund to ensure basic service at reasonable rates throughout the U.S. This Fund, the Universal Service Fund, will be paid a user fee by any non-local phone company using a local phone company as a connection. This fund would then be used to:

(a) pay any local company 90 per cent of costs over 110 per cent of the national average cost of serving residential customers. This would help rural phone companies in high cost areas;

(b) pay local phone companies in remote areas such as Alaska, whose costs are higher than 250 per cent of the national average cost, would get everything over 250 per cent back;

+ create a permanent Universal Telephone Service (State-Federal) Joint Board. It would give states an important role in the process which oversees and carries out the Funds' work;

+ place all interstate access costs on the long distance carriers;

+ give the FCC-jurisdiction over:

(a) charges imposed by local phone companies for access to the interstate network; and

(b) all long distance services, including those within a state;

+ give the FCC the ability to give back to states the power over access charges and long distance services;

+ punish, by a fine of up to $100,000, illegal bypass of the local phone network; and

+ direct the FCC and each state Utility Commission to make sure that every American has access to minimum basic telephone service.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I am writing concerning my reaction to the recent editorial concerning Christmas scenes and activities in public places. In my opinion this was a well written article concerning the views expressed and the basis for them very valid.

However, I felt the paragraph concerning the Jews could very well have been deleted. In the past the majority of Americans have condemned and often passed judgment on other nations for their persecution of the Jews. Our country has taken pride in the fact that we proclaim to respect and have consideration for every race and creed.

Physical pain is not the only torture that can be inflicted on other human beings. Sarcasm can often cut deeply into emotional fibre.

In race relations I believe we need to continually ask ourselves, "Who is my neighbor?"

Compassionately yours,
Estelle Grinde

Minnesota's Finest

I met Minnesota Teacher of the Year Tom Girtz of Staples while he was in Washington to be honored at a White House lunch given by the President.

Tom and his wife Andrea stopped by my office to say hello, and he told me an interesting fact: three other teachers at the lunch came from Minnesota and had taught in Minnesota schools before moving and becoming Teachers' of the Year from Wisconsin, Washington and South Dakota.

Now that says something about Minnesotans and our educational system!

One of the most tragic problems we must deal with in Congress is child support enforcement — or the lack of it. Of the almost 9 million single-parent families in the United States today, 90 per cent are headed by women. And statistics tell us that most of the fathers don't pay their court-ordered child support payments for their families.

When fathers don't meet their responsibilities to their children, the mother ends up paying alone. In half the cases, the mother must go on welfare, and the taxpayer assumes the father's child support obligations.

Divorce is especially hard on homemakers who suddenly find themselves competing for jobs in a labor market where they have no prepared skills. With a low-paying job and sole responsibility for raising the children, many women find they can't provide food, clothing, health care or other basic needs for their children. Child support payments are crucial to their children's well being.

An important part of one of my key legislative efforts this year is seeing to it that child support enforcement regulations are strengthened. My Economic Equity Act (S. 888) contains provisions which would do just that.

The responsibility for the children of this nation rests with both the mother and father. We must return that responsibility to those who have abandoned their duty to take care of their children.

Each senator and representative is allowed to nominate interested high school students to one of our four military academies. When I first came to the Senate, I nominated Mark Kamish of New Prague to the Army Academy at West Point. He just graduated this summer, and Lt. Kamish stopped by my office to say hello. He said it was a tough four years — but worth it! New Prague should be very proud!

Entering the Merchant Marine Academy this fall will be Teri Haugen of Thief River Falls — the second ever Minnesota woman in the Mercant Marine!

Any high school student who will be a senior in the fall may apply for one of the four military academies — West Point, the Naval Academy, the Air Force Academy or the Merchant Marine Academy by writing my office or the office of their congressman for an application.

Judge Modifies Border Towns' Phone Service

Minnesota public utilities commission (MPUC) has commended U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene on his decision to accept the MPUC's proposal to modify the local access and transport area (LATA) configuration for Northwestern Bell Telephone customers in Red River Valley border communities such as Fargo-Moorhead and Grand Forks-East Grand Forks.

"The MPUC's modification proposal adopted by Judge Greene will combine the previously established Brainerd and the Fargo LATA's," indicated commissioner Roger Hanson of Vergas. "There seems little doubt that this new configuration will necessitate the least costs and will bring inter-LATA competition and its benefits to the residents of this area most quickly," he continued.

"There has been a great deal of confusion that the MPUC's original proposal (which followed state boundary lines and was accepted by Greene) would have required toll charges between border communities accross the state line," Hanson said. "That would not have been the case," he pointed out, "but this new plan will certainly eliminate this concern."

The LATA configurations statewide (Minnesota has five LATA's) were established as a requirement of the American Telephone and Telegraph company (A.T. & T.) divestiture agreement with the U.S. department of justice.

Divestiture is scheduled to take place on Jan. 1, 1984. On that date, the LATA configurations will go into effect.

Interviewing Workshop Set For August 2

Employers in Northwestern Minnesota will have an opportunity to improve their interviewing skills by attending a workshop to be held on August 2 at the Best Western Inn in Thief River Falls.

One day session suggests ways for employers to conduct employment interviews so that they will be more likely to hire the right person for the right job.

Registration will be accepted by contacting adult education, Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; 681-5424 until July 26. Cost to participants is $20, with materials and lunch included. Workshop will be run from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., with registration beginning at 8 a.m.

Workshop is sponsored by the Greater Minnesota Private Industry Council, Inc. and co-sponsored by the Thief River Falls AVTI, Thief River Falls job training office, and the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce. It is conducted by Wilson Learning Midwest, Inc.

Ninth District Field Scrambled

Ninth District Class AA American Legion baseball tournament is scheduled to get underway Thursday at Moorhead, but pairings have yet to be announced for the six-team-double-elimination event that will run through Sunday.

It can be assumed that perennial power Moorhead will gain the tournament's No. 1 seed, but beyond that it's anybody's guess as to the order of positions. Detroit Lakes and Fergus Falls may be in head-to-head competition for the No. 5-6 spots, leaving Crookston, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls to bid for the No. 2-3-4 positions.

Going into the weekend, all three Northwest League rivals were remarkably close. Thief River Falls carried a 20-6-1 record into a scheduled doubleheader at Fergus Falls Saturday, which included an eight-game unbeaten streak that was kept alive with a 1-1 tie in Crookston Thursday.

Crookston, owning an eight-game winning streak before getting zapped by Moorhead 11-1 Wednesday, had a 13-8-2 record after Thursday's tie, called after nine innings because of darkness. Crookston's claim to an edge over Thief River Falls in the seeding procedure would be based on an early-season 6-2 victory here, plus Thursday's tie.

East Grand Forks, meanwhile, ran its record to 19-11 with its eighth straight win Thursday, an 11-0 victory over a Karlstad team that owns a 2-0 decision over Thief River Falls this season. East Grand Forks, though, lost twice to Thief River Falls this summer, 7-1 and 3-2. East Grand Forks had a Friday doubleheader at Moorhead and a Saturday game at Detroit Lakes planned for the weekend.

How they decide to seed the teams should provide an interesting meeting of coaches and team managers.

East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls and Crookston could all be involved in a first-place Northwest League tie, too, depending upon the results of a game tonight (Monday) sending East Grand Forks to Crookston.

While the six Class AA teams compete for Ninth District honors at Moorhead, the Ninth District Class A tournament will be running at the same time at Battle Lake, an eight-team, double-elimination affair matching the four sub-district champion and runner-up teams.

Class AA and Class A champions will then be matched in a 2-out-of-3 game series to determine the Ninth District representative to the 1983 American Legion state tournament at New Ulm Aug. 12-15.

Miscellaneous

+ Jerry Imgrund of Thief River Falls, a Brainerd Moose Lodge member, won the state Moose golf meet recently at Baudette. Imgrund shot the best two nine hole rounds of the tournament and never had a serious challenge as he finished with a six-over-par 114 for the 27 holes and a seven-shot victory margin over runner-up Roger Erickson of Baudette. The tournament at the Oak Harbor golf course included qualifying rounds on Saturday and the final 27 holes of the championship bracket on Sunday. Imgrund shot the best indivual round of the tournament on the first nine holes with a par 36. He finished with rounds of 38 and 40.

+ Former Northland community college golfer Jim Strandemo of Mahnomen, who recently completed his student-teaching assignment in Thief River Falls, was a third place finisher in the 1983 Minnesota State Amateur golf tournament completed last week at the Detroit Country Club in Detroit Lakes. Chris Perry of Edina, a 21-year-old Ohio State University student, won the event with a five-under-par 208, one shot lower than the 209 he posted in winning last year's state event played at the Town & Country Club in St. Paul. The title didn't come easy, though, for Perry who was six strokes off the pace after the first 18 and received challenges primarily from Strandemo and John Harris, a former PGA golfer from Roseau now living in Edina. Harris finished with a 210, two strokes off the pace with a strong 66 on Wednesday's final round. Strandemo finished with a 212 on rounds of 68-73-71. Perry toured the course in 73-67-68 while Harris went 75-69-66.

BASE RUNNER Kurt Muzzy of Nelson Implement ducked around the tag by Grygla Merchants catcher Tim Mostrom, who had trouble hanging onto the ball, anyway, to score on an infield ground-out in the fourth inning of Thursday's Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association Division I game. Nelson Implement, trailing 9-8, scored four times after the Grygla Merchants botched a possible game-ending double play in the top of the seventh to emerge a 12-9 winner. Nelson Implement made it a doubleheader sweep by beating the St. Hilaire Bears 4-3 in the second half of the split twinbill at the AVTI diamonds.

TRF 14-15-Year-Olds Win District Tournament . . .

Babe Ruth A Team In State Meet

Second Thief River Falls Babe Ruth baseball team qualified for state tournament play Saturday when coach Mark Harder's Babe Ruth A team earned championship honors at the Lake Agassiz District 7 tournament played at Warroad.

Thief River Falls' perfect 3-0 showing at the two-day, four-team, double-elimination tournament will send the squad to the 1983 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament, scheduled to open Friday in Edina.

A week earlier the Thief River Falls 13-year-olds won a District 7 title and are currently participating in the Babe Ruth Prep state tournament in St. Louis Park.

Thief River Falls entered the District 7 tournament as the No. 2 seed from the South Sub-District behind No. 1-seeded Red Lake Falls and opened against North Sub-District No. 1-seeded Roseau while Red Lake Falls drew North Sub-District No. 2-seeded Williams.

Both first round affairs featured easy wins for the south representatives as Thief River Falls handled Roseau 17-9 and Red Lake Falls drilled Williams 16-6 Friday. Thief River Falls then emerged as the tournament's lone first-day unbeaten team with a 3-2 decision over Red Lake Falls later that same afternoon.

Roseau eliminated Williams 15-6 in the loser's bracket Friday night then sidelined Red Lake Falls 9-1 Saturday morning to gain another shot at Thief River Falls that afternoon.

Thief River Falls won the title with a 7-5 victory, improving its record to 25-7.

TRF 17, Roseau 9

Thief River Falls sent 15 batters to the plate in the fifth inning, collecting 11 runs on eight hits and three Roseau errors en route to a 17-9 first round win Friday afternoon.

Roseau had scored three times in the top of the fifth to gain a 6-6 tie before Thief River Falls' offensive explosion in the bottom of the frame.

Tom Knoff and Quincy Lofberg were both 3-for-4 in Thief River Falls' 13-hit attack, while Richie Bendickson added two hits. Jeff Anderson was the game's winning pitcher, scattering eight hits, striking out seven and walking three.

Both sides were charged with five errors.

TRF 3, RLF 2

Troy Ausmus, a Thief River Falls draftee from East Grand Forks, struck out 11 as Thief River Falls edged Red Lake Falls 3-2 late Friday afternoon.

Thief River Falls picked up an unearned run in the third inning then scored twice in the top of the fifth to win it on an error and a two-out triple by Lee Hamre, plus a run-scoring double by Tom Knoff.

Red Lake Falls had an 8-5 base hit edge, but didn't score until the bottom of the sixth off Ausmus, who walked two and was backed by strong defense — one Thief River Falls error. Red Lake Falls misplayed two balls.

TRF 7, Roseau 5

Roseau pitching continued to take a beating from Thief River Falls bats in the tournament finals as Thief River Falls, after collecting 13 hits in the opening-round victory over Roseau, banged out 16 more in the 7-5 title game rematch.

Jeff Anderson was 3-for-4 at the plate to lead the attack, while Kory Joppru, Dave Onkka, Mike Kloety and Lee Hamre all had two hits each.

Down 2-0, Thief River Falls struck for runs on five hits in the bottom of the third inning when Joppru led off with a double, then with one out, Onkka, Kloety and Anderson had consecutive singles. A fielder's choice followed before Hamre stroked a two-run triple.

Onkka, the game's winning pitcher, had an RBI single in the third, while Joppru added a two-run single in the fourth.

Onkka gave up six hits, struck out three and walked four. Roseau had six of the game's eight errors, trailing 7-3 before getting three hits and two runs in the top of the seventh.

Thief River Falls players will be busy this week with fund-raising activity to cover the cost of their state tournament trip.

9-2 Win At Roseau; 1-1 Tie At Crookston . . .

TRF Legion Completes 1983 League Schedule

Both games ended prematurely because of darkness, but Thief River Falls completed its 1983 Northwest League American Legion baseball schedule with a 9-2 victory at Roseau Wednesday and a 1-1 tie at Crookston Thursday.

Thief River Falls ended with an 8-3-1 record this summer against Northwest League foes Crookston, East Grand Forks, Karlstad, Warroad, Roseau and Hallock. Final league standings haven't yet been announced.

Thief River Falls completed its 1983 regular season Saturday with a 5-1, 4-3 doubleheader sweep at Fergus Falls to finish 22-6-1 overall, 5-4-1 against Ninth District Class AA opposition.

TRF 9
Roseau 2

Thief River Falls took a 5-2 lead and turned it into a 9-2 cushion with a four-run seventh inning when Wednesday's game at Roseau was stopped by darkness with two out in the top of the seventh.

The two teams traded first inning runs. Ryan Drees drew a walk, stole second and scored on a two-out single by Kerry Wollin in the top of the inning. Roseau tied it in similar fashion in the bottom half of the inning when Sid Thompson walked and scored on a two-out double by Neal Feldman.

Drees also scored in the third inning with a lead-off single, an error on a ball hit by Tim Bottem, a wild pitch and an infield ground-out for an RBI by Brian Kemnitz. Second wild pitch of the inning scored Bottem for a 3-1 edge.

It became 5-1 in the fourth when Tim Nyland and Jim Hallamek singled and scored on a two-out double by Bottem.

Roseau scored an unearned run on an error in the bottom of the fourth before Thief River Falls wrapped it up in the seventh. Dean Brandon and Nyland had RBI singles in the inning, scoring Kerry Wollin, who had walked, and Kirk Jenson, who singled. An outfield error was tacked onto a single by Jeff Anderson for the final two runs, and the game was stopped at that point.

Crookston 1

Darkness again stopped play Thursday, this time leaving Thief River Falls and Crookston deadlocked 1-1 after nine innings of play.

The tie enabled both sides to maintain an unbeaten string — eight wins in a row for Crookston coming into the game and seven straight for Thief River Falls.

Crookston, a 6-2 winner in their first encounter here back on June 7, was the first to score, with Vince Boyle reaching base on a one-out infield error in the second, moving up on a walk and scoring on a two-out single by lead-off batter Pat Madigan.

Thief River Falls scored its run in the fourth when Tim Bottem struck out but reached base on an error by the catcher. Singles by Jim Hallamek and Kirk Jenson brought home the run. A passed ball moved both runners into scoring position with one out, but Crookston lefthander Craig Stahlecker then began a string that saw him retire 15 straight batters — eight of them on strike-outs — before a one-out error in the top of the ninth finally gave the visitors another base runner.

Crookston had a 9-3 base hit edge, but left seven runners stranded at either second or third base over the course of the game.

— Men's Slow Pitch —

Three weeks of regular season play remains in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association, and all three divisions have two-team races going down the pennant stretch.

E.T.'s Bees scored twice in the bottom of the seventh inning Thursday to pull out a come-from-behind 6-5 victory over Hamms-Pizza Hut to retain their first-place status in Division I, owning a half-game lead over idle American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods.

Pepsi Bottling Co., currently two games off the pace in third place, could make it a three-team Division I race with a win over E.T.'s Bees in a Tuesday match-up.

Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn maintained a two-game spread over runner-up Stone's Mobile Radio in the Division II standings with an 11-5 Thursday night win over First Federal Savings & Loan Association, with Stone's Mobile Radio having won an 11-10 ten-inning decision over The Blacksheep Wednesday.

Wennberg's Welding and Sound Level-Hardees were both easy winners to preserve their one-game difference in Division III.

HOME PLATE COLLISION occurred when Grygla Merchants base runner Paul Nordby tried to get by Nelson Implement catcher Scott Reed in the third inning of the Thursday night Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association Division I game. Nordby scored on the play as the collision prevented Reed from getting to the ball. Nelson Implement would up a 12-9 winner in a see-saw contest that found the winners scoring four times in the top of the seventh inning.

August Meet To Air Fishing, Tourism Goals

Congressman Arlan Stangeland and Canadian member of Parliament, John Reid, have called for an August meeting between Ontario and American officials to discuss tourism and fishing regulations.

"This is a product of our discussions in Minaki in mid June," Congressman Stangeland said. "Both sides are committed to replenishing our fishery sources. We ought to be able to reach a compromise on tourism regulations that will not cost each side both jobs and tourist dollars."

Stangeland and Reid agreed to work for a compromise during the U.S. and Canadian Inter-Parliamentary group meeting held at Minaki on June 17-20.

Reid, who represents the Kenora-Rainy River area in the Canadian House of Commons, has invited several Ontario officials to the August meeting: Allan Pope, Ontario's minister of natural resources; Leo Bernier, Ontario's minister of northern affairs; and Member of Parliament, Pat Reid.

Congressman Stangeland has asked Representative James Oberstar to join him at the meeting.

"The bottom line is jobs and dollars," Congressman Stangeland said. "The issue of fish resources is one that we can deal with. Then we will have to handle the questions of the regulations on tourism which Ontario has proposed."

At the Minaki conference, Congressman Stangeland presented the plan of the Minnesota Border Lakes coalition. It called for a cooperative effort involving U.S. portable hatcheries and Canadian rearing ponds for walleye pike, as well as restocking border waters with steelhead trout.

Population Of Rare Warbler Reported Well

Recently completed census of Michigan's rare (endangered) Kirtland's warbler indicates the bird is maintaining its current population levels, according to a joint announcement of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

"This year, 213 singing males were counted, compared to 207 in 1982," says Larry Ryel of the Michigan DNR. "Assuming the presence of one female for every male counted, that's total breeding population of 426 birds. Since 1971, census takers have counted an average of 206 male warblers a year, from 167 in 1974 to 242 in 1980. Current numbers, however, are well below the 432 males found in 1951 and the 502 found in 1961," says Ryel.

Some 50 workers from the Michigan DNR, U.S. Forest Service and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, plus several volunteers, located all but one of the birds in seven counties of northern Lower Michigan. The one exception was found in the west central Upper Peninsula. Similar searches in Ontario, Wisconsin and Minnesota failed to turn up any of the birds, Ryel says.

Kirtland's warbler species nests only in dense young stands of jack pine, which spring up naturally, following forest fires.

DNR hotline

1. Each year the DNR duck banders visit our lake to capture and band the young ducks. I seldom get a chance to visit with them on the purpose of their activity. Why are young ducks banded each year?

Our annual summer banding program is conducted to monitor the number of locally reared ducks that are shot in Minnesota and those that are shot elsewhere as well as to detect any changes that may occur as a result of changes in regulations. Currently 25-33 per cent of our average one million bird harvest is derived from locally reared ducks. Robert T. Eberhardt, Group Leader, Wetland Wildlife Populations & Research Group.

2. Why do we have to pay to swim, hike, etc. in state parks?

State and national parks are set aside to serve two purposes - to preserve the most beautiful and unique land areas of the state and nation, and to provide facilities for all people to enjoy them. If the cost of doing this were totally covered by general funds, all taxpayers would pay higher taxes. The user fee concept (park entrance permits, camping fees, etc.), diverts over half the state park operating costs directly to the people who use the parks and reduces the overall taxes paid by non park users. Thus while parks are being preserved for all people for the future, everyone contributes to that purpose, additionally those who actually use parks pay more for the services and day to day maintenance and upkeep. While there are varying opinions regarding this concept, it seems to be quite fair and is working. You are invited to visit your state parks. We as park employees appreciate your support and are there to give you the best service possible. Merle DeBoer, Regional Parks Supervisor.

TRF Swimmers Host Bemidji In Thursday Dual At Franklin Pool

Thief River Falls U.S.S. Swim Club will close out its 1983 home scheduled Thursday with a 6:30 p.m. dual meet vs. Bemidji at the Franklin middle school pool.

"The team is doing very well this year," explained coach Jody Dallmann. Thief River Falls hosted Crookston in a Thursday dual, the team's second home appearance of the summer schedule.

No team scores were kept. Thief River Falls' Michelle Puetz matched qualifying times for the McDonald's-Minnesota Junior Olympic championships — considered the state meet for U.S.S. swimming — at New Hope August 5-7 in the 100-yard backstroke and 50-yard freestyle.

Thursday's Thief River Falls-Bemidji dual will be sponsored by McDonald's Restaurant.

Mississippi River Fishing Offers Variety

Advantages of angling the Mississippi river where it forms the Wisconsin-Minnesota boundary are well-known, and there is no closed season for fish in the interstate waters.

As it winds from Hastings through Wabasha, Lake City, Winona and beyond, the river is unmatched in the diversity of game fish contained in the same waters. From basically the same area, the angler can catch walleyes, bass, northerns, bluegills, crappies and you-name-it.

In fact, one of the delights of fishing the river is that you never really know what species is going to hit your lure.

A relatively new game fish, the white bass, has become extremely plentiful in these waters during the last 10 years. Although it has long been considered a rough fish, anglers have found that its table qualities rival those of the famed walleye. It is also fun to catch. The white bass limit is 25, and it often takes only that many minutes to fill it.

But beyond the fishing is the opportunity to enjoy some of Minnesota's most delightful scenery. Bald eagles, swans, hawks, geese and ducks of all kinds contribute to the outdoor experience.

And if you like to combine your fishing with an interest in historic sites, the river abounds with the romance of the past. Cities such as Red Wing, Winona and Wabasha have deep historic roots as do the smaller river communities such as LaCrescent, Homer and Frontenac.

For information on attractions along the Mississippi river, contact the Minnesota Travel Information Center, 240 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert St., St. Paul, MN 55101 or call 1-800-652-9747.

Violation Of Wildlife Laws Has Penalties

A Wisconsin man was fined $2,500 and placed on three years probation recently for the unlawful possession of a jaguar skin smuggled into the United States. Arthur J. Pipp of Campbellsport, Wisconsin pleaded guilty to a one count information charging him with violation of the endangered species act for knowingly, willfully and unlawfully possessing the jaguar skin. Investigation revealed that Pipp traveled to Belize in 1979, shot the jaguar during a big game hunt, and smuggled the trophy into the United States.

Investigation was predicated on information supplied to U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) special agents by a concerned citizen. Agents credit the successful conclusion of the investigation directly to the cooperation they received from individuals that were contacted during the investigation and the hunting community in particular.

Jaguar, an endangered species, is protected by the endangered species act and other federal laws, including the Lacey act, the umbrella federal wildlife statute, which can result in terms of five years in prison and-or a $20,000 fine. The jaguar, thought to be the sixth largest ever taken and the largest shot since 1979, was forfeited by Pipp to the FWS, along with a Rocky Mountain bighorn sheep, unlawfully taken in Montana, a desert bighorn sheep, unlawfully taken in Mexico and smuggled into the United States, and an anteater, taken in Belize where it is specifically protected. The trophies, with an estimated value of $25,000, will be donated to scientific and educational institutions.

Besides the normal conditions of probation, special conditions of probation were imposed by U.S. Magistrate Aaron E. Goodstein in that Pipp may not leave the state of Wisconsin for the purpose of hunting without first obtaining the permission of a probation officer. If permission is obtained, Pipp, within 72 hours of his return, must report to the probation department the results of such hunt, including exhibiting all licenses, permits and documents to establish the legality of the hunt.

Black Powder Shoot Started At Brainerd

Sponsors invite you to take your muzzleloader down off the wall, dry out your powder and join the hundreds of blackpowder enthusiasts from across the United States who are expected to compete at the Paul Bunyan Festival's blackpowder rendezvous Sept. 23-25.

Lovers of these early firearms will appreciate the chance to return to the lifestyle and costumes of our early settlers, and to camp in authentic style on the grounds of the Brainerd International Raceway.

In addition to the primitive shooting contests, there will be knife and tomahawk throwing, displays of muzzleloaders, and the trading of buckskin clothing, handmade and antique guns, beadwork and handcarved items.

A trip to Mexico and a prime buffalo robe are being awarded to two lucky participants. Impressive prize list for competitors includes a Northwest Trade gun by Curly Gostomski, an 18-foot tepee cover, door and liner by R.K. Lodges, a 6-point Hudson Bay Blanket from Track of the Wold Company and $500 in prizes for the last 17 places.

Camping for buckskinners will be available from Monday, September 19, through Monday, September 26, with plenty of wood and water at the wooded campsites. Space has also been designated for "tin tepees." Just $10 is being charged per family at the gate for the full weeks' camping, which includes the buffalo feed.

For additional information contact July Vreeland at the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce, telephone 829-2838.

PRESSED AGAINST THE FENCE at Thief River Falls regional airport, someone shouted "Welcome to Thief River Falls Charley," and Charley Pride broke away from the news media crews which had met him as he got off the aircraft and went to greet his fans. Pride, who had just flown in from Winona, reported that he wasn't used to getting such a big welcome when he arrived at an airport. He accepted a Thief River Falls T-shirt from a fan and spent several minutes shaking hands and signing autographs before being escorted to the fairgrounds to set up for the evening performances. Paid attendance at the two shows on Friday evening was reported to be about 2,800 people, raising $30,512, which was estimated to be approximately the amount spent in arranging the show. Fans who waited after the second show reportedly kept the country music star signing autographs until 1:30 a.m.

In Loving Memory
In loving memory of Dean Kiesow, who passed away four years ago July 27, 1979.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of a loved one laid to rest
And while he sleep a peaceful sleep,
His memory we shall always keep.
Sadly missed by his parents, brothers and sisters.

School Board Proceedings

July 25, 1983
Regular Board Meeting
Ind. School Dist. No. 564
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
June 27, 1983

A Regular Board Meeting of Independent School District No. 564 was held at 8:00 p.m. on June 27, 1983 in the Board Room of the School District Service Center.

The following Board members were present: Arnt Aune, Archie Cameron, Myrle Carlson, Hank Hallstrom, Larry McDowell, Greg Pribula, and Harry Sjulson. Also present was Robert Block, Superintendent.

Chairman Harry Sjulson called the meeting to order at 8:00 p.m. and Clerk Arnt Aune established that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the Minutes of the June 13, 1983 Regular Board Meeting. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by M. Carlson to approve the bills as submitted. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by H. Hallstrom to adjust the 1982-83 K-12 Revenue budget from $7,269,694 to $7,282,314. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by M. Carlson to adjust the 1982-83 K-12 Expenditure budget from $7,712,450 to $7,667,724. Motion carried unanimously.

Following a presentation by Harry Nelson, Business Manager, a motion was made by L. McDowell and seconded by H. Hallstrom to set the tentative 1983-84 K-12 Revenue budget at $7,907,058 and the 1983-84 K-12 Expenditure budget at $7,556,107. Motion carried unanimously.

The projected K-12 fund balance for June 30, 1983 will be approximately $121,000 and for June 30, 1984, approximately $401,000.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by G. Pribula to set the tentative 1983-84 AVTI Revenue budget at $3,038,884 and the 1983-84 AVTI Expenditure budget at $3,038,388. Motion carried unanimously.

By consensus, the Board agreed to use the same form as was used last year to evaluate the Superintendent. A form was also agreed upon for Board members to evaluate themselves. Both will be used to point out concerns and give direction.

A motion was made by M. Carlson and seconded by L. McDowell to approve the following resolution:

WHEREAS, the Congress of the United States has "in recognition of the Special Education needs of children of low-income families and the impact that concentrations of low-income families have on the ability of educational agencies to support adequate educational programs, Congress hereby declares it to be the policy of the United States to provide financial assistance to local educational agencies serving areas with concentrations of children from low-income families to expand and improve the educational programs by various means (including preschool programs) which contribute particularly to meeting the special education needs of educationally deprived children", (P.L. 89-10, Title I of Section 201).

WHEREAS, School District No. 564, Thief River Falls, Minnesota declares its intention to carry out the policy of the Congress of the United States by developing projects in concert with current State and Federal Title I Regulations and Guidelines to expand and improve the educational programs by various means which contribute particularly to meeting the special educational needs of the educationally deprived children that attend school in the District.

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that School District No. 564 apply for financial assistance available under Title I P.L. 89-10, as amended, and that Glenn Espe, as appointed by the Superintendent, be named as the Local Agency Representative and be directed to execute and file application(s) for and in behalf of the School District and otherwise act as authorized representative of the School District in all activities related to P.L. 89-10 Title I of Section 201.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that Glenn Espe, as appointed by the Superintendent, be named as the Title I contact person.

Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by L. McDowell to approve the purchase of a 25x140 foot section of Lot 17, Block 4 of the Porters Addition, City of Thief River Falls, for a maximum of $1,200. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by M. Carlson and seconded by A. Aune to renew the Board of Education accident travel policy with Northern Employers Agency effective July 26, 1983. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by L. McDowell to approve the approximate location for handicapped playground equipment as noted and on file in the Superintendent's Office. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by G. Pribula and seconded by M. Carlson to accept the bid of Lee Plumbing and Heating in the amount of $14,340 for the underground fuel tank on Alternate II for an 8,000 gallon tank. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by A. Aune and seconded by H. Hallstrom to accept the bid of Interstate Brands Corporation for bread and buns for the 1983-84 school year. Motion carried unanimously.

A motion was made by H. Hallstrom and seconded by A. Cameron to accept the bid of Bridgeman Division of Land O'Lakes, Inc. for milk for the 1983-84 school year. Motion carried unanimously.

Ross Elected Northern Crop Council Head

Ed Ross, a farmer from Fisher and chairman of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, has been elected chairman of the Northern Crops council, governing board for the Northern Crops institute. Ross replaces George Sinner of Casselton, N.D. who just completed the maximum allowed two consecutive terms as chairman.

Elected vice chairman of the Northern Crops council was George Howe, a farmer from Casselton, N.D., who replaces outgoing vice chairman Wes Tossett of Lansford, N.D. Howe is also chairman of the North Dakota Wheat commission.

Northern Crops institute is the demonstrational and promotional facility constructed for the purpose of encouraging sale and utilization of crops grown in the Northern region, including spring wheat, durum, barley, sunflowers, dry edible beans, potatoes and sugar beets. Although located on the campus of North Dakota state university in Fargo, the institute is regional in nature with support received from commodity groups on both the North Dakota and Minnesota side of the Red river, as well as the wheat promotion organizations in Montana and South Dakota.

In addition to Ross and Howe, the other Northern Crops council members include: Warren Hart, representing the North Dakota sunflower commission; George Sinner, representing the Red River Valley sugar beet growers association; Jim Johnston Sr., representing the Red River Valley potato growers association; Wes Tossett representing the North Dakota wheat producers association; Jim Howe, representing the National Barley Growers association; Leon Haskins, representing the South Dakota Wheat commission; Jerry Thuesen, representing the Montana wheat research and marketing committee; Sam Kuhl, general manager of the North Dakota mill in Grand Forks; George Boos, senior vice president of Harvest States cooperatives in St. Paul; Kent Jones, North Dakota commissioner of agriculture; and North Dakota State University president, Laurel Loftsgard.

MN Delayed Jobless Checks Now Mailed

Unemployment insurance benefit checks issued to approximately 5000 jobless Minnesotans last Thursday were mailed July 19 by the Minnesota department of economic security.

Eugene Sampson, unemployment insurance assistant commissioner, said a delay in the department's mailing procedure had caused the checks to be withheld.

Checks inadvertently were being held for mailing at a later date, Sampson said. Sampson said he reviewed the cause of the delay and corrected the procedure.

"Our mailing process involves a series of carefully monitored steps and this delay has not occurred before," Sampson said.

He said the department realized the checks were late Monday afternoon after people began calling area offices and asking why their checks hadn't arrived.

Delay involved only those checks issued last Thursday, Sampson said. The department mails benefit checks daily.

State Records 8.1 Per Cent Jobless Rate

Although Minnesota's unemployment rate increased .2 per cent from May to June, "the jump was only half of what we expected at a time when so many students and recent school graduates traditionally begin looking for work," Commissioner Barbara Boerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security reported.

Minnesota's unemployment rate in June was 8.1 per cent, compared to 7.9 per cent in May and 7.8 per cent in June 1982. The comparable national unemployment rate for June was 10.2 per cent.

Department analyst Wayne Graner said that since 1970 the average jump in the unemployment rate between May and June is four-tenths of a point, twice what occurred this year.

"The lower jump could have resulted from people staying out of the workforce because they assumed the jobs weren't there," Graner said. "But this increase is temporary. I think the general trend of the unemployment rate is going to be downward."

Both employment and the labor force increased from May levels, but at a slower than average pace, Graner said. "Furthermore, the labor force and employment remain substantially below year-ago levels," he said.

Compared to June a year ago, the size of the Minnesota civilian labor force decreased by 2.1 per cent; the number of employed persons decreased by 2.4 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers increased by 1.1 per cent.

Minnesota's labor force in June was 2,194,100 persons, up 48,200 from May and down 48,000 from June a year ago. Number of unemployed persons in Minnesota in June was 176,700, down 6,900 from May and up 1,900 from June a year ago.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $375.31 in June for working an average of 39.3 hours at $9.55 per hour.

In June 1982 production workers were paid average weekly earnings of $357.77 for working an average of 39.1 hours at $9.15 per hour.

Unemployment rate pertains to the entire labor force and is not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefit payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

Summerfest Activities Continue Through Sun.

Jaycee Summerfest activities continue through this week, with numerous events scheduled daily.

Six clues have now been released to the location of a $100 treasure hidden somewhere within the city by Cluemaster Don Grabanski. They are: (1) The fair is gone but the treasures are still here; (2) Genies don't like it; (3) Remember public property; (4) There is always a reason to lead you there; (5) Don't go beyond the outer limit; and (6) Bikes are used often.

Thursday will be Crazy Days in Thief River Falls with merchants offering special sidewalk sales and in-store bargains. In addition, the Jaycee dunking stand will be located on LaBree Avenue, offering chances to get some prominent local people wet. Tennis tournaments start also on Thursday.

Water fights will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday on Second Street, just north of St. Bernard's Catholic Church. Registration will begin at 7 p.m. with four person teams attempting to move a suspended volleyball past the competition using water hoses supplied by the Thief River Falls fire department. Entry fee is $10 per team, with trophies awarded to each team member on the first and second place teams. Rundell Electric team will be defending their title against all comers.

Another Thursday event will be a country-western dance contest at 8 p.m. at the Elks club.

Friday events will include continuations of the treasure hunt and the tennis tourney, with racquetball tourney and golf tourneys beginning. In addition, bicycle motocross races will be held at 6:30 p.m.

Saturday evenings will include a "Streakers Challenge" foot race from noon to 1 p.m.; a parade starting at 1 p.m. at the Floyd B. Olson park; a three-wheeler race at 3 p.m. at the fairgrounds; and the Miss Thief River Falls pageant at 8 p.m. at Lincoln high school.

Sunday will be one of the biggest days of the Summerfest events. Canoe races will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Smiley Bridge; and milk carton boat races will be held at the Eighth Street landing at 1 p.m. Events scheduled by the Jaycee women in the vicinity of the beach will include an ice cream social at 1 p.m. with children's games for ages 12 and under; pet show starting at 2 p.m. (show will be cats and dogs only, with all animals required to be on a leash and owners responsible for cleaning up after them). Tricycle and hot wheels races will be held at 3 p.m. for children aged three to seven. Cycles will be furnished.

Fishing tournament is scheduled from noon to 4 p.m., with registration until 1 p.m. at Bill LaFave park. Entry fee will be 50 cents, with prizes awarded for the biggest walleye, biggest northern, most unusual catch and other miscellaneous categories. Deadline for weigh-in of fish is 4 p.m.

Barbecue and corn on the cob feed is scheduled from 4 to 7:30 p.m. near the swimming beach and the evening will be climaxed with a fireworks display at approximately 10 p.m.

The Driver Is A Lady . . .

Jan Backlund Happy In Harness Racing Effort

by Marvin Landin
Times Editor

Racing harness horses is not as simple as hopping on a sulky and grabbing the reins. A thorough knowledge of the sport is necessary to even qualify for a racing license, and many intricacies of the sport can only be acquired by actual experience on the track.

Jan Backlund of Kandiyohi was the only female driver at the harness races conducted Wednesday evening at the Pennington county fair, but she is no novice to the sport. There are other women drivers around but they are few in number, and most don't have Jan's experience in running well over 350 races in 12 years of driving.

"It's a lot of work, really," Jan explained prior to the evening race program here. "First of all it takes a lot just to get a license to drive at county fair tracks. Then it takes a lot of driving to get to know the horses and how they perform. There is a lot of effort required in maintaining the horses, caring for them and training them. And it takes a lot of time to travel around to the different races which are spread throughout several states."

IT'S DIRTY WORK, but Jan Backlund doesn't mind doing it — especially if she can finish in front of the pack. The Kandiyohi lady has driven several hundred heats of harness horse racing in the last dozen years, winning her share of races. She won two of the six heats of racing at Thief River Falls last Wednesday night, but the powdery dry track conditions left a cloud of dust hanging in the air.

Miss Newfolden Pageant Plans Now Underway

Marshall county central Jaycee Women will hold an organizational meeting for the Miss Newfolden pageant Wednesday, August 3 at the Newfolden community center at 7:30 p.m.

Any young women entering the high school senior class through age 25 in the Newfolden or Strandquist school districts is invited to attend. Registration as a contestant must be made on or before August 3.

To register or for more information call 874-3243 or 874-4501.

NW Library Slates Three Films Monday

Northwest regional library will show three films on Monday, August 1 at 2 p.m.

"The Golden Fish" is a children's film about a boy winning a fish at a Paris street fair. The unlikely pair soon develop a joyous kin of communication.

Crow and raccoon escape from their home to play havoc in the village in "Crafty Animal Caper."

Thousands of glass beads are arranged and manipulated into shapes of mythical and real creatures in "The Bead Game."

Say Infestation Of Armyworms Not Widespread

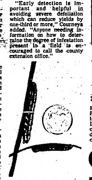
A rather complete survey of the county on Thursday and some follow up spot checks on Tuesday confirmed earlier reports of heavy armyworm infestations in certain townships of Pennington and Marhsall county, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director.

A thorough checking of a limited number of fields in 15 townships scattered throughout the county by University of Minnesota crop pest management scouts and consultation with Centrol scouts revealed "hot spots" in the Cloverleaf — Silverton township area of Pennington county and Grandplain — Moylan township area of Marshall county.

While widespread infestation does not appear likely, Courneya once again urges farmers to check their fields regularly and determine as accurately as possible if the armyworms are present in sufficient numbers to warrant the investment in spraying. Five larvae per square foot on an average throughout the field or major portions of the field can cause losses in excess of the cost of spraying, Courneya indicates.

"I am aware of some fields that had severe infestation and required chemical control immediately to avoid nearly total crop loss," Courneya said. "I am also aware of some fields that were sprayed unnecessarily because accurate counts covering the entire field were not taken and the cost of spraying was not warranted.

"Early detection is important and helpful in avoiding severe defoliation which can reduce yields by one-third or more," Courneya added. "Anyone needing information on how to determine the degree of infestation present in a field is encouraged to call the county extension office."



ARMYWORMS are present in varying extent in Pennington and Marshall counties but are not a widespread threat to crops, according to Terry Courneya, Pennington county extension director. The larger worm in the photo above (shown in actual size) would feed for about another week before going into its dormant stage.

Crop Varietal Plot Tour Set

Annual guided tour of the Pennington county varietal demonstration plots is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Friday. Sponsored cooperatively by the Pennington county extension service and county crop improvement association, the plots are located one-half mile south of St. Hilaire on highway 32.

County extension director Terry Courneya indicates there are 33 different varieties of small grain and soybeans in the plot that will provide a good comparison of nearly all the varieties available to farmers for use in this area.

Differences in maturity, straw strength, disease resistance and head size are clearly visible, Courneya said. Included in the plot work this year again is a herbicide trial on wheat which compares the cost and effectiveness of 20 different herbicides for use on wheat and other small grains.

County and area extension agents will be present from 7:30 until dark to discuss varieties and questions.

Chamber of Commerce Restructured . . .

Select Jane Mackenroth New Executive Director

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce beginning on Monday is Jane Mackenroth of Thief River Falls. She was selected for the newly-created position by the chamber's board of directors last week, and will handle many of the duties previously administered by Jerry Sandstrom.

Continuing their cooperative venture directed toward increasing jobs in the Thief River Falls community and restructuring the office operation, the local chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated have taken several significant actions in the past week.

Jane Mackenroth was selected by the board of the chamber of commerce to fill the newly-created position of executive director when the board met last week. She began her duties on Monday. Mackenroth will handle most of the duties previously conducted by Jerry Sandstrom, who continues as executive vice president of the chamber but will devote most of his efforts to a new role as executive director of Jobs Incorporated.

Mackenroth will have her office on the main floor of the Soo Line depot building. Sandstrom has arranged his office on the second floor of the building in space formerly used by the chamber of commerce board of directors. In continuing his role as executive vice president of the chamber of commerce, he will serve in an advisory capacity to the new director.

Board of directors of Jobs Incorporated met on Tuesday of this week and reached an agreement on the format for policies and procedures under the new job development arrangement, according to Ev Ault, chairman of the Jobs Incorporated board. The format includes job descriptions to assist in orderly operation of the restructured program.

Ault said that the organization is also developing a list of resource people who are qualified and experienced in various facets of the community or business and industrial specialties. These people will be on call by Sandstrom to work with him in meeting clients or providing information as it may be advantageous to the community.

Sandstrom said he is scheduled to meet August 6 in Winnipeg with vice consul Harold Foster at the American consulate there to discuss his "prospecting" in that Canadian city. He said he expects to build on the foundations laid in an initial meeting last year and to receive assistance in forming contacts with Canadian

RESTRUCTURING of the administration of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated has resulted in the naming of Jerry Sandstrom as executive director of Jobs Incorporated. He will continue as executive vice president of the chamber of commerce in a supervisory and advisory role, but devote most of his time to job development through Jobs Incorporated.

Council OKs Negotiation For Alternate Landfills

Thief River Falls city council approved a resolution authorizing the sanitation committee to pursue negotiations with the city of Karlstad and Roseau county to utilize their sanitary landfills for dumping of Pennington county garbage. That action was taken at their regular meeting last night in council chambers at city auditorium, following the announcement that the Pennington county board of commissioners had rejected a contract to haul garbage to the incineration site planned at Bagley.

That announcement was made by Alderman Ken Murphy, chairman of the sanitation committee, who noted that the committee had recommended rejection of the Bagley contract on the basis that it was "just not economically feasible at this time." Murphy said that Sanitation Commissioner Bob Jablinske, Les Nordhagen (who hauls garbage from outside the city), and himself had each separately calculated the costs for hauling to the Bagley site, and had come up with nearly identical figures. He said that due to increased tipping fees and transportation costs, it would cost the city approximately $83,000 more per year, over the present cost to haul to the landfill at Gentilly. Cost to haul to Gentilly is presently about $21,000 a year. He added that it would cost an equal amount for the garbage from the rest of Pennington county, hauled by Nordhagen.

Since Polk county, which operates the Gentilly site, has been losing money on it at the rate of $20,000 per year, and has now agreed to contract with the Bagley incineration project, Murphy noted that Pennington county could expect to be closed out of the Gentilly site within two years. He also noted that tipping fees at Gentilly were expected to increase dramatically in the next two years.

Murphy said that preliminary discussion with the representatives of the Karlstad and Roseau county landfills indicated that they were both receptive to having Thief River Falls haul its solid waste there. Although use of the Karlstad site is currently restricted to the city only, due to a two year life expectancy, the city council is presently discussing whether to close or expand it. He noted that they had discussed the possibility of Thief River Falls providing in-kind services such as heavy equipment in exchange for reduced tipping fees.

The Roseau county site at Salol has already been used by Thief River Falls, during spring breakup when the Gentilly site became too hard on equipment. Using cost

John Lovlys Get Award For Beautification

Mr. and Mrs. John Lovly or rural Goodridge are winners of the annual farmyard beautifucation contest sponsored by the Pennington soil and water conservation district. The Erling Dahlen's of rural Goodridge received honorable mention.

Each year a different area of the county is eligible for judging. The townships in this year's contest were Goodridge, Reiner, Star and Hickory.

Crazy Days To Hit T. R. Falls This Thursday

Crazy prices, crazy costumes, crazy auction, crazy sidewalk sales and a number of special activities are included in the program for Crazy Days in Thief River Falls on Thursday. Sidewalk sales will continue throughout the day as stores maintain opening hours until 9 p.m.

Sponsored by the Retail Business association (RBA) of the chamber of commerce with Jan Hoff as general chairman, Crazy Days will include a costume contest for store employees. Prizes of $40 for first, $30 for second, $25 for third, $15 for fourth and four $5 prizes for fifth will be offered.

Free films for children ages one to five years will be shown at the Northwest regional library from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m. The KTRF and KSNR crazy auction will take place at 4 p.m. on LaBree avenue and the Jaycee dunking stand will be operating downtown throughout the day.

Children's Hot Wheels races will be conducted beginning at 1 p.m. at the Kmart parking lot with classes for boys and girls ages four to five and six to seven. Hot Wheels units will be furnished and trophies will be awarded. Registration will begin at 12:30 p.m.

Sidewalk food stands will be operated and the two-hour parking limit will be waived for the day so that shoppers need not be concerned about overtime parking.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

40th Anniversary Is Observed By Paul Grandboises

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grandbois were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary on Sunday, July 3, at their farm home in rural Red Lake Falls.

The event was hosted by their children and their families: Mr. and Mrs. James (Betty) Spurrier, Prior Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Ron (Pat) Woods and Missey, Portage, Pa.; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Grandbois, Dee Dee, Dori, Devon and Danielle of rural Red Lake Falls.

Special guests were Mrs. John Grundhaus, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Henry Schotten, Sparta, Wis., who were attendants at their wedding on June 22, 1943.

Centering the serving table for the open house was a three-tiered anniversary cake, iced in white, decorated with red roses, and topped by a lace and floral ornament. The cake was made and served by a daughter-in-law Kathy Grandbois, and Lois Stensrud, Thief River Falls, a friend. Elveria Hall, a sister-in-law, poured the coffee.

At the guest book was Ann Gauthier. Granddaughters: Dee, Messy and Dori, were at the punch bowl.

Relatives and friends attending were from Homer, Alaska; Hanover Park, Ill.; Tacoma, Wash.; Williston, N.D.; Cudahy, Lovingston and Sparta, Wis.; the Minneapolis area, Moorhead, Buffalo, Fosston, Lengby, Thief River Falls, St. Hilaire and Red Lake Falls.

Wheeler-Gerszewski Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, Richfield, announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Edward Gerszewski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gerszewski of Warroad and formerly of Holt.

Miss Wheeler is a graduate of Holy Angels Academy high school and the University of Minnesota. She is employed by Midwest Life Insurance company in Minneapolis.

Gerszewski is a graduate of Newfolden high school and the Minnesota School of Business, Minneapolis. He is employed by Thermo King corporation in Minneapolis.

A November 19th wedding at Assumption Catholic church in Richfield is planned.

Descendants Of Emil Larsons Meet At Fridley

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Anderson and Todd hosted a family get-together on Sunday, July 17, at their home in Fridley.

Those attending were descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emil Larson, who lived in this area. Representing the family were Anderson's mother, Lillian Anderson, and Dora Pearson, both of Thief River Falls, and Irene Christenson, Minneapolis; all daughters of the Emil Larsons and Myrtle Larson, Thief River Falls, a daughter-in-law.

Others present were Melvin Melin, also of Thief River Falls; Louette and Harold Busse and Marion DeBoer of Crookston; Elayne and Arne Haparanta, Newton, Iowa; and Jody Haparanta, Vinton, Iowa;

Also Jim and Tina Diede, Bonnie and Harold Larson, Jeff and Jay; Miss Melodie Luck, Ann and Merle Larson, Angela, Eric and Mike; Ione and Roger Ralstad, Dawn FeDora, Marlene Christenson and Jane, Shirley Larson, Dorothy and Gordon Witzel and Julie and Karen and Dennis Hicks, all of the Twin Cities area.

The rain hampered the outdoor activities planned. A social afternoon was spent with a five o'clock picnic supper served in the garage.

Robert Davidsons to Note 24th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J Davidson, Rt. 3, Thief River Falls, will be celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary on Saturday, August 6, at an open house at their home. Hours will be from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m.

All friends and relatives are welcome to attend.

Gerinda (Gerry) Nelson Open House Set at Holt

Open house honoring Gerinda (Gerry) Nelson on her 70th birthday will be held Sunday from 7:00 to 10:00 p.m., at the Village hall in Holt.

Yvonne Marie Sletten Weds Gary James Vad

Mr. and Mrs. Gary James Vad are at home in Grand Forks, N.D., following an exchange of marriage vows at Trinity Lutheran church in this city, and a wedding trip to Montana, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The bride, the former Yvonne Marie Sletten, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sletten, rural Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Vad, rural Oklee.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the double-ring ceremony attended by approximately 275 relatives and friends. At the organ was Dorothy Larson. She played the traditional wedding march as the bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. Vocalists were Jody Peters, Goodridge, a cousin of the groom, and Gene Arveson, Trail, a brother-in-law of the groom. Gelene Lundeen, Oklee, a cousin of the groom, was pianist. Selections sung were "If," "Through the Eyes of Love," as the bride and groom lit the wedding candle; and the duet "Colour My World," as the couple knelt at the altar. The concluding selection, "Let Us Climb the Hill Together," was sung by Arveson.

Candelabra and floor-vases of cut flowers graced the chancel for the two-o'clock ceremony.

The bride was attired in a white floor-length gown featuring a fitted bodice with intricate bead work, long, sheer lace sleeves gathered into cuffs, and a Queen Anne neckline accented with lace. Complementing the gown was a lace, tiered skirt that flowed into a cathedral length train. Her triple-tiered, walking-length veil of bridal sheer was held by a profile headpiece. She carried a cascade of red roses, in various sizes, accented with lace, babies' breath and white ribbon streamers. The flowers in her bouquet, like all those at the wedding, were made by the bride. Her pearl necklace was a gift from the groom.

Michelle Sletten attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Julie Arveson, Oklee, sister of the groom, Sharon Loerzel and Debbie Warne, friends of the couple. Their hoop-styled gowns of light pink taffeta with an overlay of corresponding organza, were styled in off-the-shoulder fashion accented with ruffles. The gowns, designed by the bride, were sewn by the bride, Debbie Wedger and Julie Arveson.

The flower girl Maria Austad, Oklee, wore a similar gown, sewn by her mother, Joyce Austad. She carried a basket of assorted flowers. Her flowers matched the flowers accenting the red roses on the lace fans carried by the bridesmaids. All attendants wore identical necklaces, their gifts from the bride.

Best man was Joel Stolaas, Oklee, a cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were friends: Allan Vettleson, Oklee; Kevin Oehler, Fergus Falls; and Gary Olson, Grand Forks, N.D. They wore gray tuxedos with tails, gray ascots and red rose boutonnieres. The groom's all-white attire included a tuxedo with tails, matching the attire wore by the ring-bearer, Bryan Arveson, Oklee, a nephew of the groom.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Stolaas, Oklee, and Inga Vad, Thief River Falls, grandparents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stano, Warren, great uncle and aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Rood, godparents of the bride, and Orlan and Clarice Stolaas, and Norman and Ione Nelson of Oklee, godparents of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sletten wore a rose colored floor-length gown with a matching jacket. The groom's mother was attired in a lilac colored gown. Their corsages were of red roses and mixed flowers. Red roses were pinned on the lapels of the gray tuxedos worn by the fathers.

At the reception that followed, host and hostess were Orlan and Clarice Stolaas, Oklee, uncle and aunt of the groom. The groom's cousins, Kim Nelson, Anita Hanson and Sandie Nelson, all of Oklee, were at the guest book and punch bowl.

The serving table was centered with a four-tiered wedding cake with each tier supported by Grecian pillars. To correspond with the bride's chosen flower, the cake was decorated with red roses and was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Cutting and serving the cake was Mabel Sletten, Thief River Falls, and Betty Sandeen, Oklee, aunts of the bride and groom, respectively. Pouring coffee were Ardith Stenen, Thief River Falls, and Ione Nelson, Oklee, also aunts of the bride and groom.

Gift bearers were the bride's nephews: Kelly and Keith Martinson. The bride's brother and sister-in-law, Gene and Cathy Sletten, were at the gift table as was Colleen Paulson, also of Thief River Falls. Marybeth Hince pinned the flowers and Connie Rutz, Natali Anderson and Kim Mack served as waitresses. In the kitchen were members of the Trinity ALCW.

A wedding supper at the groom's parental farm followed for close friends and relatives.

The groom's supper which followed the rehearsal was held at Florence's cafe for the wedding party and their families. Hosting the supper were the parents of the groom.

Friends and relatives attending the wedding were from Montana, Wisconsin, North Dakota, the Iron Range, southern Minnesota, and this community.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Lincoln high school. She is attending University of North Dakota and is employed in Grand Forks at the Village Inn. The groom, a 1979 graduate of Oklee high school and a 1981 graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI, auto body department, is employed by Rydell's Chevrolet in Grand Forks, N.D. Photo, Chuck Agnew, Mahnomen.

Wedding Reception Set For Adam-Naomi Aehlert

Open house wedding reception for Mr. and Mrs. Adam Aehlert, who were married recently, will be held Sunday, July 31, from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m., at the Westaker Free Lutheran church, Newfolden. Mrs. Aehlert was the former Naomi Tolstrup.

All friends and relatives are welcome to attend.

PLANT AND SOIL SCIENCE grand championship in 4-H competition at the Pennington county fair last week, was won by Robbie Finstad of the Happy Acres club. Reserve champion was Scott Muzzy of the Steiner club.

TRIPLE WINNER in exhibits at the Pennington county fair was Cindi Solem of the City View 4-H club, who earned grand championships in health, junior leadership and safety projects. Respective reserve champions were Twyla Svendsgaard of Mavie, Deb Torgerson of Silverton and Kay Kainz of Mavie.

Elin Larson Services Held At Redeemer

Funeral services for Mrs. Elin Larson, 90, of St. Hilaire, were held Monday at 10:30 a.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city. Mrs. Larson died Wednesday evening, July 20, at the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the services. Vocal selections were presented by Jan and Dee Nordin with Mrs. William Halbasch serving as organist. Interment was in the Clara cemetery, rural Thief River Falls. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Douglas Peterson, William Peterson, Russell Gustafson, Clarence Konickson, Donald Erickson and Stuart Peterson.

Mrs. Larson, the former Elin Ingeborg Gustafson, was born April 27, 1893 in Alsborg township of Sibley county, near Winthrop, to Alfred and Augusta Peterson Gustafson. She was baptized and confirmed in the Bernadotte Lutheran church in that community and attended elementary school in rural Winthrop.

On Feb. 22, 1916, she was married at the Bernadotte Lutheran church to Carl Larson. The couple farmed near Winthrop until 1930, when they moved to the Hazel community in Pennington county. Following the death of her husband in 1962, Mrs. Larson continued to live on the farm in River Falls township of Pennington county until she became a resident of Valley Home. Later, she resided at Oakland Park Nursing home and at the time of her death, was a resident of the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital.

She was a former member of the Clara Lutheran church, had taught Sunday school and been a 4-H club leader for a number of years. She was currently a member of Redeemer Lutheran church.

Surviving are two sons: Clair Larson, St. Hilaire; and Jerome and his wife, Bernice of Minnetonka; a daughter and son-in-law: Octavia and Ellsworth Jorgenson, Thief River Falls; two grandsons: Daniel and his wife, Julie, Burnsville, and Thomas, Bemidji; two sisters: Mrs. Henry (Dorothy) Larson, St. Peter and Mrs. Mike (Aurelia) Elgert, Thief River Falls; and one brother, Arvid Gustafson, St. Hilaire.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by a granddaughter, Kathy; a brother, Abner, and three sisters: Hildur, Edith and Ethel.

A. Wallestad, Once Teacher In Area, Dies

Arvid D. Wallestad, 42, of International Falls, who taught school at one time at Strathcona and Viking, died Saturday at the Falls Memorial hospital. Wallestad had been in failing health for the past two years.

Funeral services for Arvid D. Wallestad were held Tuesday at 11:00 a.m., at the Evangelical Covenant church in South International Falls with Rev. Larry Fullerton and Rev. Roger Anderson officiating. John Blankman was the soloist and Marlys Stenberg, the organist. Interment was in the Forest Hill cemetery in that city with the Green-Larsen Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Albert Larson, Elmer Stenberg, Norman Olsen, Tom Worth, Ervin Boyum and Reynold Lofgren.

Arvid Wallestad was born Nov. 1, 1940 at Forst Dodge, Iowa to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wallestad. He grew to manhood in the Roseau area where his family operated the Pencer store. Following graduation from Roseau high school in 1958, he attended the teachers training course in Thief River Falls. Upon completion of the course, he taught at Strathcona and later at Viking. In August of 1969, he moved to International Falls and taught there at the A.B. and Holler elementary schools.

He was married July 22, 1961 at Strathcona to Marian Lorenson.

He was a member of the Evangelical Covenant church, served as vice chairman of the church council, was Sunday school superintendent, leader of the Boys club and Sunday school teacher. He also served as secretary-treasurer of the Koochiching Blue Water Bible camp.

He is survived by his wife, a son Roland, and a daughter Rhonda, all at home at Rt. 9, Pleasent View Avenue, International Falls, 56649; and a married daughter: Mrs. Wayne (Renae) Bahr, also of International Falls.

Also surviving are his father and step-mother, Herman and Frances Wallestad, Orlando, Fla.; three sisters: Mrs. Farrell (Anne) Erickson, Badger; Mrs. Nellie Sealy, Karlstad; and Mrs. Terry (Ida) Modahl, Roseau; and three brothers: David Wallestad, Carpentersville, Ill.; Paul, Karlstad; and Austin, Sacramento, Calif.

Mrs. Walter Anderson Dies At Bemidji

Mrs. Walter (Elverna) Anderson, 77, who taught school for a time at Plummer, died Thursday at the Bemidji Community hospital. She also lived for a time in this city while her husband was captain of the State Patrol, district Thief River Falls.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anderson were held Monday at 11:00 a.m., at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church in Bemidji. Burial was in the Pine Grove cemetery at Cass Lake.

Pallbearers were Steven and Curtis Ittner, W. Ray Anderson, Chad Jewett, James Sande and Gerald Lindblom.

Mrs. Anderson, the former Elverna Marie Oman, was born April 4, 1906 at Northome to John and Helga Oman. She received her elementary education at Cass Lake and attended high school and college in Superior, Wis.

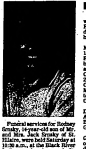
She moved to Bemidji in 1927 and since then had spent most of her time there. She was married to Miller Jewett in 1932 in Minneapolis. In 1946, she married Walter Anderson at Bemidji.

In addition to teaching at Plummer she also taught in Wausau, Wis., and at Nary.

Surviving are her husband, Walter at Ah-Gwah-Ching Nursing home; a son, Chad Jewett, Eagan; two granddaughters, a sister, Mrs. James (Sylvia) Sande, Bemidji; and a brother, John Oman, Cass Lake.

She was preceded in death by a daughter, her parents, and a sister.

Rodney Srnsky Rites Held At Black River



Funeral services for Rodney Srnsky, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Srnsky of St. Hilaire, were held Saturday at 10:30 a.m., at the Black River Lutheran church, rural St. Hilaire. Rodney died Wednesday, July 20, in a three-wheeler accident four miles west of St. Hilaire.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the services. Mrs. Donald Mosbeck was the organist and Mrs. Arnold Hammer, the soloist. Interment was in the church cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Trohy Walseth, Mark Peterson, Jarrold Kalaness, Kyle Kisch, Tony Rondorf and Roger Nelson.

Rodney Lee Srnsky was born Oct. 24, 1968 at Thief River Falls to Jack and Cheryl Nabben Srnsky. He attended the St. Hilaire elementary school and the Franklin Middle School in Thief River Falls. He was baptized at the Black River Lutheran church and was a member of its present confirmation class.

Surviving are his parents, two brothers: Gregory of Bottineau, N.D., and Wesley, St. Hilaire; two sisters: Mrs. Richard (Brenda) Eckstein and Pamela Srnsky, both of St. Hilaire; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Srnsky, St. Hilaire, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Nabben, Thief River Falls.

Tom Mertz, 81, Of Fourtown Dies Monday

Tom Mertz, 81, of Fourtown, who had lived in Thief River Falls for the past two years, died Monday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Tom Mertz will be held Thursday at 10:00 a.m., at the Green Funeral chapel where the body is reposing. Officiating at the services will be Rev. Clifford Kalmoe, pastor at Zion Lutheran church. Organist and soloist will be Mrs. Arnold Hammer. Interment will be in the Lone Oak cemetery at Fourtown.

Pallbearers will be Charles Dablow, Ellsworth Blylie, Alfred Sorenson, Barnett Benson, Ernest Selle and George Thompson.

The body will repose at the Green Funeral home until 9:00 o'clock tonight and on Thursday morning until time of services.

Tom Owen Mertz, a son of the late Julius and Nina Cocker Mertz, was born Oct. 25, 1901 at Badger. He attended school at Badger. In 1918, he moved with the family to Beltrami county, where they settled on a farm east of Grygla, near Fourtown. There he lived and farmed until retirement.

He is survived by two sisters: Zora Pederson, Mountain, N.D.; Mrs. James (Julia) Todroff, Grygla; two nieces, three nephews, two grand nephews and one great-grand niece.

He was preceded in death by two brothers: Julius and Jerry Mertz.

Restructuring Of Chamber Creates Post

businessmen and government officials.

A meeting is also being planned here next Monday with a representative of Commissioner Mark Dayton's office to discuss assistance available from the state of Minnesota in job development which can be related to Thief River Falls. That meeting is being coordinated with Stan Upham, president of the chamber of commerce.

Also being instituted is a personal contact campaign with local business to determine potential employment expansion. Included will be a collecting of information on what products or services are needed that are not available in the community but could be provided here, and a listing of services and products available here which are marketable elsewhere.

Sandstrom, Ault and Upham all emphasized that retention and hopefully expansion of existing business and industry is of primary importance and the key to community growth. Attraction of additional industry and business will be actively pursued, however, through the new Jobs Incorporated position.

Upham noted that in her new post Mackenroth will work with the other chamber staff in conducting the chamber of commerce program, and he asked the organization's membership to be cooperative and understanding as the position develops. He said he is glad to have two people in Sandstrom and Mackenroth who are thoroughly acquainted with the community and enthusiastic about the work which they are undertaking.

Sandstrom said he is very optimistic about the new program he is working with, and also pleased with the high degree of enthusiasm which Mackenroth brings to her new job. He said he believes his seven years of experience with the chamber of commerce here will permit him to provide advisory assistance while still devoting most of his time to his new office.

Mackenroth said she hopes that people in the community who have an interest in the chamber of commerce will feel free to call and give opinions or ask questions. "I sincerely hope all members will get out of the chamber of commerce what they expected from it when they joined, and that membership will continue to grow," she said.

Sandstrom credited Upham and James Winjum, vice president of Jobs Incorporated for their organizational efforts in developing the restructured program. Winjum will continue in close relationship to the office of the director for the organization.

Mackenroth is originally from Thief River Falls, a 1967 graduate of Lincoln high school and the business department of the area vocational-technical institute. She has had formal instruction in office procedures, typing, bookkeeping, office machines and business law and psychology.

She has been employed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, DC; Larson Music company in Thief River Falls; General Telephone company in Long Beach, CA; Northwest Plastics, Inc., St. Paul; department of parks and recreation in St. Paul; Revlon, Inc., in Phoenix, AZ; and most recently was manager of the Rex cafe in downtown Thief River Falls. She has two children and is divorced.

HANDWORK division for open class exhibits at the Pennington county fair was won by Dee Kreuter of Thief River Falls with this picture of an angel, made of fabric.

ELECTRIC division championship for 4-H exhibits at the Pennington county fair was won by Dale Nelson of the Silverton 4-H club, with his working model of a simple electric motor. Reserve champion was Brian Mills of the Satellite 4-H club.

Jan Backlund Is Happy As Harness Racer

"Mai Dilemma" to an easy win in the first heat of the second race. She also had fourth and fifth place finishes in other races.

"I won the first two heats of the first race I ever drove," Jan recalls. "And at Hamilton last Friday and Saturday I had four wins, two with pacers and two with trotters. That was a pretty good weekend."

She owns two trotters of her own and drives pacers for her father, Allan. She is employed by an auto parts store and when she isn't working or racing horses she plays volleyball and softball.

In order to be tested and licensed through the U.S. Trotting association, would-be drivers have to obtain six bonafide references attesting to the driver's character and capabilities. The test itself is at least an eight-age form which checks the driver's knowledge of all racing equipment and harness, racing rules, step-by-step procedures, claiming conduct, parimutuel rules and other information relative to the sport.

And once the license is obtained and racing begins, there are hazards involved.

"Road trouble is the most dangerous," Jan said. "I've been dumped out twice — both within about a week's time — but I was lucky and only got some scratches and bruises. Nothing serious."

The first mishap took place at Huron, SD, when one of the horses ahead of her broke stride and, according to the rules, went to the outside of the track. Then the horse cut back in as Jan was going by on the inside and the carts collided, tossing her out on the track.

The next week at Madison the horse in front of her fell. "My horse jumped over the one that fell," Jan explained, "but carts can't jump." The sulky hit the struggling horse and again Jan was thrown to the track.

Backlund notes that the racing horses are very conscious of winning and don't like having other horses go by them on the track. Some always want to run in front and the driver has to try to hold them back and save something for the finish. Others are more content to let another horse set the pace before driving for the finish line.

It is more of a challenge to drive trotters than pacers, Jan believes, because pacers wear hobbles that confine their gait to running with both legs on the same side in unison. Trotters have no such restraining devices and are more prone to break stride in their eagerness to run.

If the track conditions are ideal, the track will be firm but not hard and definitely not dusty, Backlund said. The track here Wednesday was dusty and slighy loose in the number one and number three turns. The racers were very complimentary of the efforts made to get the track in condition and the top time of the night (2:09.4 for the mile) indicated that the track was fast.

Although it was a long drive to Thief River Falls and the crowd of about 200 was small, Jan and her family indicated they would be willing to race here again. Because part of the loss between admission and purses paid was underwritten by co-sponsorship of St. Hilaire Cooperative Elevator association, the county fair association did not sustain too much of a loss for the racing program. It is likely racing will be offered to the public again next year.

Warroad 1983 Celebrity Golf Results Posted

Hockey players from six National Hockey League teams, plus area sportscasters and sportswriters were matched with 75 golfers Saturday at the annual hockey celebrity fund-raising golf tournament at the War-Road Estates golf course.

Neal Broten of the Minnesota North Stars was the top individual golfer during the tournament with a 74. Low gross team honors went to a group that included Morris Lukowich of the Winnipeg Jets, Mark Haugen and Lee Sorenson of Thief River Falls, plus Bill Christian of Warroad.

Low net team honors went to a unit headed by Aaron Broten of the New Jersey Devils and included Milt Tayler, Greg Biskup and Smokey Olson of Warroad.

Individual low net score of 61 was shared by Tom Roberts, Luther Germundson and Pat Kelley.

Longest drive award went to Butsy Erickson of the Washington Capitals, and Jack Ganyo of Warroad won a prize for driving nearest to the pin.

Other celebrities at the event included Herb Brooks and Bill Baker of the New York Rangers; Don Jackson of the Edmonton Oilers; Mike Ramsey of the Buffalo Sabres; Don Beaupre, Ron Zanussi, Steve Payne, Steve Christoff and John Mariucci of the Minnesota North Stars; Bill Sutherland, Doug Small and Lyle Moffet of the Winnipeg Jets; Marshall Johnston of the New Jersey Devils; University of North Dakota coach Gino Gasparini; University of Minnesota coach Brad Buetow; plus guest media Virg Foss, Boyd Christianson and Ed Schultz.

Money raised in the tournament will go to the Warroad arena building fund.

Many of the hockey celebrities stayed for a day of fishing on Lake of the Woods Sunday, with Baker winning a prize for the largest walleye and Mariucci winning an award for the largest northern.

Council OKs Negotiation On Landfills

figures developed at that time, Murphy estimated that they could haul to Salol for about $2.50 more per load than they presently pay at Gentilly. On that basis, he recommended that the city could develop a transfer station with the money saved by not hauling to Bagley, lowering costs further by compacting garbage and hauling it in larger trucks.

Although he said he was satisfied with the principal of the Bagley incineration site, and definitely felt that landfills were on their way out within the next five to 10 years, Murphy said that by not entering into a 20 year contract with Bagley they could "buy time" to study other alternatives. He compared the idea of hauling garbage to Bagley for incineration to a coal mining operation, "where you mine the coal, haul it away and then pay someone to burn it for you," and suggested that as the cost of disposal got higher, developing a local central heating plant utilizing garbage as fuel became all the more feasible.

Although the addition of Pennington county's solid wastes were estimated to make operation of the Karlstad and Salol landfills more economical, Mayor Bob Carlson questioned whether the citizens of those communities would object to the impact of having an additional 200 tons a week dumped there.

Another topic which occupied a considerable amount of council's time was a board of zoning appeals recommendation that Sheldon Buck be granted a 22 foot variance to his rear yard setback. Buck owns a lot between the Thief River and Madge Lane Drive. Don Grasser of the department of natural resources, who was not present at the board of zoning appeals meeting, commented that the DNR required a minimum setback of 50 feet from the river. Buck appealed that the requirement would make it impossible for him to build on the lot, which is only about 100 feet deep and 70 feet wide.

Since the property was originally platted as being 70 by 140 feet, some question was raised as to whether the road was located on the proper place. Council voted to return the matter to the board of zoning appeals, with instructions that the city engineer should survey the proper location of the road. Since the city owns the land on the other side of the road, Buck may stand to gain an additional 40 feet on his property.

In other business the council:

— Approved planning commission recommendations to grant a 4,000 square foot variance to minimum lot size for Rodney Larson, to build a new shop on the corner of Barzen and Second Street, south of Sunset Market; rezoning of the former Dow-Key property on Highway 59 South from C-2 highway commercial to C-1 light industry; and granted a waiver of platting for Steve Robinson and Hilding Bergh, to avoid hardship in clearing the title to property on north Edgewood Drive.

— Heard that arrangements had been made for Bemidji Airlines to start operation on August 21, in spite of a holding order keeping Republic Airlines here through August 23. Council also heard that a termination notice has been received from Republic, effective that date.

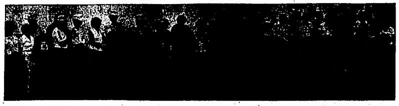
— Approved the resignation of LeRoy Westerlund after 15 years, due to health reasons.

— Reviewed a list of surplus property for a city auction to be held at 5 p.m. August 16, behind the law enforcement center.

— Approved permits to have beer in Oakland Park, for Northern state bank on August 21, and for the Elks Club on August 14.

— Noted that a claim had been received from Dwight's Hartz Market for water damage, but that no further damage had occurred since installation of a larger culvert in the areas.

— Approved paying regular and special bills of $19,500 from the county assessor for 1983; $3,000 from the Greenwood cemetery commission; $2,382.12 from the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council for second quarter salary reimbursement; $7,500 from the Centralized Job Development committee; and $1,974.67 from Wurst, McDowell and Ihle for services related to the termination of Republic Airlines.



A GROUP EFFORT by Pennington county fair association directors and their spouses makes the show go each year, and they were introduced Sunday afternoon at the 4-H club and senior citizen program. County extension director Terry Courneya is at the microphone in the left center of the photo, commenting on the cooperation shown by members of the board in working together to produce the annual county fair. He also gave special recognition to fair board president "Skip" Swanson for organizing when he considered to be the outstanding fair during his 18 years as Pennington county extension director.

INTERMEDIATE CLOTHING CONSTRUCTION and flower arrangement divisions for 4-H exhibits at the Pennington county fair were both won by Susie Thune of the Happy Acres club. Reserve championships were won by Kay Kainz of the Mavie club in clothing and by Loralee Iverson of the Happy Acres club in the flower arrangement divisions.

THE AMBASSADORS, a singing group from the Association Free Lutheran Bible school of Minneapolis, will be presenting two concerts in the area this week. First concert will be Sunday at 8 p.m. at Our Saviour's Lutheran church, Thief River Falls. Second program will be presented at Westaker Free Lutheran church, Newfolden on Monday at 8 p.m. Public is invited to attend both events.

CITIZENSHIP division grand championship for 4-H exhibits at the Pennington county fair was won by Marie Gonsorowski of the City View club, with this display on her family. Reserve championship was won by Jodi Fimrite, also of the City View club.

4H CLUB

Kratka

Kratka 4-H club tour was held on July 17 starting at the Richard Parnow home, then proceeded to farms of Roger Mickelson, Myles Olson, Robert W. Swanson and Alex Moe. All members displayed the project work they would exhibit at the county fair. All members also went swimming in the river.

Heather Olson gave a demonstration on foods. Lunch was served by the adult leaders. There were 10 members, 11 parents and family and one visitor present. The next meeting will be at the town hall.

Tom Mickelson, reporter

Mavie

Mavie club tour was held on July 11 beginning at 1 p.m. There were 19 parents, 23 members and two visitors present. Purpose of the tour was to view each member's fair projects, with Deborah Matero giving helpful criticism.

The tour ended at the Goodridge park with a pot luck picnic organized by Karyl Kveton and the Gordon Henrickson's. A short meeting was held to decide serving times during the fair. The club earned $208.15 for the Arthritis foundation through its clean-a-thon. Softball, horseshoe and basketball were played.

Heat Continues To Push Crops Toward Harvest

High temperatures continued to push crops ahead rapidly during the past week, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Precipitation over much of the state helped to replenish topsoil moisture supplies that are being evaporated by the heat.

Heavy rainfall over an area from the lower Red River valley through parts of Becker and Ottertail counties has resulted in a current surplus moisture situation there. Other areas have been missed by most rains since July 1 and are falling behind in topsoil supplies. Topsoil moisture as of July 22 was rated 16 per cent short, 75 per cent adequate and nine per cent surplus.

On Tuesday, violent winds accompanying a storm front caused some locally severe lodging of small grains and corn, mainly along a path extending from Grand county through Stearns county to Isanti county.

Fields dried out well so that row crop cultivation, weed spraying and tillage of PIK acres could proceed. An average of five days were suitable for fieldwork during the week.

Small grains are ripening quickly — too quickly in some cases, as light test weights are expected from some fields. Stem maggot is reducing head populations in some wheat fields. There are further reports of wheat scab. Insecticide treatment has begun for locally severe outbreaks of armyworm in the northwest, west central and central districts.

Field corn is 31 per cent tasseling, compared with 35 per cent a year ago and 56 per cent for the five-year average. Soybeans are 18 inches high versus 20 inches last year and 23 inches for the five-year average. Soybeans are 60 per cent blooming compared with 40 per cent a year ago and the five-year average of 63 per cent. An estimated three per cent of soybean plants are setting pods versus one per cent last year and seven per cent for the five-year average.

Spring wheat is 59 per cent turning ripe, which compares with last year's 26 per cent and the five-year average of 50 per cent. A scant one per cent of spring wheat has been cut or swathed, the same as last year, but behind the five-year average of five per cent. Oats are 73 per cent turning ripe versus 54 per cent a year ago and 65 per cent for the five-year average. Oats are two per cent cut or swathed compared with five per cent last year and 13 per cent for the five-year average. Barley is 75 per cent turning ripe compared with 49 per cent in 1982 and 65 per cent for the five-year average. Cutting or swathing of barley stands at six per cent versus last year's five per cent and five-year average of 15 per cent.

Combining of winter wheat, rye and barley got underway in a few areas, with many more areas expecting to start during the coming week. Winter wheat and rye are both four per cent harvested. By comparison, five-year average progress figures are nine per cent for winter wheat and six per cent for rye. Sunflowers are three per cent blooming versus five per cent a year ago and 23 per cent for the five-year average.

Ray Johnson Wins Drawing

Ray Johnson, Thief River Falls, was named the winner in the free drawing at the Pennington county fair, announced the Northwest regional library bookmobile representative. Johnson will select a book of his choice as winner.

Bookmobile has sponsored a free drawing at county fair stops in Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

BETWEEN SONGS in his performance at the Pennington county fair, Charley Pride maintained a rapport with his audience by telling stories, answering questions and mugging for photographers. Dressed casually, except for the jewelry on his hands, Pride explained that the rings were gifts, "except for this one, which I bought just for myself." Asked before the show if he was going to sing some of his hits, Carley replied, "They're all hits." He backed that statement up with a two-hour performance that reminded audiences of just how many songs the country star has had "on the charts." Approximately 2800 people paid to attend the two performances on Friday night, reportedly keeping Pride busy signing autographs until 1:30 a.m.

Ambassadors Sponsor Cow Milking Booth

Marshall county 4-H Ambassadors initiated and manned a cow milking booth at this year's Marshall county fair. About 50 "milkers" participated in this 4-H sponsored acitivity, states Alice Colby, Marshall county 4-H extension agent.

The majority of "milkers" were youngsters but a large number were "old hands" who wanted to prove their skills! All participants were given a stick which read, "I milked a cow today."

Penny, the cow, owned by 4-H Ambassador Jayne Erickson of Viking, proved to be very gentle and patient, Colby said. Other 4-H Ambassadors involved were Martha McGregor, Mark Fagerstrom, Jeff and Joel Erickson.

County 4-H Ambassadors are junior leaders committed to promoting 4-H. All Marshall county junior leaders are encouraged to join. For more information contact Colby at the courthouse in Warren, phone 745-5232.

LEC Reports 30 Cases July 26

Law enforcement center report dated Tuesday, July 26, listed 25 cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and five cases investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department by reporting date.

Cases handled by the Thief River Falls police department included the following:

July 19 — Alvin Klemmetson, Thief River Falls, reported that a padlock, value $2.50, had been stolen from his garage. Nothing else was reported missing.

July 19 — Maynard Jenson, Thief River Falls, reported that while his son Darren, 11, had been fishing at the dam about 6 p.m., three older boys had confronted him, taking a rod and reel, value $15, after a scuffle. Case is under investigation.

July 19 — Marilyn Dablow, Thief River Falls, reported that a bicycle, value $150, owned by Jean Leppala, had been stolen from the fairgrounds.

July 20 — Sean Krepp, Thief River Falls, reported that his 10-speed bicycle, value $100, had been stolen from the parking lot at the arena.

July 20 — Kevin Hodne, Newfolden, reported that while he was at the beach he had observed three young boys in the vicinity of his automobile who fled as he approached. He then noticed that his wallet was missing. The wallet was later found on North Maple avenue, minus his driver's license. Loss was estimated at $3.

July 20 — Richard Heaton, Thief River Falls, reported that an AM-FM receiver, value $23, had been stolen from the break room at the Piggly Wiggly store.

July 21 — Mary Dahl, Thief River Falls, reported that approximately $10 damage had been done to her garage door with a can of spray paint.

July 21 — Edson Construction personnel reported that a table, value $75, had been damaged while in a garage at the Pennington county fairgrounds.

July 21 — Florian Kritz, Thief River Falls, reported that approximately 22 gallons of gasoline had been stolen from his van sometime during the previous evening.

July 21 — Arnold Wiskow, Thief River Falls, reported that three vehicles parked beside his residence had been spray painted sometime during the evening. Damage was estimated at $140.

July 21 — Rev. Larry Olson, Thief River Falls, reported that his boy's bicycle, value $60, had been stolen from in front of the sports arena.

July 21 — Della Rockstad, Thief River Falls, reported that her house had been spray painted, causing approximately $100 damage. Case is under investigation.

July 21 — Arletta Mutnansky, Goodridge, was driving west on Eighth street, and Jonathon W. Disse, Thief River Falls, was driving north on Knight avenue when they collided. Damages were estimated at $1,100 to the Mutnansky car and $300 to the Disse vehicle.

July 21 — Don Jorstad, Thief River Falls, reported that the door on his garage had been spray painted, causing approximately $72 damage.

July 22 — Report was received from a Thief River Falls resident that a bicycle had been stolen from the family's garage. Forced entry was not involved. The bicycle was recovered later the same day and brought to the law enforcement center.

July 22 — Lona Anderson, Thief River Falls, was walking across the street in the crosswalk at the intersection of First street and LaBree avenue when she was struck by an older model brown car, and received a sprained wrist. She reported that the man driving the car had yelled something at her and kept going.

July 22 — Donna Viktora, rural Thief River Falls, was driving east on Highway 59, and Med Mercil, Thief River Falls, was entering Highway 59 from Brooks avenue when they collided. Damages were estimated at $500 to the Viktora vehicle and $300 to the Mercil vehicle.

July 23 — Penny and Shelly Helle, Thief River Falls, reported that both of their bicycles, value $150 each, had been stolen from the Pennington county fairgrounds.

July 23 — Danny Omdahl, rural Angus, reported that two dents had been made in the left front fender of his vehicle while it was parked at the curling club in Thief River Falls. Damage was estimated at $50.

July 23 — Roger Reuter, Thief River Falls, reported that his lawnmower, value $229, had been stolen from in front of Redeemer Lutheran church.

July 23 — Report was received that the water tower at Lions Park had been spray painted. Damage was estimated at $100.

July 24 — Brad Erickson, rural Thief River Falls, reported that his bicycle, value $50, had been stolen from its parking place on the 300 block of North Main avenue.

July 24 — Shawn Armstrong, Thief River Falls, was riding his bicycle on Brooks avenue when the driver of a parked car opened his door and Shawn collided with it. He sustained minor injuries to his arm and foot.

July 25 — Elvin Dahl, Thief River Falls, reported that a large tool box, value $200, had been stolen from the back of a pickup parked at his residence.

July 25 — Steven Waswick, Viking, reported that he had lost his wallet at the Pennington county fairgrounds. It was later found with all contents intact except for $33 cash.

Cases handled by the Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

July 9 — Curtis Swanson reported that a vehicle had been driven on his cropland in Polk Centre township, causing approximately $147 damage.

July 15 — Park and recreation department personnel for the city of Thief River Falls reported that a buoy, value $67.30, had been stolen from the swimming area at LaFave park.

July 19 — Glen Limesand, rural Thief River Falls, reported that a Huffy bicycle, value $50, had been stolen from his residence.

July 22 — Jim Lambert, Rocksbury township, reported that some old batteries, value $12, had been stolen from in back of his residence.

July 23 — Michelle Scott, St. Hilaire, reported that her wallet containing $157 had been stolen from the patio area at El Ceritos. The wallet was later found in the ladies rest room, with the money missing and papers strewn around.

MARKET POULTRY grand champion at the Pennington county fair was this fryer chicken exhibited by Gary Courneya of the Steiner 4-H club. Reserve champion was exhibited by Kyle Kisch of the Black River club.

MAXWELL LILY which earned a grand champion ribbon in the adult flowers division at the Pennington county fair for Mrs. Viola Koglin, Thief River Falls, had already begun to wilt when pictures were taken on Saturday. While the weather was nearly perfect for most events, it took its toll on the cut flowers.

FURNITURE REFINISHING project done by Cindi Russell of the Silverton 4-H club earned her a grand championship ribbon in the advanced home environment division for 4-H exhibits at the Pennington county fair. Reserve champion was Kristine Sorteberg of the Smiley 4-H club.

Anniversary Of Chippewa Forest Noted

On the occasion of the 75th anniversary of the Chippewa national forest, the public is invited to attend an open house and participate in tours of the supervisor's office in Cass Lake.

Tours will be conducted on Friday, August 5, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Saturday, August 6, from 12 noon until 5 p.m. Slide-tape programs and talks will be presented by forest service personnel. On Saturday, awards will be presented to individuals in recognition of their contributions to natural resource conservation on the forest.

Beginning at 10 a.m., on August 5, there will be an auction of surplus personal property. Items will include office equipment and furniture, chainsaws and miscellaneous equipment. The auction will be held in the garage-shop area, southwest of the supervisor's office.

On both August 5 and 6, in observance of the forest's anniversary, there will be no charge for camping on any fee area of the Chippewa. Ranger district personnel will be on hand to extend a warm welcome to guests of the Chippewa national forest.

Picnic for forest service employees, retirees and civilian conservation corps (CCC) enrollees will be held on August 7, at Camp Rabideau, six miles south of Blackduck, off Beltrami county road 39 (scenic highway). This year marks the 50th anniversary of the CCC; and after 2 p.m. on Sunday, August 7, the camp will be open to the public.

Three-story log building housing the supervisor's office in Cass Lake was constructed by the CCC and has been placed on the national register of historic places. Justifiably proud of this historic structure, forest service personnel serving as tour guides will be pleased to answer any questions about forest management on the Chippewa.

A HEARTY THANK YOU...

to all the workers and all the customers who made this year's Pennington county fair food stand our most successful ever. Your help and your patronage are most gratefully appreciated.

New Overdue Policy Adopted By NW Library

Northwest regional library system announced an amnesty period on all overdue materials, effective August 1 to 31. At the end of the period, a new overdue policy will go into effect.

All materials not returned will be subject to the rules and regulations of the new policy. Overdue materials may be returned to the Northwest regional libraries in Thief River Falls, Greenbush, Hallock, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Warroad, Warren and the bookmobile.

New overdue policy was passed by the Northwest regional library board of trustees on May 19. The policy lists the overdue procedure as follows: a reminder notice of overdue materials will be mailed two weeks and four weeks after the materials are overdue. A statement will be mailed six weeks after the materials are overdue.

No service charge will be collected with the first notice if materials are returned before they are four weeks overdue. After four weeks, a service charge of $1 will be made to the patron. After six weeks, an addition $2 charge will be made to the patron. If the materials are not back after eight weeks, a letter will be sent from the headquarters office to revoke borrowing privileges until materials are returned.

This policy adheres to the recently passed Minnesota legislation which makes the holding of overdue materials subject to state violation as a petty misdemeanor.

GRANDSTAND JAM on Thursday night was a new attraction for the Pennington county fair this year, and it drew a good crowd of young people, some to dance on the race track and others just to listen and watch. Rock and roll music was the big attraction, and it was ably provided by two popular area bands: "Escape" from Thief River Falls, and "Justin Tyme" from Grand Forks. When the music finally stopped at 1 a.m. the crowd begged for "one more song" and the band obliged.

IN COMMAND of his smooth-running 1941 Allis Chalmers, Rocky Jasperson of Plummer won the antique class for tractors 8,500 pounds and under during Saturday afternoon's tractor pull at the Pennington county fair. After he and Dale Holtan of Newfolden had pulled through the entire course, Jasperson won the pull-off with a tug of 289 feet one inch to 237 feet eight inches for Holtan.

GARDEN PRODUCE COLLECTION entered by Ruth Ostby in this year's Pennington county fair earned her a grand champion ribbon in open class competition.

RACING A FLAGMAN for the other end of the track, Russ Holtan of Thief River Falls churns his way through the 300-foot course during the pickup pulling contest Saturday afternoon at the Pennington county fair. Holtan finished second to Darryl Jarshaw of Newfolden in a pull-off after both had hauled the weighted sled all the way through the course.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

We would like to share with you information on parking for physically handicapped, prohibitions and penalties. This past legislative session brought about certain revisions regarding the use of handicapped parking stalls. The effective date of this legislation is August 1, 1983.

Subdivision 1. Parking Criteria — As the bill states, "No person shall park a motor vehicle in or obstruct access to a parking space designated and reserved for the physically handicapped, on either private or public property, or exercise the parking privilege provided in Section 169.345 unless:"

a. that person is legally defined as physically handicapped or is transporting a physically handicapped person, or if

b. the vehicle clearly displays the certificate or license plate issued to physically handicapped persons or the certificate issued to persons transporting those with physical handicaps, or if

c. the vehicle displays an equivalent certificate issued by another state or one of its local units of government.

Subdivision 2. Signs — Basically, this section of the bill says that handicapped parking spaces must be designated by signs having the international symbol of access in white on blue and indicating that the space is reserved for the handicapped with vehicles having the required insignia. Those parking spaces which are not in compliance with the design standards may also be reserved for the physically handicapped, but only if they are clearly identified.

In addition, any signs posted for this purpose must: a. be visible from inside a vehicle parked in the space, b. be kept clear of snow or other obstructions which block its visibility, and, c. be unmovable or only movable by authoritized persons.

Subdivision 3. Penalty — Any person who violates the provisions in Subdivision 1 is guilty of a petty misdemeanor and will be fined no less than $25 nor more than $100.

Law enforcement officers have the authority and should tag unauthorized vehicles on either private or public property that are in violation of the provisions of Subdivision 1. Should a handicapped person, without the required certificate, be charged with a violation he will not be convicted if he produces the required certificate in court or prior to the court appearance or can prove that he was entitled to the certificate before the violation.

This legislation makes it quite clear that the special parking stalls designated for legitimate physically disabled persons are to be for their use only. Those of us who are fortunate not to have such handicaps should be courteous enough to stay out of the parking spaces so designated.

The police department will take an active role in the enforcement of this law. There is absolutely no reason for the non-disabled person to use a parking place that is reserved for someone who really needs it. Those people who qualify must pick up an application at the department of motor vehicles and have their doctor sign it and send it in to obtain their permit. We strongly suggest that all people legally handicapped apply for and their permit prior to parking in the handicapped stall.

I plead with all drivers to honor the privilege and rights afforded the handicapped drivers. Thank you.

Plummer

Mrs. Walter C. Peterson, Plummer, 465-3415

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Craft and son of Huntington Beach, Calif. came Saturday to visit with relatives and friends here. They were accompanied by his aunt, Mrs. Nora Seibel of Anoka who also visited here. They left Monday for Grand Rapids to visit with relatives.

Chris Baumann of Gothenberg, Sweden left Friday with John Helley Sr. and John Helley Jr. on a camping trip to the Twin Cities where they visited the Capitol and took in the American Legion and Auxiliary parade held in St. Paul on Saturday, July 16. They were joined there by Mrs. Helley who had attended the auxiliary convention held there. Chris is a foreign exchange student from Gothenberg, Sweden and has lived with the John Helley family for the past 11 months. He graduated from Pershing high school here in May. On Sunday he left from the Minneapolis airport for Sweden and they were joined at the airport by the Helley's daughter, Mrs. Mary Kaullen and infant son, Nickolas, on their layover from Grand Forks enroute to San Diego, Calif. They were enroute home after visiting for two weeks at the John Helley home.

Mrs. Leo Pahlen, Mrs. Lillie Halvorson, Mrs. Herbert Walter, Mrs. Idella Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lee and Willmar Brekke attended the program given last Tuesday at Hillcrest nursing home in Red Lake Falls.

Albert LaFayette returned home last Tuesday from Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls where he had received medical treatment.

Leonard Brekke Sr. of Hillcrest Nursing home in Red Lake Falls spent from Thursday to Saturday evening at the home of his daughter, the Leo Pahlens.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lee and Willmar Brekke were Thursday supper guests at the Don Wahlbeck home in Thief River Falls.

Clara Helley left Wednesday, July 13 with Bob and Joanne Reeve of Thief River Falls for St. Paul to attend the Minnesota state American Legion and auxiliary convention held there at the Radisson hotel. Clara was a color bearer for the convention and carried the 9th district American Legion Auxiliary Flag in the parade held Saturday afternoon, July 16.

Mrs. Ollie Mattison entertained Sunday afternoon at her home in honor of the 89th birthday of her husband Ollie. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Burthwick, Mrs. Leon Gwin and Radine of Grand Rapids, Willard Mattison of Brooks, Mrs. Virginia Allen of Coon Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. Alving Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lee, Willmar Brekke, Lem Dobson, Gary Hoflus, Gust Konickson, Mr. and Mrs. Art Froiland, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Westerlund, Mrs. Idella Peterson and Mrs. Joel Simonson. Cards and gifts were presented Ollie and lunch was served by the hostess. Forenoon callers to wish Ollie happy birthday were Mr. and Mrs. Steve Retzer and Whitney of East Grand Forks, Craig Pahlen of Wahpeton, N.D. and Mr. and Mrs. R.H. Pahlen. Afternoon callers were Mr. and Mrs. David Skallet and Jessica and Dawn Skallet of Minneapolis.

Mrs. John Helley and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Kaullen and Nickolas of San Diego, Calif. visited last Monday at Hillcrest Nursing home in Red Lake Falls with Mrs. Clara Helley. She is Mary's great-grandmother and Nickolas' great-great-grandmother.

SPINNING HIS WAY to a first place finish in the four-wheel drive pickup pulling contest at the Pennington county fair Saturday afternoon is Darryl Jarshaw of Newfolden. In a pull-off with Russ Holtan of Thief River Falls after both had tugged the sled through the 300-foot course, Jarshaw earned top position at 284 feet six inches while Holtan pulled 230 feet two inches.

SECOND PLACE in the division for antique tractors 8,500 pounds and under was won by Dale Holtan of Newfolden with this LA Case. He pulled 237 feet eight inches to finish second to Rocky Jasperson of Plummer who pulled 289 feet one inch with his 1941 Allis Chalmers in a two-way pull-off.

They took pictures of the four generations.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER race around the turn in harness racing at the Pennington county fair last Wednesday. Jan Backlund, driving "Mal Dilemma", held off the challenge of her father Allan to win the first heat of the second race going away. Allan Backlund drove "Black Jack McLeod" to a second place finish in this heat, then switched to "Mal Dilemma" for the second heat and won that event. Allan lets his daughter do most of the driving. "It's easier for a horse to pull 100 pounds than it is to pull 300 pounds," he quipped.

700 Attended Crop And Soil Day At U of M

Nearly 700 people attended the annual crops and soils day at the University of Minnesota, Northwest experiement station, July 20. Early morning tours attracted area farmers who viewed the results of the 1983 research plantings selected from among the plots and projects numbering over 40,000 entries.

Farmers on the small grains tour heard Dr. Don Rasmusson, barley breeder at the university's department of agronomy and plant genetics, St. Paul, evaluate many of the well-known barley varieties as well as more recent releases such as "Robust." Yields of Robust have consistently exceeded those of Glen, Larker, Morex and Manker by six to 13 bushels per acre, according to Rasmusson.

Wheat varieties were shown in extended plantings supervised by Dr. John Wiersma, Northwest experiment station agronomist. Dr. Robert Busch, University of Minnesota and USDA wheat breeder, revealed the advantages of "Wheaton". He indicated that Wheaton has a slight yield advantage over "Era" and "Marshall" but also has better lodging resistance than Era. Dr. Roy Wilcoxson, plant pathologist, Minnesota agricultural experiment station, explained "scab problems" and fielded questions about scab and various varieties in the wheat plots.

Dr. William Fenster, soil scientist at St. Paul, covered appropriate nitrogen levels for northwestern Minnesota, while Dr. Richard Behrens showed a wide variety of new chemical control trials and indicated current results. He related to several new numbers not yet released but which show promise.

Sunflower trials were explained by Dr. Robert G. Robinson, who showed delayed planting on yields in various areas of Minnesota. Dr. Robinson answered questions about sunflower midge infestations and possibilities of avoiding it by later plantings.

Dr. Steve Simmons, agronomist at St. Paul, showed small grain plots which had been treated with Cerone. These applications resulted in a shorter wheat and barley stem, more erect heads and hopefully would result in less lodging in years when lodging was a probable. Cerone is not yet cleared for release.

Field bean and soybean row spacing and fertility trials were covered in another popular tour. The sugarbeet weed tour conducted by Dr. Alan Dexter and Dr. Allen Cattanach, sugarbeet weed specialists, NDSU and U of M, attracted 150 interested farmers. Tour of the UMC flower gardens was conducted by Roger Wagner.

VEGETABLE GARDEN exhibit prepared by Brenda Russell of the Silverton 4-H club won the grand champion ribbon at this year's Pennington county fair. Reserve champion was Tim Parnow of the Kratka 4-H club.

RUG HOOKING kit entered by Jennifer Lindberg in the Pennington county fair last week earned her a grand champion ribbon in the arts and crafts division.

Wheat Fields Infected By Scab Disease

Many area wheat fields are showing symptoms of being infected with a disease called scab, reports Ray Thompson, Marshall county extension director. Headed wheat fields have heads which are partially or wholly turning white and will reduce wheat yields. The disease seems to have affected early seeded fields the most.

Fusarial head blight or scab is most prevalent on wheat in temperate humid to subhumid areas. It is particularly destructive in the North Central states where it also attacks barley, rye and some grasses.

This disease reduces the stand, yield and quality of wheat, especially when the relative humidity and temperature are high after the plants head. Grain that contains five per cent or more of badly scabbed kernels, when fed to hogs, causes vomiting, loss of appetite and arrested growth.

Heat blight develops on wheat in warm humid weather at any stage from kernel formation to, maturity. Infected spikelets first show a water-soaked appearance, then become yellow, and finally turn a bleached-straw color. Often the entire head becomes infected. A pink cast generally can be detected, especially at the base and in the crease of the kernel. Infected kernels are shriveled and scabby due to tufts of white to pink mycelium.

The disease pathogens also cause a seedling blight, characterized by light-brown to reddish-brown lesions that appear before or after seedling emergence. Crown and culm rot may occur as the plants approach maturity.

The fungus most commonly associated with fusarial head blight on wheat is Gibberella zeae. The conidial stage is Fusarium graminearum. Another species often associated with the disease is F. culmorum. The disease is carried from season to season on the seed and on old crop refuse, such as cornstalks.

Partial control measures for fusarial head blight include crop rotation, suitable soil preparation, early seeding and seed treatment. The disease is most severe when wheat follows corn in rotation. Complete coverage of stubble or other crop refuse when plowing aids considerably in the control of head blight. Wheat varieties differ somewhat in susceptibility to head blight, but no known variety is highly resistant. Most durum wheats are more susceptible than common wheats.

TRF Legion Coaches Upset At Draw

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball coaches Nick Drees, Harley Drees and Howard Dalager were more than just a little upset with the outcome of a coaches' meeting held Monday in Ada to determine the draw for the first Ninth District Class AA baseball tournament, scheduled to start Friday at Moorhead.

Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Moorhead and East Grand Forks will be involved in the new "large school" Class AA concept that follows Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) designs on an experimental basis in the Ninth District. Elsewhere throughout the state the American Legion baseball program remains a single-class operation.

Coaches unanimously selected the perennially strong Moorhead Blues as the tournament's No. 1 seed. Fergus Falls was also a unanimous selection for the No. 6 seed. In an extremely close vote for the middle positions, the No. 2 seed went to East Grand Forks, No. 3 Detroit Lakes, No. 4 Thief River Falls and No. 5 Crookston.

Thief River Falls coaches felt their club should have received the No. 2 seed behind Moorhead.

"I'm very disappointed. I'm very upset about the whole thing," said Nick Drees. "We deserved better. Apparently they (other coaches) don't think much of us. Our season record was better than anybody's other than Moorhead. But that had no bearing on it. It was a popularity contest. I feel our being seeded second would have been justified by our performances this year. I don't think our 22-6-1 record is a fluke."

Drees insists Thief River Falls has better personnel than East Grand Forks and Detroit Lakes. His club split with East Grand Forks this summer, losing 7-1 back on June 23 and winning 3-2 a week later. Thief River Falls handled Detroit Lakes 11-6 a week ago. Drees also argued that Thief River Falls played Moorhead tough this summer, dropping a June 21 doubleheader here to the Blues 12-0, 9-6.

Problem with the seeding from Thief River Falls' standpoint, is that they must open the tournament Friday afternoon against Crookston where they will undoubtedly face highly regarded left-hander pitcher Craig Stahlecker, then if they win the opener, would run into Moorhead that same night. East Grand Forks, on the other hand, has a much easier first-day draw with a first round bye as the No. 2 seed, playing the winner of a Detroit Lakes-Fergus Falls first round match-up. Even a No. 3 seed would have made Thief River Falls' draw much easier.

"Stahlecker could be one of the best pitchers around," acknowledged Drees. "He's capable of beating anybody. He throws hard, has good controls and being a lefthander is definitely an advantage for him."

It was Stahlecker who ended Thief River Falls' high school baseball season this past spring when he pitched a two-hit shutout as the No. 6-seeded Pirates upset the No. 2-seeded Prowlers 4-0 in the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament quarterfinals. That was a scoreless tie until the seventh when three walks issued to the Pirates were followed by back-to-back doubles by Mike Madigan and Stahlecker.

A week later the two teams met in American Legion baseball, but a young Thief River Falls squad with just a couple of high school regulars on the field, lost a 6-2 decision. They met once more last week when Stahlecker struck out 15 and allowed just three hits in a 1-1 tie called in the ninth inning because of darkness.

While visably upset with the draw, Nick Drees isn't about to sell his club short. "We have an opportunity to prove we do belong with a higher seed," he said. "Moorhead is the favorite, but I think they're beatable. You just can't make mistakes against them. They really jump on your mistakes."

Problem with the seeding procedure, according to the Thief River Falls coaches, was the fact that the six Class AA teams did not all play each other during the course of the regular season as they were instructed by Tony Sipe of Ada, the Ninth District American Legion baseball director. Nick Drees, in fact, disliked the Class AA-A concept altogether. "I think it stinks," he said. "I never did think it was a good idea.

TRF Babe Ruth A Team Replaces Prep Squad At State Tournament

Eliminated Tuesday from the Prep portion of the 1983 state Babe Ruth baseball tournament, Thief River Falls' summer youth baseball program will have another state tournament representative beginning Friday in the Babe Ruth state meet at Braemar Field in Edina.

Thief River Falls lost both starts in the 11-team, double-elimination Prep tournament for 13-year-olds at St. Louis Park, losing a 12-9 decision to Westonka Sunday afternoon and dropping an 11-1 game to Apple Valley Tuesday morning.

Coach Doug Henke's Thief River Falls 13-year-olds were 28-1 going into the tournament.

Coach Mark Harder's Thief River Falls Babe Ruth A of 14-15-year-olds team will take a 25-7 record to Edina for a 7 p.m. first round game Friday against an as-of-yet unnamed opponent in the 10-team, double-elimination tournament. A first round win would find Thief River Falls again at 7 p.m. Monday. A first round loss would have the team back on the field Sunday at 1 p.m.

Earlier this week Harder's status for the tournament was in question because of illness, but he insists he will be coaching the team Friday, and he's optimistic about Thief River Falls' chances.

"If we can go down there and hit the ball and play good defense, I don't see why we can't win a couple of games," said the 19-year-old Lincoln high school graduate who played in the tournament himself. "We sure have just as good a pitching staff as anybody else," added Harder. "It's just a matter of playing good defense. When you get at that level it's normally defense that wins or loses it for you."

Thief River Falls' first game-line-up and batting order is expected to include pitcher Jeff Anderson, second baseman Ritchie Bendickson, catcher Lee Hamre, third baseman Tom Knoff, shortstop Kory Joppru, first baseman Marty Levin, leftfielder Dave Johnson, rightfielder Kevin Nelson and centerfielder Mike Kloety. Troy Ausmus, a post-season pick-up addition from East Grand Forks, would probably get the second game pitching start. Dave Onkka and Knoff would be availble for relief pitching.

Harder, who was a freshman at Hamline University in St. Paul last year, says his team has continued to play well after a shaky start, winning 17 of their last 18 games. "They haven't let up since the first couple of weeks," he pointed out. "I guess it took the kids a while to get used to me."

Reaction of the Thief River Falls players when they take the field against multiple-colored all-star teams from the metropolitan area leagues is one of the keys to the team's success at the state tournament level, explained Harder. It's a little unnerving, he admitted, but he hopes to use the experiences he gained as a player to help guide his current club.

Meanwhile, in other post-season play, the Thief River Falls Babe Ruth B team for 14-15-year-olds ended its season with a 10-2-1 record after beating Roseau 22-0 Monday to kick off what was supposed to be a two or three day, four-team double-elimination tournament on the fairgrounds diamond here.

But when East Grand Forks didn't show up for its scheduled 12:30 p.m. game against Crookston the tournament plans were quickly aborted, with Roseau beating Crookston 6-5 in an eight-inning game to wrap it up.

With Harder sick and Henke in the Twin Cities, the Babe Ruth B team was directed by Charlie Cornell, Lincoln high school coach and a coach in the summer Little League program, Monday while the Babe Ruth A team practices were being directed by Ron Novak, Thief River Falls youth baseball program director.

Depending On Ice, Hockey Camp To Open Here Sunday

Hot weather has raised some question as to whether or not the first attempt at having a summer hockey camp in Thief River Falls will be able to go on as scheduled beginning Sunday in the Old Arena.

"We are having some trouble getting it to freeze in the middle," admitted Dave Johnson, president of the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA), sponsors of the North Country Hockey Camp. "We're going to give it everything we can to get it frozen. It looks fair right now," he said in discussing the chances of the two-week operation getting under way. "If we get some decent — cooler — weather, it would certainly help."

Officials will make a decision on the camp's status Friday night and would contact those who have registered for the camp Saturday morning if plans for the camp have to be scraped for this summer.

"We've got 130 local kids registered, and we don't want to let them down," noted Johnson, who gave special thanks to the work being done by the Thief River Falls park and recreation department in the ice-making efforts.

Designed for players who will be Squirts, Pee-Wees, Bantams and high school-age players this year, the first North Country Hockey Camp is scheduled to feature two one-week sessions: Sunday, July 31, through Saturday, August 6; and Sunday, August 7, through Saturday, August 13.

Purpose of the hockey camp is to increase the players' overall hockey understanding and abilities, say officials. The object is to develop the basic skills of the game: skating, passing, shooting, stickhandling, etc. A number of Thief River Falls skaters go elsewhere to hockey camps throughout the summer months, and TRFAHA officials wanted to give more local youths a chance to attend a summer hockey camp at home. Cost of the camp is $50 per week.

There is also a special goaltenders' camp, plus a high school league that will play

American Legion Baseball...

TRF, Crookston Open Playoffs

Pairings were announced Monday for the Ninth District Class AA American Legion baseball tournament, scheduled to be held at Matson Field in Moorhead Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Moorhead was seeded during the coaches' meeting at Ada as the tournament's No. 1 team, followed by East Grand Forks, Detroit Lakes, Thief River Falls, Crookston and Fergus Falls.

First round matches in the double-elimination tournament will find Thief River Falls facing Crookston at 1 p.m. Friday, with Detroit Lakes playing Fergus Falls at 3. That night, the Thief River Falls-Crookston winner will be paired against Moorhead at 6 while the Detroit Lakes-Fergus Falls winner draws East Grand Forks at 8.

Games continue Saturday with loser's bracket games at 1, 3 and 8 p.m., and a match-up of the tournament's remaining unbeaten teams at 6 p.m.

Final game in the loser's bracket will take place Sunday at 2 p.m., with the finals scheduled for 7 p.m. If needed, a second championship game in the double-elimination format would be played Monday at 7 p.m.

Thief River Country Club Hosts Tournament...

Pepsi Challenge Cup Golf Meet Set This Weekend

A field of nine pros will be featured Friday in the Pepsi-KTRF Pro-Am to kick off a weekend of golf activity in the Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup tournament at the Thief River Country Club.

Club pros who have indicated they would take part in the Pro-Am portion of the tournament beginning at 12-noon Friday include Steve Timm, Oxbow Country Club, Hickson, N.D.; Paul O'Leary, Lincoln Park Country Club, Grand Forks, N.D.; Dave Kingsrud, Edgewood Country Club, Fargo, N.D.; Mike Funovits, Fergus Falls Country Club; Colin Bork, Detroit Lakes Country Club; Larry Hoffman, Detroit Lakes Country Club; Bill MacAskill, Edgewood Country Club, Fargo, N.D.; Ed Demery, Fargo Country Club; and Jim McElhany, Apache Wells Country Club, Scottsdale, Arizona.

Teams in the Pro-Am competition will include one pro, plus a four-man or woman squad. Pros will be competing for a $350 first place award out of prize money package, while amateurs will be competing as a team for merchandise certificates in the 3-out-of-5 best ball format with handicap.

Jay Moum, Marv Carlson and Jerry Johnson of Thief River Country Club will golf as amateurs, but will be included among the list of pros to round out the 12-squad Pro-AM line-up.

Marty Irving of Mesabi Country Club in Hibbing won't be back to defend his title he won in a field of 14 pros last year with a one-under-par 71, and one-stroke victory over MacAskill.

McElhany will be a special guest of the Thief River Country Club as he stages a free golf clinic open to the public beginning at 11 a.m. on hole No. 1.

McElhany, who for 10 years was the pro at Fargo Country Club and for five years was the pro at Oxbow Country Club near Fargo, is featured as a trick shot artist who spends his time touring the country to put on his golf demonstrations under the sponsorship of 10 major corporations. He'll leave immediately after Friday's match to perform in Wisconsin.

Entry fee for amateurs in the Pro-Am competition is $15, with a free barbecue picnic to follow the match.

Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday.

Forty-five holes of the medal play championship flight includes 18 holes Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. and 27 holes Sunday. Entry fee is $25.

Men's match play flights start with 18 holes Saturday at 9:15 a.m. and 18 more Sunday. Entry fee is $20.

Women's division will include 18 holes of qualifying play Saturday and 18 holes of medal play (handicap) Sunday. Entry fee is $10.

Junior division will also include 18 holes of qualifying play Saturday and the 18-hole medal play (handicap) Sunday. Entry fee is $10.

Entry fee must accompany tournament registration by 12-noon Friday. Flight times will be posted at 7 that night.

Jim Strandemo of Mahnomen beat Greg Mirrault of Fosston in a playoff to win last year's Challenge Cup title. Marge Corliss of Thief River Falls won the women's medal play competition; Phil Williams won the men's match play title; and Eric Charlson of Thief River Falls won the junior division.

For additional information contact the Pro Shop at the Thief River Country Club, telephone 681-2955.

2.0, 6.2-Mile Races Planned Here Saturday

Starting at 1 p.m. at Floyd B. Olson Park in downtown Thief River Falls, 2.0 and 6.2-mile runs will be held Saturday in conjunction with the Thief River Falls Jaycees Summerfest '83 activities.

Registrations open at 12-noon Saturday at the sports arena. Registration blanks are available at Model Hair Shoppe and at the studios of radio stations KTRF-KSNR. Pre-race registration fee is $4 for the 2.0 and $5 for the 6.2-mile race, with registration fee set at $5 for the 2.0 and $6 for the 6.2-mile race on race day.

Race course is set up through the city's residential areas, off the main highways. Race maps are available at the time of registration. Prizes will be awarded to men and women in various age categories.

Top three finishers in each division will be awarded medals and individual t-shirts, with t-shirts also furnished to the first 100 participants to register for the race.

— Youth Baseball —

Playoff activity starts Friday in the Thief River Falls summer youth baseball program.

Bambino Minor League East Division teams will kick off tournament play Friday with first round games in the four-team, double-elimination playoffs. Games that afternoon on the Little League diamond will find the Blue Jays playing the Twins at 1 p.m. while the Yankees play the A's at 3.

Those games resume Tuesday when the first round losers meet at 1 p.m. and the first round winners play at 3. Final loser's bracket game will be played Wednesday at 3 p.m., with the championship game scheduled Thursday, August 4, at 1 p.m.

There will also be a first-round playoff game Friday at 6 p.m. in the Bambino Major League when the No. 4 and 5 regular season finishers are matched up, with that winner facing regular season pennant winner Red Lake Falls Monday at 7 p.m. in the five-team, double-elimination tournament on the Little League diamond. The No. 2 and 3 finishers meet at 5 that night.

Major League playoff games continue Tuesday and Wednesday at 5 and 7 p.m. both nights, with the finals scheduled Thursday, August 4, at 5 p.m.

Minor League West Division playoffs start Monday at 3 p.m. when the No. 1-seeded team plays No. 4 and No. 2 plays No. 3. Those games continue Tuesday at 1 and 3 p.m. and Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. Finals will be played Thursday.

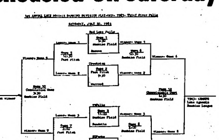
JASON LEE PULLED into third base with a fourth inning triple against Roseau Monday during the Lake Agassiz District 7 Babe Ruth B baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds played in Thief River Falls. Thief River Falls won the one-sided game 22-0.

Invitational For 10-11-12-Year-Olds . . .

Baseball Tournament Is Scheduled On Saturday



An eight-team field of 10-11-12-year-olds will take part Saturday in the first Lake Agassiz Bambino Division invitational youth baseball tournament in Thief River Falls.

Entire 12-game package — a single elimination tournament with a consolation bracket, seventh place game and third place game — will be completed Saturday using the Little League baseball and fast pitch softball diamonds at the fairgrounds.

First round match-ups will feature upper bracket games at 9:30 a.m. as Red Lake Falls faces Roseau on the Little League diamond and Crookston meets Warroad on the fast pitch diamond. First round games in the bottom bracket at 11 a.m. will find Thief River Falls playing Baudette on the Little League diamond while East Grand Forks goes against Williams on the fast pitch diamond.

Games continue throughout the day. Finals will include the consolation championship game at 3:30 p.m. on the Little League diamond; the seventh place game at 3:30 p.m. on the fast pitch diamond; the third place game at 5 p.m. on the Little League diamond; and the title game at 6:30 p.m. on the Little League diamond.

Thief River Falls' tournament entry will be an all-star team from the city's Bambino Major League for 10-11-12-year-olds, coached by Myron Peterson and Charlie Cornell.

Members of the Thief River Falls All-Stars will include Deanne Thompson, Aaron Bruzek, Robby Coltom and Jeremy Anderson of the Yankees; Corey Poole, Todd Brandon and Jason Kempert of the Twins; Rick Looker, Dean DuChamp and Paul Lofberg of the A's; Jeremy Dicken, Shawn Myhrer, Mike Holmgren and Tom Brouse of the Blue Jays.

Thief River Falls All-Stars swept Bemidji Friday in an exhibition doubleheader played here, winning a quick, well-played opening game 3-1 and taking the second game 11-5.

Bemidji had a 4-2 base hit edge in the opener, but the visitors committed all three of their errors in the second inning, allowing all three Thief River Falls runs. The winners also had three errors, but scattered them. Winning pitcher was Todd Brandon. Losing pitcher was Erik Runnigan.

Deanne Thompson, Rick Looker and Dean DuChamp pitched two innings each in the nightcap and DuChamp also hit a two-run home run for the winners who had a 9-7 base hit edge. Bemidji collected five of the game's six errors.

Thief River Falls All-Stars are tentatively scheduled to have a tournament warm-up exhibition game Thursday at 6 p.m. against a collection of league coaches.

Tournament Is Rescheduled

St. Hilaire mixed doubles slow pitch softball tournament, originally scheduled to be played Sunday, has been rescheduled for the following Sunday, August 7, it was announced today.

Entry fee for the 16-team tournament is $45. Tournament directors are Mark and Steve Drury, St. Hilaire, telephone 964-5754.

Legion Sweeps Fergus Falls

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team begins post-season tournament this weekend at the newly-designed Ninth District Class AA playoffs in Moorhead with a 22-6-1 record following a 5-1, 4-3 season-ending doubleheader sweep at Fergus Falls Saturday.

TRF	5
Fergus Falls	1

Tim Nyland pitched a three-hitter as Thief River Falls beat Fergus Falls 5-1 in the doubleheader opener. Nyland struck out four and walked just two in improving his record to a team-best 6-1 mark.

Thief River Falls took a narrow 2-1 lead and turned it into a 5-1 cushion with a three-run third inning when Kirk Jenson and Gary Cornell drew one-out walks, with an outfield error sandwiched between RBI singles by Ryan Drees and Nyland.

A first inning Thief River Falls run crossed the plate when Tim Bottem drew a two-out walk, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Jenson.

In the fourth, Drees led off with a single and advanced around the bases on a pair of Fergus Falls errors.

Fergus Falls scored in the fourth as Todd Barry and Jason Wentler walked and Shawn Stroud followed with a single.

TRF	4
Fergus Falls	3

Thief River Falls scored the winning run without the benefit of a base hit in the fifth inning to complete a doubleheader sweep with a 4-3 second game victory.

Tied 3-3, Thief River Falls won it in the fifth when Kerry Wollin and Kirk Jenson drew back-to-back walks to start the inning. A wild pitch and an infield ground-out plated the run.

Thief River Falls scored in the second inning when walks given to Bob Huot and Ryan Drees, plus a single by Jim Hallamek, loaded the bases and a wild pitch allowed Huot to score.

In the second, the winners bunched four of their base hits together for two runs as Wollin, Jenson, Al Ness and Brian Kemnitz all singled to open the inning.

Fergus Falls scored in the first inning on a walk given to lead-off batter Jason Wentler, plus back-to-back one-out singles by Ward Olson and Todd Johnson.

Two Fergus Falls runs crossed the plate in the fourth as Mike Donley walked and Dean Thorsen hit a one-out triple. Greg Hexum singled home the tying run.

Trap Shooting Begins Tonight At New Site

Trap shooting at the new club grounds recently acquired by the Thief River Trap Club will begin tonight (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. and continue each Monday and Wednesday from 6 p.m. to dusk.

Grounds are located three miles north of Thief River Falls on Highway 59 and one and one-quarter miles west. Development work is being done on the new location and only one trap is presently in use. There is no league shooting and anyone interested in shotgun shooting for fun is encouraged to participate.

Club officials are atempting to accomplish much of the development work this summer and be ready for a full season of competitive shooting in 1984.

Fri., July 29 — United Satellite Systems vs. Poppler's, 7:30 p.m.; Neibauer's vs. Schmidts-Coke, 9 p.m.

Thief River Falls men's fast pitch softball league, idled last week during the Pennington county fair that surrounds its fairgrounds diamond, will resume its 1983 regular season schedule with five games this week, beginning with a doubleheader tonight (Wednesday) that is scheduled to get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Schmidts-Coke was a runner-up finisher in a 48-team Red River Valley invitational Sunday in Fargo, winning four games before dropping a 5-2 title game decision to Dodge Manufacturing of Alexandria.

Thief River Falls' entry reached the finals by beating West Fargo Advance Heating-Town Hall Bar 3-0, Gaylord 8-3, Fargo Josef's Juniors 13-3 and Sabin 9-4.

Alexandria's championship team broke open a scoreless final when Tim Cullen, the Fergus Falls high school hockey coach, came up with an RBI single in the third. Two Schmidts-Coke errors put them in a 2-0 hole in the fourth and it became 3-0 before Schmidts-Coke bunched singles by Paul Walker, Jim Hallamek and Greg Harder for a run in the bottom of the fifth. Walker's single was the loser's first hit of the game off righthander Jim Hemmingson, who gave up just 18 hits and struck out 32 during the tournament.

Nick Drees homered for Schmidts-Coke in the sixth, but it was 5-1 by then.

WINNING PITCHER Jeff Hamness came without one out of a no-hitter Monday as Thief River Falls blanked Roseau 22-0 in the Lake Agassiz District 7 Babe Ruth B baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds played at the fairgrounds diamond. Hamness finished with a one-hitter in the 4½-inning rout.

— Men's Slow Pitch —

Division I leaders E.T.'s Bees and American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods kept pace with each other Tuesday with doubleheader sweeps in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association.

E.T.'s Bees met the biggest challenge, beating the Grygla Merchants 9-3 in the opener of the split twinbill, then getting by challenger Pepsi Bottling Co. 11-9 as a Jim Thompson grand slam home run offset a three homer performance by the loser's Paul Storhaug.

Meanwhile, American Legion - Miller Beer - TG Sporting Goods swept Falls Clinic 12-2 and Hamms-Pizza Hut 14-4 after a championship performance Sunday in the 16-team, double-elimination Park Rapids Logging - Day invitational tournament where they beat Cass Lake 8-4 in the finals for a 5-0 record.

In Division II play Monday, Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn had its lead chopped to one game after a 10-9 loss to Farmer's Co-op Elevator, but Wennberg's Welding opened up a two-game gap in Division III with Monday wins over The Law 17-4 and Country Kitchen-Coke 14-4 while second place Sound Level-Hardees lost to Fleet Supply 8-7.

TRF Ladies Golf League Results Are Announced

Current standings were announced today for the ladies golf league at the Thief River Country Club.

In the A League, Northern State Bank is the leader with a 1,034-stroke total, followed by Sjoberg's Cable TV 1,052, Evan's Seed, Wool & Fur 1,056, Bredeson's Office Supply 1,064, Thune-Upham Realty 1,083 and Digi-Key Corp. 1,089.

B League standings showed Gordon's Hallmark at 985, Miracle Water 1,010, Northern Motors 1,012, Norwest Bank 1,067, Lee Plumbing & Heating 1,067 and TG Sporting Goods 1,074.

Low net honors in the latest weekly results went to Dorothy Boyer with a 29 in A League play and to Karla Stavnes and JoAnn Novack, who both shot 24 in B League play.

Game of the day honors for putting green games went to Gladys DeBryn in the A League and Marilyn Charlson in the B League.

State's Duck Population Is Reported Down

A May survey of waterfowl breeding pairs in Minnesota indicates that breeding birds have declined about 25 per cent overall according to Department of Natural Resources wildlife officials.

Wildlife biologists estimate the duck population to be 568,000 this year.

Leading the decline were blue-winged teal which were down 50 per cent over last year. Little change was measured in ring-necked populations while mallards were up slightly.

Among the diving ducks, a 40 per cent increase in redheads was noted. Ruddy ducks increased by about 15 per cent.

A 30 per cent decrease in canvasbacks surprised wildlife officials as generally wet years are good for diving ducks.

A survey of ponds showed a decline from 163,000 to 151,000, an eight per cent decrease from last year. This was attributed to weather conditions, officials noted.

Throughout Minnesota, heavy rains generally came too late for breeding ducks. West-central Minnesota was especially dry this spring with no appreciable rainfall until after the breeding season. In addition, this area did not have heavy snow cover and spring runoff was light.

Southern Minnesota showed the least decline in ponds with good moisture all year.

DNR NEWS

Copper-Nickel Exploration

Minnesota's eighth sale of copper-nickel exploration and mining leases will be held in November or December according to Department of Natural Resources officials.

Lease sale plans are being announced at this time to allow mining companies, public interest groups and all other interested parties time to review the areas under consideration.

Exact time of the lease sale and a list of state lands offered will be announced at least 30 days prior to the sale.

Areas under consideration for lease sale cover portions of the Duluth complex in St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties and portions of the Greenstone formation in St. Louis, Itasca, Koochiching, Beltrami, Lake of the Woods, Roseau and Marshall counties.

Some lands being considered were offered at previous copper-nickel lease sales but were not leased.

A map showing general areas under consideration may be obtained from the DNR, Division of Minerals, Box 45 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; phone 612-296-4807.

Exploration and mining of copper, nickel and associated minerals on state-owned and administered lands are authorized and regulated by Minnesota's copper-nickel rules.

Under these rules, lessees are required to pay minimum rentals (which increase with time), to pay royalties for all ore mined and removed, to submit data and other reports and to address environmental concerns.

Archery Deadline

Archers are reminded that the deadline for applications for the special deer hunt in Camp Ripley is August 1.

Official application forms may be obtained by writing Archery Hunt, RR4, Box 19A, Little Falls, MN 56345.

A total of 3,600 hunters will be selected for this year's bow hunt. Department of Natural Resources wildlife officials said that to date less than 1,500 hunters have applied for the hunt.

Hunters must indicate whether they are applying for either the October 8-9 hunt or the October 15-16 hunt.

North Country Arts & Crafts Workshop Set

Brochures are now available at the Pennington county extension office for the 8th annual North Country arts and crafts workshop to be held September 27, 28 and 29 near Bemidji. "Living Resourcefully" is the theme that has been assigned to this years workshop by staff of the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service which sponsors the annual educational activity.

A core of classes will teach how to inventory resources and turn them into assets for family use. "Clothes Closet Economy," "Quilt-as-You-Go", "Heirloom Braided Rugs", "Recovering Lampshades", "Machine Applique", and "Make Your Own Notes, Cards and Stationery" are all classes that recycle used items into attractive useful products.

Food management skills will be learned in the "Fixin' Fish" class. A fishing skills class will show to catch the lunker, making your own lures. Homemakers can learn how to take better advantage of microwave ovens by taking the microwave cooking class.

Participants attend for a variety of reasons. Some learn new skills for leisure time as a hobby or to earn some extra cash. Reducing stress and building self-esteem are other reasons named by past participants. Still others learn so they can return to home-communities to become teachers in both volunteer and paid positions. To accommodate this special group, a new class "Teaching Others" is being offered by a University of Minnesota educator.

It's the second year for the program emphasis on "Your Home Based Business." Classes this year include: "Management to Turn a Profit," "Selling Strategies", "Advertising and Promotion", and "The Legal Side".

Package fees include registration, meals, coffee breaks and lodging if needed. Class costs are generally $3 for each three hour class and $6 for each six hour class. Evening programs had been planned to include entertainment as well as education. Registration must be done in advance and is handled on a first come-first served basis.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Your editorial of July 18, 1983, Establishing Irreligion, betrays an astonishing lack of sensitivity to religious minorities in this country. In addition, your caricature of Jewish people is patently offensive.

The basic premise of your article appears to be that one is either Christian or irreligious. After all, you imply, why else would one oppose the government's promoting of Christian values and theology?

The only awareness you show of non-Christian spiritual traditions is your depiction of Jewish merchants and their families, standing beside a cash register and singing, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Now, maybe I misinterpreted the article, since you also imply that Christmas is a business, a secular practice of giving gifts, and a piece of history. In that case, what a business boom we could create by all celebrating the month long Moslem holiday of Ramadan, or the eight day Jewish festival of Hannukah. But then who would be establishing irreligion?

Sincerely,
Scott Temple
Thief River Falls, MN

To the Editor:

This past weekend our son Troy was privileged and honored to be a part of the 14-15-year-old Babe Ruth team from Thief River Falls (via the draft). This was an exciting experience for him and us as well.

The reason I'm writing is to compliment the coach, Mark Harder, all the players on the team and the parents of these boys. They were exceptionally friendly and well mannered. It was made very easy for Troy to play with and for them and we were all very impressed.

Thank you very much and we look forward to being with the team and families next weekend in Edina.

To The Editor:

In regard to all the talk about tax reduction for Minstar, it seems businesses come and go, mostly go after they made money.

I don't see anyone lowering the farmers' taxes regardless of disaster or low prices, so I think if you're going to give one business a break, you better do it for all of us.

Sincerely,
Liz Carlson

Ask Engelstad To Seek Senate

(This is the seventh article in a continuing review of the life of Peder Engelstad, pioneer farmer in the Thief River Falls area. The series began as a result of the Engelstad family reunion which attracted descendants from throughout the United States to Thief River Falls early in July.)

by Melvin Engelstad

Peder is Urged to Become Candidate for State Senate

As if to round out the character of Peder, whose experience not only had been derived from farming, insurance and civic leadership, but from his direct association in corporate business — and more recently, that of public speaking — he was prevailed upon to become a candidate for state senator from the 65th Senatorial district, made up of Pennington, Clearwater and Red Lake counties. An excerpt from an editorial that appeared in a local newspaper at the time follows:

"While Mr. Engelstad is not an orator, he is able to express himself, and, as Magnus Johnson says, is able to make himself understood. His many years spent in this part of the state, his personal experiences both as a farmer and a worker and leader in various cooperative enterprises, make him eminently well qualified to represent the district in the State Senate. He is opposed in the primaries by two lawyers and will probably be out-campaigned, but when the votes are counted he should not be out-numbered."

O.A. Naplin, one of the winners in the primary, died during the summer, and his widow opposed Peder in the general election. Peder ran on a non-partisan ticket (not to be confused with the Non-Partisan league) and devoted no more than three weeks to active campaigning, when he traveled by car, chauffeured for two weeks by ex-sheriff LaBree and one week by his son Paul. His defeat in the general election by Mrs. Naplin was not unexpected. The significance of his activity in this connection was not that he lost the election, but that he ran for this important office at the acclaim of the citizens of the community and that he added a political chapter to his varied experience.

Minneapolis Tribune Carries Feature Story in Sunday Edition Covering Alfalfa Day Celebration in 1927 at Thief River Falls

Inspired by the Alfalfa Day celebration in 1927, Charles F. Collisson, feature writer for the "Minneapolis Tribune," wrote an article that was carried in the Sunday edition on January 30, 1927, extolling, in general, Pennington county's progress in agriculture and its dairying and growing of alfalfa in particular. Mr. Collisson speaks of Peder:

"Yet in Pennington county, Peder Engelstad, pioneer farmer, dairyman, alfalfa king, and a leader in setting the pace for other dairymen and the community, has a stand of green alfalfa still "going strong" at 25 years of age. . . As a consequence, when wheat prices dropped downward some years ago, and other farmers were hard up or "broke," this sturdy dairyman suffered no depression of spirits or bank account."

Then, the writer quoted Peder: "I had my cows and my alfalfa. They both tided me over. My yield of hay is as heavy now as it was in the first years. I get four and one-half tons to the acre in two cuttings each season. My other alfalfa stands are just as good, also. The return in money per acre is larger than my wheat crops ever paid me. Of course, the best market for alfalfa hay is in the milk pail. The money comes in the form of monthly cream checks."

Mr. Collisson's article continues: "Other farmers on these rich Red River Valley soils have found out that Mr. Engelstad's advice to grow alfalfa, long ridiculed in earlier days, to be a pretty good guide to farm prosperity after all. Whenever anyone asks about how to farm successfully around Thief River Falls, the answer usually is, 'Go out and look at Peder Engelstad's place. . .' The Engelstad fields are as fertile today as when they first felt the stir and scour of the plow share. Sow thistle and quack grass, all the weeds and pests that infest other men's grain fields, are smothered out by alfalfa, or rooted out by careful tillage."

Sunday Edition of Grand Forks Herald, September 18, 1927, Has Write-up by E.H. Cooley Accompanied by Pictues of Peder's Dairy Herd and Farm Buildings

This article went into detail concerning the income of the farm, and Mr. Cooley's story was captioned with the headline, "Peder Engelstad of Thief River Falls Has Annual Income of $20,000 or More from His Guernsey Herd." The opening paragraph provided an interesting comparison of two farmers as follows:

"It is a remarkable thing in these days to hear a farmer say that he is not worrying about anything, and that his farm is in such condition that he has nothing to worry about. Last week, we had the story of a farmer whose extensive fields and heavy yields of wheat have earned for him the title of "Wheat King," and this week the story of another equally successful farmer who raises no wheat at all. Both said the same thing, 'I have northing to worry about, and I am not worrying.' "

THANK YOU

The all new Grandstand Jam was a great success. We were especially proud of the well mannered and behaved young people that attended. There were no problems to our knowledge.

We'd like to thank the 4-H ambassadors for all their help and support.

A special thanks to all the supporting business places that donated the swell prizes; that added to the excitement of the evening.

Once again, our personal handshake and pat on the back to all the young people who made this event a pleasure to be a part of.

Thank You,
The Pennington County Fair Board

OUR FIRST PAIR OF SHOES

A great king, so the legend goes, once stepped on a thorn in his garden. In a furious rage he ordered his prime minister to cover his entire kingdom with leather. "Your Majesty," replied the wise prime minister, "let me cover your feet with leather, and wherever you go you will be protected." And so the first pair of shoes was made!

The little fellow whose first pair of shoes appealed to our photographer has a long way to travel. His journey through life will not be free of thorns. And he'll need more than shoes to make that journey!

He'll need to develop that spiritual fiber which will do for his character what the first pair of shoes did for the king's feet. A man can't carpet the whole world—but he can acquire the faith and courage which will enable him to climb life's most rugged trails.

Our Churches and Synagogues bring such qualities to the life of man. They point the way to happy, wholesome living—for the grown-up with the burdens of life on his shoulders—and for the little tot in his first pair of shoes.

Strandquist

Mrs. Irene Larson, Strandquist
436-2890

Mr. and Mrs. Art Vansickle and Oscar Backlin of rural Warren, and Ida Bruce visited Anne Bernhardson Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dyrud and boys have spent the week visiting at the Paul Flaten home and at the Harvey Dyrud home at Newfolden. Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schaffhauser and Anne have also visited here at the Paul Flaten home for the past 10 days. Both families returned to their homes in the Twin Cities area Monday.

Elphie Adlis, Berdell Katones, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Chwialkowski and children, Sue and Darwin Nelson, Rita Sollund and girls, Carol Hugg and boys, Elmer and Gena Henrickson have been visitors during the past week at the Steve Chwialkowski home.

Adeline Stennes and Anne Bernhardson visited Thursday at the Charles Kranz home in Thief River Falls.

Ruth Holmstrom gave her son Roger a small plant just a few inches high this spring. Sunday at the KMNC dinner the Holmstroms drove to Roger's home to see the plant. It was now three or four feet tall. Roger must really have the "green thumb" knowhow. They also visited at Bernard Stusynskis and with Anna Stusynski. Later going on a trip to see the Old Mill state park and see the camping area where Alvin spent many hours at work some years ago. Ruth who doesn't get out that much really enjoyed the trip.

Senior Citizens News

It was another warm day when the senior citizens met for their regular weekly meeting Thursday, July 21st. There were 16 that registered and Clara Nelson, Emma Schey, Ella Thun and Roy Duvos of Karlstad and Hilmer Johnson of Middle River were our guests.

It was fun to have Ruth Anderson and Gust Johnson with us again. Some of our other members were absent. Ruth H. and Anne B. were on the sick list, Polly was in the cities and don't know the reason for the absence of Anna H. and Sophie.

We enjoyed visiting with our guests and then prayed the table grace before lunch.

Irene Larson was hostess Thursday.

Irene reporting

Emogene and Ruth Anderson went shopping in Thief River Falls a week ago Friday. Ruth stayed to visit at the Adolph Anderson home until Sunday, July 17th. That Sunday Adolph took Ruth to help Lois celebrate her birthday. Kathy and Becky Beito were also visitors for Lois' birthday. Ruth was an overnight guest at the Johnson home from Sunday until Tuesday when Ruth and Marion Johnson drove to Karlstad to visit Edna Berg, then back home to Ruth's.

Elsie and Ivan Kimbrough drove to Grand Forks last Monday where Elsie had a check-up. Later they visited at the Don Peterson home at Crookston. Tuesday Elsie went to Thief River Falls to get her new glasses and Elsie and Ivan visited with Gilman and Adeline Stennes. Tuesday evening.

Complying With The Law

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Financial aid advisors at colleges and universities, wailing bitterly about the law which requires students who wish to receive federal aid to register with Selective Service at 18, are becoming terribly tiresome.

It all started when President Reagan signed the law passed by Congress in January, to take effect in July. Posters clearly stating the requirement were mailed to financial aid officers to explain that students who fail to register will not be eligible for federal aid. Registering is no problem, the poster states. "It's quick, it's easy and it's the law."

U.S. district Judge Donald Alsop of St. Paul temporarily blocked enforcement of the law on March 10. He issued a permanent injunction, applying nationwide and not just to Minnesota, on June 24. Five days later, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed that injunction which means that the law must be enforced at least until the high court's next session when full arguments will probably be heard.

There are some legitimate objections from the college and universities. It can be argued that the federal government should be able to find better means of enforcing the draft than by requiring additional paperwork and supervision by institutions of higher learning. There is no denying that enforcement of the law costs money in terms of personnel and paperwork.

Pointing out that in Minnesota only about two per cent of the young men have failed to register with Selective Service, U of M president C. Peter McGrath suggests that the law is "like using a B-1 bomber to wipe out a mosquito."

"We're being asked to withhold aid as a kind of discipline for students who haven't registered," says Paul Aasen, director of financial aid for Gustavus Adolphus College at St. Peter. "We are being asked to enforce something that doesn't relate directly to student aid, so we're doing work for the Department of Justice in addition to the U.S. Department of Education. That's what it essentially boils down to."

Surely college officials must realize the importance and volume of federal aid for students. Many colleges and universities might be struggling if it were not available to their students. An estimated 47,000 draft-age men applied for federal aid in Minnesota last year.

It all seems so simple. Why should any young man who seeks aid from the federal government refuse to do his duty and register for Selective Service? Certainly the government owes no obligation to anyone who will not do what hundreds of thousands of young Americans have completed without questions.

By their clamor, however, a few college and university officials make us wonder if they believe the purpose of an institution of higher learning is to foster dissent or to encourage compliance with the laws of the United States.

Ely Downs

Following editorial by Bob Cary is from the Ely Echo:

Like most of the other major metropolitan population centers in the U.S., Ely faces many financial problems. And like New York, Atlantic City, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and Twig, it is looking for more tax revenue. Twig? That is the metropolitan center to the south. Duluth is one of Twig's suburbs.

The state is also looking for more tax revenue... like all of the other states. And the Minnesota legislature is not looking fondly upon the idea of collecting revenue from legalized gambling. A few years ago, when money wasn't too tight, gambling was considered sinful. The legislature, being four-square against sin, made gambling illegal. However, the income from gambling in such centers at Atlantic City and Las Vegas has caused legislators to re-evaluate sin. Betting on horses, the Minnesota politicians have determined, is infinitely less sinful than shooting craps or playing poker. No doubt they have discovered something to that effect in the Bible . . . or perhaps have rewritten that part of the Old Testament. In any event, it is no longer a question of if there will be legalized horse racing in Minnesota, but where.

Among the major metropolises in Minnesota with financial problems, Ely must be up near the top. Unemployment is over 25 per cent. Tax income to the city is precarious. For that reason, a few of the town's more civic-minded citizens have formed an Ely Downs Committee, with the idea of possibly establishing a race track in the near vicinity.

The committee, composed mainly of members of the old Ely Walleye and Forensic Society, plus a few stalwarts from the Ely Committee to Save Minneapolis and St. Paul, have made an in-depth study of the local situation and have come up with what may be the salvation of the city... or at least the office of City Treasurer.

The first thing the study determined was that there is not enough ready capital in the area to build a race track. Thus the recommendation is to consider the cinder track around the Ely High School football field, since the bleachers are all in place to seat racing fans and there is ample space beneath the seats to house the parimutuel betting windows... you know, where they sell the hot dogs during the football games.

Horses were initially a problem. It takes a lot of cash prize money to get top notch race horses to run at any track, and Ely simply has no cash. However, a horse was discovered on a farm south of town and this noble animal, admittedly slow, but rather sturdy from skidding pulp logs, could provide all the horse flesh needed.

Right away there are readers who will be snickering about Ely having a "one-horse race track" but this is not as dumb as it sounds. With just one horse running in each race, every bettor is a winner. Ely Downs would be the only track in the whole world where every bettor wins. The questions naturally arises: "How can you pay off the winners and still make money?"

Simple. You do it with the odds, just like they do at Churchill Downs, Belmont of Flamingo Park. At Ely Downs the odds would be something like 3 to 5. That is, you win back $3 out of every $5 you bet. And the track keeps $2. Just having the only track in the world where everybody wins every race should create a terrific influx of tourists, particularly the thousands of horse racing fans who have never picked a winner.

There are some critics who point out that getting back $3 on every $5 wagered is not exactly an arrangement beneficial to the bettor. On the other hand, it is probably a lot better return than the citizens are getting for every other $5 they are paying in taxes these days.

Anyone with any further ideas along this line, contact the editor. That is, on Thursday or Friday. The other days of the week he is apt to be out fishing... where the odds are not even as good as 3 to 5.

Customer Relation Advice

Following suggestions are provided by the Minnesota Retail Merchants association and make good sense for anyone involved in selling a product or service:

An important element to customer relations often overlooked is the customer who is unhappy, but does not make a formal complaint.

Many retailers do not realize that this dissatisfied customer will usually not return to their store and will tell others of their unpleasant experience.

Here's five ways you can improve your customer relations and reduce the number of dissatisfied customers.

(1) Solicit complaints make it easy for unhappy customers to tell you what their problems are.

(2) Solve customer complaints as quickly as possible and with a smile.

(3) Keep records of why complaints occur.

(4) Analyze how complaints can be presented and make changes in your products and marketing procedures when appropriate.

(5) Provide incentives to encourage your salespeople to carry out the policies described above.

Borrowed Nonsense:

When Gov. Janklow of South Dakota visited Gov. Perpich's office in St. Paul, he was told the gold phone there was a direct line to heaven. He asked to use it, talked about an hour, asked the charges and was told $25.

Later, when Gov. Perpich visited the South Dakota capitol, he saw a gold phone in Gov. Janklow's office. Informed it had the same purpose, he was given permission to use it and talked about three hours. When he asked the charges, he was told "just 10 cents; it's a local call."

Adolescence is the age when a child is too old to say something cute and too young to say something sensible.

The customer was distressed about the size of his auto repair bill and asked about the last number in the column. "Oh, that," the business manager explained. "That's our surcharge for staying within our estimate."

PHOTOGRAPHY AND ADVANCED clothing construction grand championships were won by Collette Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club. An automotive trouble light was used as a light source to get the picture of a friend's cat. Reserve champions were Loren Haagenson of the Silverton club in photography, and by Jackie Thune in clothing construction.

FOOD REVUE, a new project in the Pennington county 4-H club division this year, was won by Jaki Weleski of the New Solum 4-H club. Her grand champion ribbon almost appears to have been designed as part of her table decoration. Reserve champion in the project was Lisa Rahn of the Happy Acres 4-H club.

Looking Backward

1943 — 40 YEARS AGO

Ralph A. Luhman was named to succeed Cliff Bjorkman as chief air raid warden in Thief River Falls. — Alex Campbell resigned as deputy registrar of motor vehicles here after serving ten years, with A.F. Berge named to succeed him. — F.A. Brown, Grygla postmaster, was elected president of the Northwest Minnesota Association of Conservation Clubs. — Thief River Falls businessmen were being recruited to assist with harvest operations in the area.

1953 — 30 YEARS AGO

Although bids were $18,004 more than the architects' estimates, the Northwestern Hospital board voted to accept bids totaling $832,054 on construction of a large addition to the institution. — Ole Legvold, who served more than 30 years as superintendent of the Thief River Falls water and light department, died at the age of 70. — Lightning set fire which destroyed two barns on the Erickson Bros. farm north of Hazel, with a loss of $5,000. — Herman Kjos was reelected chairman of the Pennington county Red Cross Chapter.

1963 — 20 YEARS AGO

Edgar Hetteen, founder and president of Arctic Enterprises in Thief River Falls, manufacturers of snow-traveling machines, announced his company placed $100,000 of its common stock on sale to provide additional working capital; the local plant producing about 1,000 units in 1962, with prospects for doubling or tripling that figure this year. — Radio station KTRF in Thief River Falls received permission from the FCC to increase its daytime broadcast power from 250 to 1,000 watts. — Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hanson of rural Goodridge celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 7.

1973 — 10 YEARS AGO

Dr. Earl Dagg was elected chairman of the board of Northwestern Hospital, succeeding James Winjum. — For the third time in the past two months the Lincoln high school library was the target of vandalism. — Mr. and Mrs. John Helle observed their 50th wedding anniversary. — Harwood Olsen, 62, Thief River Falls electrician, died at Red Lake Falls. — Arctic Enterprises, Inc., snowmobile, boat and lawn mower manufacturer based in Thief River Falls, reported a consolidated net loss for its first quarter ended June 30, 1973 of $1,215,662, with company president John Penn reporting that the snowmobile division incurred a loss of approximately $975,000 as compared with a profit of $400,000 for the same period a year ago. — Northland state junior college will change its name to Northland community college August 1, a name change that was carried in a bill introduced at the last state legislative session. — Liberally splashed with rain which came in deluge fashion several times, the 72nd annual Pennington county fair found crowds somewhat reduced during its four-day run as the William D. Stanley shows on the midway turned into a sea of mud. — Debbie Reierson of the New Solum 4-H Club was named 1973 queen of the Pennington county 4-H club dress revue.

Harvest States Sunflower/Flax Marketing Pool.

Deliver your crop without selling at harvest prices...go for a fair price without a futures contract.

Eyes, ears and a say in the market. This Marketing Pool is an option to selling your crop or storing it yourself.

Eliminates the problems of on-farm storage. Your local elevator has the facilities for proper drying and storage. You're credited with product quality at harvest time delivery. And have on-farm storage for other uses.

Avoids new crop low prices. This controlled marketing plan spreads sales over the year. Lets you deliver at harvest and seeks a seasonal average price.

You're paid part on delivery and the balance on agreement. The plan lets you deliver new crop at harvest or old crop before. You receive an interest-free advance, additional payment at marketing and final adjustment, if necessary.

Details and agreement form at your local elevator. This program is flexible enough to fit every farm operation. Get all the specific details and sign-up form from your elevator manager after July 1.

APPLY PIGEONGRASS CONTROL NOW.

Now is the ideal time to apply granular Treflan®. Applying granular Treflan during your post harvest tillage is an easy way to get a jump on next year's work. And granular Treflan applied post harvest for pigeongrass control can mean bigger wheat yields and less dockage.

Apply and incorporate in one pass and you're done until next spring. You can apply and incorporate granular Treflan anytime after wheat harvest. One incorporation pass is all that's needed until spring, then one more pass ahead of seeding will finish the job.

Convenience and more. Granular Treflan works particularly well on stubble, and no prior tillage is necessary. You also get completely away from the water hauling hassle by going with granular Treflan. This convenience feature alone should convince you to try granular Treflan this year.

SAVE MOISTURE NEXT SPRING.

The less you work your ground in the spring, the more moisture you'll retain. And some years, a little moisture saved this way can give your crop some real yield help. Rough, fall-tilled ground is actually better at catching and holding snow, too. You may get to start the growing season in a little better shape by going with granular Treflan applied anytime after harvest.

A Perfectly Peachy Cake For The Season!

Take advantage of all the fresh peaches of the season and serve scrumptiously moist Peach Crumb Cake at your next afternoon coffee or informal brunch on the patio. It's a convenient, one pan dessert made easy with blushing ripe peaches or flavorful nectarines, Jell-O® brand instant pudding and pie filling mix and all-purpose biscuit mix. Prepare ahead, then enjoy the peachy-keen weather knowing your dessert is ready whenever your company arrives!

PEACH CRUMB CAKE

- 1 package (4-serving size) Jell-O butterscotch flavor instant pudding and pie filling
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- *1/8 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg*
- 2/3 cup milk
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract
- 2-1/4 cups all-purpose biscuit mix
- 1 cup diced peeled fresh peaches or nectarines*

*Or use 1 cup fresh blueberries and 1/8 teaspoon mace.

Combine pudding mix, sugar and butter in bowl, blending with pastry blender or fork until mixture forms coarse crumbs; stir in nuts. Measure 1 cup crumb mixture, add cinnamon and nutmeg; set aside. To remaining crumb mixture, add milk, egg, almond extract and biscuit mix; stir to blend well. Fold in 3/4 cup of the peaches. Pour into greased and floured 9-inch layer pan. Scatter remaining 1/4 cup peaches over batter and sprinkle with reserved crumb mixture. Bake at 350° for 45 to 50 minutes or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean. Cool 5 minutes. Invert on rack, turn crumb side up and cool. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar, if desired.

Graduate Student Studies Impact Of Nuclear War

by Paul Dienhart
'U'M News Service

Michael Curry has spent the past two and a half years reading about what will happen if there is a nuclear war. As a candidate for a Ph.D. in geography at the University of Minnesota, Curry thought it seemed an appropriate subject for his thesis. After all, nuclear war is bound to have a profound effect upon geography.

After reading government documents from the 1940s and poring over the "avalanche" of popular books and articles on nuclear war published in the past couple years, Curry concluded: "The quality of the debate could be cleaned up quite a bit." Trying to look at the materials objectively, Curry found a fairly narrow range of ideas and a number of faulty assumptions.

"There are few balanced perspectives on nuclear war," Curry said. "The writers usually have an ax to grind, arguing either for an arms buildup or for arms reductions."

One common assumption is that society evolves in definite stages, beginning with hunting and gathering, progressing to small-scale agriculture and then evolving into commerce and industry. Writers on both sides of the debate tend to assume that a nuclear holocaust would set society back a certain number of notches on this time line, and that the course of evolution would be toward the society we have today. "I think that's insane," Curry said. "It implies there are no other possible ways to organize society. It shows a surprising lack of imagination for a debate that depends upon speculation."

Another assumption reveals a prejudice held by the sort of people who write about nuclear war. "There's general belief in a meritocracy where people with the highest IQs naturally rise to the status of white collar workers in big cities," Curry said. "The subsequent concern is that these workers are in the most vulnerable places for nuclear attack. A major nuclear war would eliminate the cream of society, and the rebuilding would be left to the lower half. This seems to imply that society would suffer much less if it was the welders, carpenters and farmers who were killed."

Although both sides make use of some questionable assumptions, each side creates artifical distinctions to claim that their arguments are more valid, Curry said. Advocates of strong nuclear armaments tend to pride themselves on systematic analysis while portraying their opponents' arguments as sermons and fiction.

Some of the most extreme examples of systematic analysis of nuclear war occur in government planning documents of the late 1950s and early 1960s, Curry said. "The most horrible thing about these plans is that they're not horrible at all," he said. One document reduced consequences of nuclear war to the number of people and the monetary value of machines that would survive the blast. The idea was that machines could substitute for people and vice versa. A simple graph was presented to calculate whether the destruction of people and machines would be at a magnitude to end civilization.

"This is very sterile stuff," said Curry, "and it seems to have been prompted by the belief that it has to be in those terms to be objective. One of the distortions that comes from this sort of statistical description of nuclear war is that the destruction will occur like a clean slate. Civilization will be set back a certain degree and will have to be rebuilt. The style of these reports allows very little sense of the grotesqueries of rotting flesh that would have to be cleaned away."

Greatest illusion of this "objective" style is the impression that the reports are factual, Curry said. "Everything written about all-out nuclear war is, to some extent, fiction," he said. "It's fiction because it hasn't happened yet. So a lot of these reports amount to futuristic novels in the language of social science."

Curry believes the debate would be improved if people favoring nuclear buildup stopped presenting their opinions as facts and recognized that the anti-nuclear side also makes use of scientific data. "Both sides should recognize that they are engaged more in prophesy than in scientific prediction," said Curry.

Of his own prophesies Curry said, "I'm optimistic, and that's unusual for me. I don't think there will be all-out nuclear war. As crazy as the American and Soviet planners sometimes seem, they aren't that crazy. A nuclear war would be dreadful beyond belief. Nobody would win."

Even assuming the Soviets could launch a strike without retaliation, fallout blows from west to east, Curry said. "There would be water pollution, soil erosion, the possibility of melting ice caps because of the rise in the world temperature. Agriculture zones would shift upward. The ozone layer would be damaged and the resulting ultraviolet pollution would cause blindness and disrupt the ocean ecosystems for the next 20 years. There would be massive problems with the world economy. Where would the Soviets buy their wheat?"

Curry said he is much less optimistic about limited use of nuclear weapons. "I think it's likely that a Third World country — possibly in the Middle East or in South America — will use nuclear weapons. The technology is almost irresistible now that a bomb like the one that blew up Hiroshima can be contained inside a bread box. I think there is a good possibility that terrorists will use nuclear bombs."

Nuclear freeze movement is not likely to succeed, Curry believes. Too many industries have a stake in continuing production of nuclear weapons. And the weapon itself can seem too perfect to abandon — nothing delivers bang for the buck like a nuclear device.

Working on this thesis has given Curry a well-developed sense of the macabre. "Sometimes the only way you can respond to these plans is with horrified hysterical laughter," Curry said.

Soo Line Has $2.4 Million Net Income

Net income of the Soo Line railroad for the first half of 1983 was $2.4 million or 31 cents per share, compared to $10 million or $1.33 per share for the first half of 1982, Thomas M. Beckley, chairman and chief executive officer announced. For the second quarter of 1983 the company had net income of $38,000 compared to net income of $4.1 million or 54 cents per share in 1982.

Revenues for the first six months were $133 million, down 10 per cent from last year. For the second quarter revenues were $66 million, down seven per cent from last year. Second quarter results were affected by a flash flood which occurred in North Dakota near the end of June which resulted in an estimated pre-tax loss of approximately $800,000 after allowing for insurance recoveries and delayed the movement of traffic with the result that revenue accruals estimated at $1.5 million were deferred from the second to third quarter of 1983.

In spite of the second quarter results there are signs that a recovery is underway, Beckley said. Lumber traffic as well as pulp and paper continued to improve over last year and there has been a significant increase in scrap metals traffic. For the second quarter and the first six months, traffic measured by ton miles was down four per cent and five per cent from last year respectively, but for the month of June traffic was equal to the prior year. Rates continued to be under competitive pressure, however. Revenue per ton mile decreased three per cent for the quarter compared to last year and was down five per cent for the year to date.

Total railway expenses for the first six months were three per cent lower than in 1982. These expenses include severance payments of $1,300,000 which were made to employees who terminated employment during the first six months. Total employment has been reduced nine per cent from June 1982.

Interest income of $3.2 million for the first six months was down 46 per cent to lower interest rates and reduced temporary cash investments.

Crop conditions in Soo territory are favorable at the present time, although total acreage planted has been reduced because of the payment-in-kind program. There is a substantial amount of grain in storage in the country but the movement of grain continues to depend upon exports and other market conditions. The company is continuing a program of cost control to reduce expenses.

Quarries At Pipestone Rich In Indian Lore

Perhaps the most important site in the American Indian geography and religion is that of the quarries from which the red stone called catlinite is mined. These quarries are located near Pipestone.

For more than 300 years, catlinite — named after George Catlin, an American artist who travelled and lived with the Indians — was an object of Indian reverence. It was used primarily for carving the ceremonial pipes used by the Plains tribes and others.

These famous "peace pipes" associated with the Indians were exactly that. They were used to end quarrels between tribes and individuals, to strengthen alliances or to seal agreements. If a pipe was offered — and accepted — in battle, both sides laid down their weapons and peace was restored.

Peace obtained in this way was seldom violated, since the Great Spirit would surely punish the troublemaker. It was he, according to Indian beliefs, who has presented the red pipestone to the warring Indian nations and charged the tribes to smoke the pipes of peace in order to restore good will.

In 1937 an act of Congress established the pipestone quarries as a national monument, preserving the rights of all tribes to use them. Only American Indians are allowed to mine the stone under special permits ussued by the national park service.

The monument is about one mile north of the city of Pipestone and has a visitor center whhich should be the first stop for tourists. In the summer, you'll see cultural demonstrations of craftwork and people carving pipestone. There is a gift shop also selling trade pipes. From the visitor center an interpretive walking trial leads to the historical, geological and biological features of the area.

Among the many fascinating exhibits — all rich in Indian legend and history — are the quarries themselves which are still being worked, and which still retain the aura of reverence and mystery bestowed upon them by a people who sought — and often found — peace in the strange red pipestone of Minnesota.

Waste Disposal Study Reaches Rock Bottom

Disposal of hazardous wastes in a "crystalline bedrock repository" — where waste shipments would be deposited in mined galleries excavated deep into granite or similar "crystalline" rock formations — is being considered by the waste management board "specifically because of its unique potential for isolation of hazardous wastes safely away from water resources in order to protect the public health and safety," board chairman Robert Dunn said recently.

Waste management board is considering 18 "preliminary study areas" in nine Minnesota counties — Benton, Chippewa, Morrison, St. Louis, Redwood, Renville, Stearns, Sherburne and Yellow Medicine — as possible sites for a crystalline bedrock hazardous waste disposal facility. The 1983 Minnesota Legislature specifically authorized the board to evaluate the feasibility of the "crystalline bedrock" hazardous waste disposal technology, and to identify potential "study areas" for a crystalline bedrock facility site.

Crystalline bedrock repository would be markedly different from other technologies being considered by the waste management board. The board has selected four candidate hazardous waste disposal sites; two, in Aitkin and Marshall counties, have been certified for man-made "above-ground storage" facilities, consisting of tanks and other structures, for hazardous wastes.

Two other sites, in Carver and Scott counties, are under consideration for either "above-ground storage" facilities or for specially-constructed "secure landfills" for hazardous waste. The secure landfill is the most widely-utilized method of hazardous waste disposal in the United States.

Crystalline bedrock repository is not a waste "dump", and would not involve any landfilling or bulk disposal of waste materials. Facility would essentially be a mine, excavated to a depth of anywhere from 200 to 1000 feet; board staff persons have said that the exact depth of the facility would depend on the conditions of the specific site.

According to conceptual designs for such a facility, completed earlier for the board of University of Minnesota researchers, the repository — using existing mining technologies — would consist of vertical shafts for access and ventilation. Wastes would be transported into the facility, along those shafts, in drummed shipments.

At the base of the shaft a "haulageway" — in other words, a corridor for vehicles to transport waste shipments — would be excavated laterally. Individual "galleries," or storage rooms, would then extend off from the haulageway; in each gallery drums of specific types of hazardous wastes would be stored, to prevent any "mixing" of incompatible hazardous wastes.

Such a facility would only be constructed deep within solid rock formations, below the water table and away from major aquifers. One of the major reasons the board is considering the crystalline bedrock disposal technology is its advantage of storing wastes away from groundwater, in a secure and dry environment.

Another reason is because wastes could be removed or "retrieved" from the facility in the future if new methods are developed to treat or process the wastes.

Board has also taken a special interest in the technology because it would require a relatively small amount of land at the surface — with little impacts on surrounding land uses. The board estimates that the facility site, including a buffer zone, might occupy 80 to 300 acres depending on the quantity of wastes the facility is designed to store. Actual working area might cover 10 to 60 acres.

Although state law requires the waste management board to select at least one hazardous waste disposal site in Minnesota, it makes disposal the "last resort" in the board's program and requires the board to consider all "feasible and prudent" alternatives to land-disposal. As a result, the board is developing state hazardous waste policies that will emphasize such alternatives as

Information Night Slated At Northland

Northland community college has scheduled an information night from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, August 10 to answer students and prospective students questions regarding admissions, financial aids, degree programs, and academic or professional interests.

Recent high school graduates and adults interested in furthering their education are particularly invited to come. Administrators and counselors will be available to answer specific questions.

Arctco Begins Snowmobile Manufacture

Meeting the ambitious schedule set out only several months ago, Arctco Inc., of Thief River Falls has its snowmobile production line in full operation today with the first Arctic Cat produced this morning by the new company.

Special first day ceremonies are being planned throughout the day in observance of the start-up of snowmobile manufacturing in Thief River Falls once again. A press conference is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the manufacturing facility located in a portion of the former Arctic Enterprises manufacturing plant on the southwest edge of Thief River Falls.

Ole Tweet of Arctco told the Times this morning that the plant is at full staff, the assembly line is humming and "it's really a pretty exciting time around here". He said he expects a number of television stations, newspapers, specialty publications and other media to be represented at the press conference this afternoon.

Older model snowmobiles have been arranged on display at the plant to illustrate the advancements in the industry over a relatively short period of time, Tweet said. He added that a truck destined for Alaska will begin loading the first machines off the assembly line today.

The company had its pilot run off the assembly line about 10 days ago in preparation for the full-scale production which got underway today. Most of the personnel involved with the manufacturing process were experienced workers with Arctic Enterprises before that company ran into financial trouble and suspended operations two years ago.

FIRST PLACE winner in costume competition for Crazy Days in Thief River Falls Thursday was Marge Ness, an employee of Dwight's Hartz supermarket. She not only custom designed the potato sack dress, she added the potatoes to go along with it. The spuds were fashioned from fiberfill and nylon stockings with various color shades of stockings also varying the color of the potatoes.

Beverly Rustad Crowned Miss Thief River Falls

Winning individual competition in talent and personal interview, Beverly Rustad went on to become Miss Thief River Falls of 1983-84 at the official Miss America preliminary scholarship pageant conducted Saturday evening at the Lincoln high school auditorium. A near capacity crowd was in attendance as nine area young women were presented in swimsuit, talent and on-stage personality divisions.

Miss Rustad, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Rustad of McIntosh, is an 18-year-old graduate of McIntosh-Winger high school and is the reigning Miss McIntosh. Her winning talent number was a flute solo entitled "The Carnival of Venice." She plans on attending Concordia college in Moorhead this fall.

First runner-up in the pageant was Vicki Hams, 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hams of Karlstad, who won the on-stage personality competition. Second runner-up was Robyn Dallmann, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dallmann of Thief River Falls. Winner of the swimsuit competition was Paula Hodne, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hodne of Middle River.

The new Miss Thief River Falls was crowned by the 1982 winner, Stacey Sandberg of Karlstad. Miss Sandberg, who represented the Thief River Falls community in the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin this spring, thanked the people of Thief River Falls for their cooperation and support in her farewell address. She was presented with a framed color portrait and a bouquet of roses by the sponsoring Thief River Falls Jaycees.

Miss Rustad is five feet four inches tall, weighs 115 pounds, has blonde hair and green eyes. She grew up on a dairy farm north of McIntosh and has two older sisters and a younger brother. One sister, Barbara Geer, is a music teacher at Middle River high school. As Miss Thief River Falls one of her awards is a $750 college scholarship.

Saturday night's pageant was a highlight of the Jaycee Summerfest activities which also included a number of other events conducted throughout the week.

The Jaycee treasure hunt also came to a close Saturday when $100 and $50 treasurers were found. The $100 treasurer was hidden near the river in the Greenwood cemetery area along a walking path, according to treasure hunt chairman Don Grabanski. The $50 treasure was hidden near a fire hydrant by the municipal power plant dam. Finders of the $50 treasure were Dennis and Ruth Pederson while finder of the $100 treasure was Stephanie Breiland.

Water fights were held on Second street Thursday evening, with the Rundell Electric team defending its title for its sixth successive win.

MISS THIEF RIVER FALLS for 1983-84 is Beverly Rustad, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Rustad of McIntosh and a 1983 graduate of McIntosh-Winger high school. She was selected by the judges Saturday evening at the Miss American preliminary pageant conducted at Lincoln high school with a near capacity crowd on hand. Runners-up were Vick Hams, 24 (right), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hams of Karlstad, and Robyn Dallmann, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dallmann of Thief River Falls. Miss Rustad won the personal interview and talent portions of the competition and Miss Hams won the on-stage personality competition.

MAGIC MOMENTS for Beverly Rustad of McIntosh were her coronation as Miss Thief River Falls by retiring queen Stacey Sandberg and her acknowledgement of a standing round of applause as she walked the ramp at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Miss Rustad won the talent competition with a flute solo and also the personal interview competition.

Library Trip Deadline Is This Tuesday

Deadline to sign up for a Northwest regional library sponsored trip to the state fair and a matinee performance of "Guys and Dolls" at the Guthrie Theatre is this Tuesday, August 2.

Fee of $85 will be charged for the trip, and will cover the cost of transportation, one night's lodging at the Holiday Inn Downtown, a coffee and roll stop, and admission to the Guthrie performance.

Participants will visit the state fair on Saturday, August 27, which has been designated as "Natural Resources and FFA Day" at the fair. Among events which will be available at the fair on that day will be: a parade, ethnic foods, livestock exhibits, food and craft demonstrations, and free children's theater programs. Grandstand show on that day will be Kenny Loggins. Tickets for that show may be reserved by writing to: Tickets, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, MN 55108.

Sunday, trip participants will attend the matinee performance at the Guthrie Theatre. "Guys and Dolls" is an all-time favorite among Broadway musicals, and has made famous such songs as "Luck Be a Lady Tonight", "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat", "A Bushel and a Peck", "Sue Me", and "Marry the Man Today".

Cast for the Guthrie performance includes television actor Roy Thinnes, comedian Jerry Stiller and television personality Barbara Sharma.

Reservations for the trip may be made at any branch of the Northwest regional library, including Thief River Falls, Greenbush, Hallock, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Warren, Warroad or the bookmobile. Reservations may also be made by sending a check along with name, address, phone number and rooming preference (if any) to: Northwest regional library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Times Vacation Closing Noted August 7-14

Annual vacation closing period for the Times will be August 7-14 this year to permit all Times employees to have a full week of vacation. Again the closing will result in a change in schedule and the suspension of two issues of the Times.

The issue of Monday, August 8, will be printed on Saturday, August 6. This will require early advertising and news copy to meet the advanced deadline. Advertisers and news sources should also be aware of the closing period and include material which would be pertinent for that time, bearing in mind that the Times can be saved and used for reference during the week of closing.

There will be no issues of the Times published on either Wednesday, August 10 nor Monday, August 15. Publication will resume on schedule for the Wednesday, August 17 Times and Monday, August 22 Shopper's Guide.

The Times staff continues to appreciate the understanding and cooperation of advertisers, news sources, subscribers and counter sales purchasers in permitting the vacation period.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Peggy Hanson-Jeff Pyle Vows Said In Newfolden

Peggy Lou Hanson and Jeffrey Douglas Pyle exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, June 11, at 2:00 p.m., at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hanson, rural Newfolden, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pyle, Sr., Pinedale, Wyo.

Rev. Earl Eveland officiated at the double ring ceremony. Bonnie Hanson, a cousin of the bride, was organist, playing the traditional "Bridal Chorus", for the processional. She also accompanied Julie Waterworth, a friend of the couple, when she sang, "Through the Eyes of Love." During the ceremony, Judy and Myles Hogberg, sister and brother-in-law of the groom, sang "You and I" and "Endless Love," with Sue Pyle, a sister of the groom, as pianist. Prior to the lighting of the unity candle, Steve and Bonnie Hanson sang "The Wedding Song," with Sue Pyle accompanist.

Forming the chancel setting were candelabra with white tapers and sprays of mixed fresh greenery and pastel flowers. The pews were marked with satin bows in the bride's chosen colors of pink, yellow and blue with silk roses matching the ribbon. Complementing the pews were brass aisle poles graced with sprays of pastel flowers and trailing Sprengeri tied with white satin ribbons. An arrangement of pastel flowers and greenery graced the organ and matching silk floral rings highlighted the wall sconces.

The bride, escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, was attired in a white Wedgewood lace bridal gown. The molded bodice and Queen Anne neckline featured appliques of Venice lace, embroidered with pearls and iridescents. A wide Wedgewood lace ruffle edged her shadow-styled bishop sleeves. Matching lace ruffles formed her tiered bouffant skirt which flowed into a semi-cathedral length train. A headpiece of Wedgewood lace with pearls and iridescents held her fingertip veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of bridal pink roses, stephanotis, daisies in shades of yellow, blue and pink, fresh babies' breath and trailing Sprengeri.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was her sister-in-law Jill Hanson, Thief River Falls. She wore a pink floor-length gown of Nylon acetate over crinoline. The bodice with a ruffled off-the-shoulder neckline, was encircled at the waist with a matching satin ribbon. Her skirt, with a deep double flounced hemline was caught up at the back waistline creating a bustle effect.

Wearing similar gowns only in shades of yellow and blue, respectively, were the bridesmaids: Debbie Hanson, Newfolden, a cousin of the bride, and Sherri Melvie, Viking, a friend. In their hair, the attendants wore a cluster of babies' breath and stephanotis. Each carried a keepsake fan topped with pink and blue miniature carnations, yellow mini-mums, white daisies, babies' breath and Sprengeri with pink, yellow and blue ribbon streamers.

Miniature bride was Tasha Wattson, a cousin of the bride. Her white ankle-length lace gown with a raised waistline and puffy sleeves featured a three-tiered skirt tied at the waist with a white ribbon. Her sheer nylon voile headpiece, accented by a five point pearl crown secured a fingertip veil edged with lace. She carried a miniature bouquet in duplication of the bride's bouquet.

The bride's personal attendant was Rochelle Roseland, a friend.

The rings were carried by the miniature groom, Andrew Hanson, a cousin of the bride. Like the groom, he wore a white Blake tuxedo with a white ruffled shirt and a pink rose boutonniere.

Best man was the bride's brother, Jeff Hanson, Thief River Falls. Groomsmen were Steve Hanson, Bemidji, a friend, and Myles Hogberg, Newfolden, a brother-in-law of the groom. Serving as ushers were Tim Pyle, Thief River Falls, a brother of the groom, and Randy Hanson, Newfolden, a cousin of the bride. All wore silver Blake tuxedos, white ruffled shirts and pink rose boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of light blue polyester knit with a draped neckline creating a cape effect. Venice lace trimmed the cape sleeves. The mother of the groom was attired in a teal blue polyester knit floor-length gown with a full skirt and a chiffon print capelet. Their corsages were of pink tea roses, stephanotis and Sprengeri.

Honored guest at the wedding was Mrs. Rose Fluke, Thief River Falls, grandmother of the bride.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the reception that followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hanson, uncle and aunt of the bride. At the guest book was Laurie Miller, a cousin of the bride. The punch from a flowing fountain was served by Mr. and Mrs. Jon Lerud, brother-in-law and sister of the groom. The groom's sister, Sue Pyle served the groomscake, which was the traditional Scandinavian wedding cake, a kransekage, surrounded by silk blossoms in pastel shades. Rice packets were distributed by Jason Hanson, brother of the bride, and Mya Gunderson, a friend of the couple. They also distributed the wedding programs before the ceremony. At the gift table were Matt Pyle, brother of the groom, and Karla Hanson, a cousin of the bride. Wanda Vigness, a cousin of the bride, was flower hostess.

The pillared, three-tiered marble wedding cake was iced in white and decorated in pink, yellow and blue. Surrounding the flowing water fountain at the base were five-heart-shaped cakes, also decorated with pastel flowers. Fresh flowers topped each tier and garland surrounded the entire base. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Caroll Lindstrom, Argyle, a friend of the couple. It was cut and served by Mrs. Earl Hanson and Mrs. Bennie Hanson, aunts of the bride. Mrs. Orvis Olen and Mrs. Merle Bjornrud, also aunts of the bride, served the coffee.

Waitresses were Tami Hanson, a cousin of the bride, Trisha Van Camp and Carol Bjorsness and Karl Gunderson, friends of the couple. In the kitchen were Mrs. Lester Lindquist, Mrs. Arnold Skjerven, Mrs. Vernon Gunders, Mrs. John Roseland and Mrs. Leslie Folden.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Pennsylvania, the bride wore a pink suit with a fitted jacket and a white ruffled blouse.

The bride is a 1982 graduate of Marshall county central high school and is currently employed by Kmart as supervisor. The groom is a graduate of the Lackawanna Trail high school, Factoryville, Pa. He is employed by Fleet Supply.

Correction-Addition

Several names were inadvertently omitted in the Yvonne Sletten and Gary Vad wedding that was published in the Wednesday Times, and other names have been received. In addition to Orlan and Clarice Stolaas, the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Larry and Mavis Martinson, rural Thief River Falls were host and hostess. Ushers were Gary Sletten, Grygla, cousin of the bride, and Gene Arveson, Oklee, brother-in-law, of the groom. The programs were distributed by the bride's cousins: Mark and Steve Sletten, Thief River Falls. Marlene Kasprick was the bride's personal attendant and Orin Sletten, uncle of the bride, was among the honored guests. The Times regrets any inconvenience the omissions may have caused.

Monica Rausch In Japan On 4-H Exchange

Sharing her summer with a family in Japan is Monica Rausch, a 4-H member of Pennington county, who departed July 23 from Minneapolis to spend about a month in Japan. Monica, a member of the Steiner 4-H club, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rausch of Thief River Falls.

Nine delegates from Minnesota are staying in Japan in this home-stay exchange program. More than 240 teens from 24 states make up the total U.S. delegation to Japan this summer.

Minnesota became involved in this exchange program in 1973. Since that time 190 Minnesota teens have visited Japan and 1254 Japanese youth have visited Minnesota. "For the most part, each of the Minnesota youth and adult delegates have lived with a Japanese family which had previously sent a family member to a Minnesota 4-H home."

Minnesota 4-H exchange program promotes international friendship and fosters cultural understanding through the home-stay visit.

"We've found that this program strengthens the family unit," states Deborah Matero, Pennington county extension agent. "When children this young are sent to distant countries, the entire family gets involved. Everyone becomes more aware of his or her community as well as becoming more informed about another culture."

This has been an extremely successful program with its experience of living with a host family, learning about the life style, concerns and issues facing families in Japan. The agent adds, "Monica will have a chance to develop long-lasting friendships by this trip and to become better informed about world affairs."

Second Annual Homemakers Tour Slated

Second annual tour for homemakers and guests is being planned by the Marshall County homemakers and Bergan Travel.

Two day tour to Minneapolis leaves on Thursday, September 8 and returns Thursday, September 10.

Plans include the Renaissance festival which is set in a medival theme for a market place, jousting tournaments and all the traveling minstrels dressed in costume.

Also included are tours of the Betty Crocker test kitchens and Bachman's main greenhouse and nursery.

Reservations have been made for the first evening at the Old Log theatre, featuring a mystery comedy entitled "Talent for Murder". Prime rib dinner is also included in the price.

Cost per person for four persons per room is $100 and double occupancy is $117. Costs include transportation, two nights lodging at the Dillon Inn in Bloomington, dinner and theatre, and tour and gate fees.

Reservations are due by August 25 on a first come-first serve basis. Call the Marshall county extension office at 745-5232 or Bergan Travel at 681-4100 to reserve a seat.

Sour Cream Coffee Cake

½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1 cup cultured sour cream
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour

Topping

1 cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons sugar

Method: Blend butter and sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add vanilla and eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add the sour cream. Sift together, flour, baking powder, soda and salt and add to creamed mixture. Beat until well blended. Spoon half of the batter into a greased bundt pan or angel-food pan. Sprinkle ½ of the topping mixture over batter. Pour remaining batter over topping and cover with rest of the topping. Cut through the batter with a knife several times. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes. Remove from oven and let cool for 10 minutes before removing from the pan.

Kortesmaki Is Author Of Book On State FFA

More than 200,000 Minnesotans who have been members of state FFA (Future Farmers of America) chapters since 1929 are the subjects of a new book by W.J. Kortesmaki, Edina, and the Minnesota FFA foundation.

Kortesmaki, a member of the first FFA chapter organized in Minnesota at Esko in 1929, went on to serve as executive secretary of the state FFA association from 1947 to 1977.

He helped to organize the FFA children's barnyard at the Minnesota state fair and livened it up with state FFA turkey trot races, frog jumping contests and rooster crowing contests. One time he even put a bull in a china shop!

Kortesmaki's personal file of correspondence dating to 1928 and his daily vocational agriculture and FFA travel diaries saves since 1936 are the main source of material for "Minnesota FFA From the Beginning." The 320-page, 8½x11 softbound book is supplemented with hundreds of photos and thousands of references to Minnesota FFA'ers of the past 50 years and those who have been involved in and supported FFA programs.

The book contains sections on state fair, FFA camps, and compilations of all who have received various FFA degrees and proficiency awards, won judging contests and served as state officers or in other ways.

"Minnesota FFA from the beginning," is available through FFA chapters or directly from the Minnesota FFA Foundation, Capitol Square Building, 550 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55101, at $7.95 plus $2 shipping and handling. Checks should be payable to the Minnesota FFA foundation. Prepaid multiple copy orders may be picked up at the children's barnyard of the Minnesota state fair from August 25 to September 5.

Sparby Takes Area Concerns To Washington

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls was in Washington, D.C. this week seeking aid for residents in northwestern Minnesota affected by the recently declared natural disaster in Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall counties.

Sparby met with Minnesota Senators Dave Durenburger and Rudy Boschwitz and Congressmen Arlan Stangland and Jim Oberstar and urged their help in securing immediate attention to the plight of area farmers and other citizens.

"I relayed to our representatives in Congress the concerns expressed by citizens at a meeting in Crookston July 22," Sparby said. "I was assured by both our Senators and regional Congressmen that they would investigate those concerns and seek out some solutions."

Citizens attending the Crookston meeting told Sparby and other area officials that their financial problems stem from several major issues, including the disaster declarations, the high cost of money, low commodity prices and delays in getting FmHA loans.

Sparby said he made a special plea to the congressional delegation about expediting the FmHA loans along with funding for the disaster loan program.

"I told them that farmers and other citizens in northwestern Minnesota are hurting and the only relief possible at this time would be through these federal loans," he said. "They listened, and I left our meeting confident special attention would be given to area needs."

Sparby said while in Washington, D.C., he also attended a meeting with other Minnesota lawmakers about receiving federal funds for the Bagley alternative energy project. Red Lake county is participating in this project, and Sparby attended the federal meeting to represent its interests, as the federal funds are in jeopardy.

3 Computer Courses Being Offered At NCC

This fall quarter Northland community college will be offering the following three credit computer classes including data processing and BASIC computer programming. BASIC course will also be offered evenings at Warroad high school.

Data processing, which meets at 11 a.m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Fridays beginning September 6, offers an understanding of data processing procedures, personnel and equipment.

BASIC programming will meet on Monday, Wednesday and Fridays at 2:10 p.m. at the college and at 6 p.m. on Mondays at the Warroad high school. Class will use flow charting and coding in the BASIC langauge.

Students may register at the college Monday through Friday during the regular office hours of 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Fee is $22.50 per credit hour. Senior citizens may register for an administrative fee or $6 per credit hour on a space available basis.

For more information call Northland at 681-2181.

Minnesotans Touring For Trade Relations

Thirty-four Minnesotans involved in agriculture and agribusiness left July 18 on a three-week, 25,000-mile round the world people-to-people goodwill tour to enhance peace and trade relationships in the People's Republic of China and in the Soviet Union.

Deputy agriculture commissioner Rollin M. Dennistoun will be the host leader. He also headed the two earlier Minnesota agricultural people-to-people missions to the Soviet Union and western Europe in 1968 and 1981. All members of the tour, including Commissioner Dennistoun, will be traveling at their own expense.

Talks with high level government officials are included in the tour schedules for both of the major countries. In Russia Dr. Dennistoun will be renewing his earlier acquaintance and trade negotiations with Alexander A. Konygin, head of the main administration for foreign relations, USSR ministry of agriculture.

Hundreds of personal contacts will be made in visits to cities, farms, shops and factories involved in mutual agricultural and agribusiness enterprise, focusing upon the principal goal of the People-to-People goodwill missions. Founded by the late U.S. President Dwight D. Eisenhower that goal is "to promote broader understanding between people which will result in stronger and more proper utilization of the world's food and industrial abundance."

Minnesota's delegation includes dairy, beef, pork, certified seed potato, and grain producing farmers; Vice Chairman John E. Dill of the Minneapolis grain exchange; agricultural chemical and fertilizer manufactors and dealers; a cattle buyer; a processor of corn derived fuel alcohol and livestock feed; a farm building supply dealer; a cooperative manager; a dairy product processor; and State Representative Sylvester B. Uphus. A similar spectrum of civic, cultural and professional interests is represented among the 11 wives in the tour group.

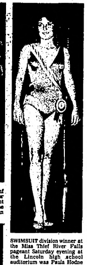
STACEY SANDBERG, who completed her reign as Miss Thief River Falls Saturday evening, placed the crown of her successor on the head of Beverly Rustad. Miss Rustad entered the pageant as the reigning Miss McIntosh and will go on to represent the Thief River Falls community in the Miss Minnesota pageant in Austin next spring.



SWIMSUIT division winner at the Miss Thief River Falls pageant Saturday evening at the Lincoln high school auditorium was Paula Hodne of Middle River. Paula is the reigning Miss Middle River and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hodne.

TALENT WINNER at the Miss Thief River Falls pageant Saturday evening at the Lincoln high school auditorium was Beverly Rustad of McIntosh, playing a flute solo entitled "The Carnival of Venice." Her costuming for the talent number included the clown outfit complete with greasepaint.

LAST RIDE in a parade as Miss Thief River Falls was taken by Stacey Sandberg on Saturday as she completed the final day of her reign before giving up her crown that evening at Lincoln high school auditorium. Waving to crowds was just one of numerous activities which Stacey enjoyed during her year as Thief River Falls representative in preliminary competition for the Miss Minnesota title.

Local Couple Participates In Mission

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Anderson of Thief River Falls were among the participants in the 1983 United Methodist church school of Christian mission held at Hamline university in St. Paul from July 8 to 14.

Participants in the school studied one of two topics — "Central Africa" or "The World's Uprooted" under the general theme of "Shalom." Participants also studied the book of Luke under the guidance of the Rev. Tallulah F. Williams. Dean of the School was Mary Gates, St. Anthony; associate dean was Betty Albright, Lake City.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

We were visiting relatives in your town recently and noticed the theme above your newspaper name: "Everybody is somebody in Thief River Falls". I like it! I hope you find many ways to honor and fulfill that theme. If it reflects a predominant attitude in your town, then that's the kind of people I'd like to live with.

I hope the newspaper, the hospital, the schools, neighborhoods, churches, service clubs and organizations along with the city council and Chamber of Commerce find many ways to help everybody to be somebody in Thief River Falls!

Sincerely,
Don Slaughter

Note Record MN Shipments From Elevators

Improving farm crop prices helped stimulate a new one week high for barge shipments from Minnesota terminal elevators on the Mississippi River July 10 to 16, according to Bill Dietrich, Governor's special trade representative and assistant agriculture commissioner.

The 249 barge loads of grain and oilseeds officially cleared for export by state grain inspectors that week topped the previous high of 247 barges set during the first week of November, 1981.

July's surge in farm grain marketings, responding to federal PIK program market price enhancement, also pushed the season total barge movement through July 16 to 3,052 loads or more than 158 million bushels, a new all time high for that period, again topping the 1981 barge season.

Commissioner Dietrich said that continued improvement in farm crop prices, triggering release of Minnesota's nationally second high volume of corn in reserve, will likely continue the heavy marketing traffic and in turn help to recharge the sagging general farm economy. This past week, corn and soybean prices were the highest in two years.

This season's record week of barged exports of crops represented an estimated 12.8 million bushels of corn, soybeans, wheat, and grossed farmers about $52 million.

Barge traffic through mid month signals a turn around in the lagging marketing picture that exhisted during the first half of 1983. Barge inspections are reported weekly by state inspectors. Total Minnesota terminal elevator traffic is estimated only monthly by the Minneapolis grain exahange!

At the end of June, total Minnesota terminal grain and oilseed volumes were ahead of a year earlier by less than three per cent for receipts from farmers and country elevators, and were barely one per cent ahead of 1982 in export shipments. Estimated farm cash receipts from January-June terminal marketings, although again more than $1 billion, topped 1982 by only $5 million or a gain of only one half of one per cent.

River terminals have paced all of the grains, offsetting the first half slump for Minnesota's Duluth-Superior ocean vessel seaport. River crop receipts totaled more than 200 million bushels and shipments more than 189 million bushels. Duluth receipts dropped to less than 92 million bushels and shipments slipped to slightly more than 68 million bushels.

Schmidtgall Earns Rating On Insurance

Delilah Schmidtgall, employee of the Northern State insurance agency for the past nine years, has completed testing leading to CPCU designation, the highest designation which can be obtained in the property and casualty insurance business.

The chartered property casualty underwriters (CPCU) designation consists of 10 parts and requires the equivalent of five years of college credits. Delilah has completed testing at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks and has accomplished the rating without instructors or classroom supervision.

County Awards Bridge Bids At Meeting

Pennington county commissioners accepted two highway department bids and acted on a number of other matters at their regular meeting held last week in the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

Bridge replacement contract was awarded to Lian Construction company of Newfolden at $112,279.14. Bridges to be rebuilt or replaced are located on county road 97 between Sections 16 and 17 in Reiner, in Goodridge township between Sections 23 and 24, in Reiner township between Sections 15 and 16 and Goodridge township between Sections 33 and 36.

Clifford Hedeen was awarded a contract of $84,680 for similar work between Sections 11 and 12 in Deer Park township, between Sections 26 and 27 in Rocksbury township and between Sections 26 and 35 in Star township.

Developer Gerald Munt, who hopes to acquire and remodel the Carnegie library building, was present to discuss with the board the potential for available office space in the building.

Ambulance contract with Northwest hospital services was approved and decision was made to purchase a new squad car for the sheriff's department. Ardith Johnson, county clerk of court, was granted additional part-time clerk hire at 22½ hours per week at straight time with no benefits.

The board appointed Gary Erickson and Roger Shaffer to the Minnesota private industry council and nominated Norman Peterson for membership on the Agassiz health nursing board. Taken under consideration was a request for transfer of the liquor license for the Trapper 'N' Trader of Goodridge from Lawrence Boutain to Ed Sjulestad and Bonnie Mangus.

The board also attended to several matters relating to ditching and wetlands. Next meeting will be August 9 at 10 a.m.

waste reduction, recycling and treatment; Minnesota's hazardous waste disposal site is expected to accept only residuals from hazardous waste treatment, or wastes which have been solidified.

In examining alternatives the board, in its effort to ensure protection of Minnesota's sensitive groundwater resources, has searched for sites with the proper geologic conditions for the various types of hazardous waste facilities. A search for a crystalline bedrock facility is consistent with this board objective.

When the board announced June 9 that it had identified 18 "preliminary study areas" for such a facility, board member Milton Knoll of White Bear Lake, said the board had a "duty" to study the potential of the crystalline bedrock disposal technology.

Although bedrock storage would likely prove more expensive in its construction than a traditional land disposal facility (estimates by board consultants have ranged from $16 million to $60 million for such a facility) the waste management board will not be basing its decision on hazardous waste technolgies solely on the basis of costs.

"Crystalline bedrock simply cannot be overlooked," Knoll said.

Eighteen current preliminary areas were identified on the basis of criteria that searched for specific types of crystalline rock formations, away from major aquifers. The board also looked for areas with a large percentage of "bedrock outcrops," where the bedrock is close to the land surface.

Current "field reviews" of the areas of geologists working for the board will be used to gather information needed to narrow the areas to approximately five "study areas." That board decision is expected in August.

Five study areas would then be the subject of extensive site evaluations, including on-site drillings, and would also be the subject of information-gathering public hearings by the board and the Minnesota pollution control agency (PCA). The board anticipates the selection of two candidates sites for a bedrock facility by Spring of 1984; those two candidate sites would be added to the current four candidates sites for landfills or above-ground storage facilities. The final site selection is expected by early 1986.

In addition to evaluating potential siting areas, the board has also commissioned a study by the Battelle Institute of Columbus, OH — a nonprofit research institute that has performed research for government and private industry — to compare the various disposal technologies. The Battelle study, to be delivered to the board in August, will assess the comparative risks, costs and other impacts of hazardous waste landfills, above-ground storage facilities and the crystalline bedrock repository.

Siting process, Dunn emphasized, is designed to result in a safe and acceptable site that will help in the protection of groundwater, and the public health and safety.

"We are evaluating the sites to find those with the best natural conditions to assist in secure waste containment and environmental protection," Dunn said. "If the board determines that a specific site does not meet that criterion, it will be eliminated from further consideration."

RECENT APPEARANCE for the "Back Behind the Barn Boys" from Gatzke was at the metrodome in Minneapolis when they sang the national anthem before the Minnesota Twins and Milwaukee Brewers baseball game last Monday. They were presented with caps from the team and the Twins went on to swamp the Brewers 17-3. Members of the group — all of whom come from within a 10-mile radius of Gatzke — include Terry Ruud, lead guitar and vocals; Randy Larson, bass guitar and vocals; Tom Bernstein, vocals; Gene Lunsetter, rhythm guitar and vocals; Mike Sistad, violin, banjo, mandolin and vocals; Dan Schultz, drums; and Randy McMillin, they have decided to winning a number of amateur contests, they have decided to make performing a full-time career.

GROUNDBREAKING was conducted recently at the University of Minnesota technical college at Crookston for the Hafslo church which was being moved onto the campus from east of Crookston to serve as an all-faiths chapel. Matching funds of $4,800 were contributed to the project by Lutheran Brotherhood. Among those in the picture above are Kay Wedul (left) of Thief River Falls and Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom (right), provost of the Crookston campus.

nament, conducted under the direction of Patty Langlie, drew a large number of entries among all age groups. Results of the tournament will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times. Other sports events included a golf tournament and the "Streakers Challenge" foot race on Saturday, canoe races and fishing tournament on Sunday.

The four-hour fishing tournament from noon to 4 p.m. resulted in more than 50 pounds of fish being caught with sheepshead being the most prevalent. Walleyes, northerns and bullheads were among other species entered.

Saturday's summerfest parade attracted a good crowd as approximately 90 units made their way down the parade route through the downtown business area.

Sunday events included milk carton boat races, games for children at LaFave park, ice cream social, pet show, tricycle and hot wheels races and a barbecue and corn on the cob feed in the evening. A fireworks display was the concluding event of the summerfest program Sunday evening.

More photos of summerfest activities will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Dorie Irvin Canfield, 53, Dies July 25

Dorie L. Irvin Canfield, 53, of Fulton, Miss., daughter of Mrs. Anna Irvin of this city, died Monday, July 25, at the North Mississippi Medical center, after a short illness.

Memorial services for Dorie Canfield were held Wednesday, July 27, at the Fulton United Methodist church with Rev. J.G. Babb officiating. Burial was in Lakewood Memorial gardens in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Canfield, the former Dorie Irvin, was born Oct. 10, 1929 in Blue Earth to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Irvin. She attended school at Plummer, was graduated from high school in Thief River Falls and received her bachelor of education degree at Havre, Montana. She was a former high school English teacher and a florist. At the time of her death, she was employed by the Bank of Mississippi in Fulton. She was a member of the Fulton United Methodist church.

She is survived by her husband, her mother, Anna Irvin, Thief River Falls, and five sisters: Jean Harteloo, Vancouver, Wash.; Donna Irvin, Honolulu, Hawaii, Bette Helland and Janette Fox, both of Duluth; and Pauline Piearcy, Redding, Calif.

She was preceded in death by her father, twin brother, Donald, and two brothers: Harold and Howard.

L. Vandeventer Dies Saturday; Services Wed.

LeRoy (Buzz) Vandeventer, 53, of this city, manager of Riverside Terrace, died unexpectedly Saturday morning at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for LeRoy Vandeventer will be held Wednesday at 2:00 p.m., at the Stennes Funeral home in East Grand Forks.

A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the Times.

Wm. Haraldson, Brother Of TRF Resident, Dies

William (Bill) Haraldson, 56, of Dilworth, brother of Edwin Haraldson of Thief River Falls, died early Sunday morning at the Dakota hospital in Fargo, N.D.

Funeral services for William Haraldson will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m., at the Dilworth Lutheran church. Burial will be at 2:00 p.m., at the Hjerdal Lutheran cemetery at Elbow Lake.

Survivors include his wife, Jeanette, five children, two grandchildren, and six brothers: Artie Haraldson, Long Beach, Calif.; Robert, Tacoma, Wash.; Owen Dean, St. Cloud; Edwin of this city; Allen, Elbow Lake; and Thomas, Richfield.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

Services Held In Alaska For Arne Espeseth

Memorial services for Arne H. Espeseth, 58, of Thief River Falls and Alaska were held Saturday at 2:00 p.m., at Petersburg Lutheran church in Petersburg, Alaska. Espeseth died Monday, July 25, at the University of Washington hospital in Seattle, Wash., following a brief illness.

Arne Espeseth was born May 1, 1925 at Kent, Wash., to Mr. and Mrs. Erling Espeseth. At the age of two years, he moved with his family to Petersburg, Alaska. During World War II, he served in both the Merchant Marines and the U.S. Army.

In 1949, he married Louise Olson in Seattle, Wash. They lived in Alaska where he was a commercial fisherman. The winter months were spent in Thief River Falls.

He was a member of Trinity Lutheran church, Sons of Norway, and the Elks lodge, Thief River Falls.

Surviving are his wife, two sons: Keith and Steven, a daughter, Gayle, a grandson, Nickolas, and his father, all in Petersburg, Alaska; and two sisters, living in California.

Lawrence F. Nicholson, 66, Dies July 27

Lawrence F. Nicholson, 66, of this city, who was truck driver for L.B. Hartz Wholesale from 1936 until he retired in 1980 because of ill health, died Wednesday at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Lawrence Nicholson were held Saturday at 11:00 a.m., at the United Methodist church with Rev. Melvyn Budke officiating. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in the Wednesday edition of the Times.

REFLECTIONS

The greater the difficulty, the more glory in surmounting it. Small victories are sweet, great victories are rare and are to be savored hugely. You may be severely tested but a few times in your life — but you must always be prepared to accept each challenge with the quiet knowledge that you are not alone. There is a power greater than our human estate and that presence is always near, available if we humbly ask. You will not go through life without encountering disappointment and frustration, but knowing you are not alone is a real comfort.

Peder Engelstad Boosts Alfalfa

(Editor's Note: This is the eighth in a series of historical articles relating to the pioneer Peder Engelstad family of rural Thief River Falls. The final two installments will be published in the next two issues of the Times.)

by Melvin Engelstad

Alfalfa Saluted

After attending the Red River valley farm crop show at Crookston in 1928 when Pennington county was saluted as the "Home of Alfalfa" Peder submitted a two-page commentary to the local newspapers. We find his observations expressing satisfaction when credit is given where it is merited, when petty animosities are forgotten, and when the various groups and factions join hands in a spirit of sincerity and enthusiasm to show friendship and respect for one another. This is what he wrote:

Now, the big show is over, the stock back in their stalls again, and the attendants busy in their respective jobs. I have not missed any of the winter shows, and I have seen them grow from year to year both in attendance and exhibits.

The attendance all week was larger than before and the exhibits were in proportion. There were large delegations on the special trains coming from all directions. I was pleased to see such big delegations from up my way and, especially, the large number from Thief River Falls.

Fertile used to show up in large numbers, but the attendance this year from that thriving, lively community was larger than ever. As they came marching up the street from the depot to the armory, passing the Alfalfa Arch with band playing and banners and colors flying, it was an inspiring sight.

As they were passing by, I went over to a couple of those red-tagged visitors and asked them who was taking care of the town and doing the chores while they were gone. The man said, "Ole Thompson is home," and the lady added, "Sam is home, I think," then pausing a little, she spoke again. "I am pretty sure Sam is home!" A good laugh followed.

There was one thing that impressed me more than anything else at the show, and it was the Alfalfa Arch with the glowing inscription, "Red River Valley, Queen of Alfalfa," and underneath, "Pennington County, Home of Alfalfa"! I thought it was a splendid combination, and I must confess it did me a lot of good to see it. I said to myself, and I said it to others:

"This is a noble thought, a deed devoid of selfishness, a courtesy extended to a neighboring county and a manifestation of respect and good fellowship to people from other sections of the Red River valley. The management of the winter show is to be congratulated for this noble inspiration; it was a fine tribute to Pennington county, and it was a good advertisement for the winter show as a whole."

Crookston is an ideal location for the winter shows, being centrally located, having excellent railroad facilities, good hotel accommodations, and a good bunch of boosters; above all, however, Crookston has the Northwest School of Agriculture, with its staff of instructors and equipment under the leadership of that untiring dynamo of inspiration — the real motive power for this great show — Professor C. J. Selvig.

No small credit is due the livestock exhibitors from the different parts of the valley. Putting the stock in condition and fitting them up for exhibition and braving the severe winter day, which we generally have this time of the year, is no small task. Pennington county, for its size, contributed as much as any other locality having four carloads of livestock on exhibition.

There was an excellent exhibit of junior livestock. The club exhibits showed a 100 per cent increase over last year, and there is an open field for this kind of work in Pennington county, as very little has been done along this line.

The splendid cooperation, which seems to prevail between all livestock exhibitors, is worthy of notice. Everybody was lending a helping hand whenever it was necessary. Not everybody can get prizes; somebody is bound to lose, but to the credit of the exhibitors, the losers took their defeat as good sportsmen.

This winter show is a magnificent affair of which the whole section, called the Red River valley, can be justly proud. It brings up here many people who seldom, if ever, would come up to this part of the country. I heard many people say it was their first visit here. The excellent display of livestock, grain, corn and potatoes — everything Red River Valley produces — was a revelation to many and especially to those who were there for their first visit.

This occasion brings men of national reputation up here to lecture on different topics, and an interesting program was arranged for each day of the week. The result, which will follow in the wake of this get-together, is hard to estimate, but the entire Red River Valley through this advertising medium — the winter show — can bring attention far and wide to the resources and future possibilities of this fertile region.

There is not a county in the entire Red River valley that does not have some unoccupied land waiting for somebody to develop, and the mere fact that this is an ideal alfalfa region is enough to make people sit up and take notice.

Next year, we meet at the winter show again. Every little difference and all the little natural envies between men, counties and cities, we will leave out of our old kit bag and spend at least a day at the farm crop show.

Remember, we boost ourselves by boosting others.

(Signed) Peder Engelstad

Peder's Life and Accomplishments were Described in 15-page Article in a Norwegian Language Publication

Mjosenlaget's Yearbook 1928-29, carried a 15-page article, in Norwegian, concerning the life and accomplishments of Peder and Mathilde, that was entitled "Hvorledes Husmandsgutten blev Konge" (How Peasant Boy Became King). The reference to "King" in the title stems from the crowing of Peder as Alfalfa King in 1924, and the writer, Gustav Kvisgaard, closes the article with this translated sentence: "In the history of Norwegian pioneers in America, Peder Engelstad definitely has earned himself a prominent place, and his name and achievements will not soon be forgotten in America."

4-H Club Activities in Rocksbury

Although 4-H club activity had been started as early as 1919 under county agent J.J. McCann and Paul Engelstad had been a committee leader for a livestock project in 1923, Rocksbury did not become involved as one of 13 clubs, each with an identifying name, until in 1931. Among the first leaders in the Rocksbury 4-H club were Henry Oen, Mrs. Martin Finstad and Mrs. Axel Engelstad, and it was in the 1930's that Peder and Mathilde's grandchildren, along with their many Rocksbury friends, were ardent participants.

How better to build up enthusiasm and the spirit to win than a cheer such as the following: "Lutefisk — Lefse — Engelstad's cream, We are Rocksbury's Kittenball Team!"

In the history of the Red River valley, there has not been a movement that has been more far-reaching and has created more genuine enthusiasm for the activities of the farm than the 4-H clubs. They have brought ambitious youth together in local, sectional, state, national and international competition, and they have instilled in girls and boys a spirit of confidence in their ability, a respect for quality and greater achievement, a sense of leadership, and an awareness of their importance to the good of the nation and the world.

It is encouraging to see a program such as the 4-H clubs bringing out in our young people a feeling of being an important, indispensable part of what is needed to make our own nation strong and all of the nations more compatible.

IN THE MOMENTS following a victory over the Eagle Air Service team, Colleen Cullen temporarily forgot to shut the water off and hosed down a few spectators during water fights sponsored by the Jaycees Thursday as part of Summerfest activities. Sponsored by the Thune Hearing Aid Center, the girls took second place in the contest. Colleen's teammates were Peggy Mehrkens, Shari Larson and Evonne Anderson. Third place was taken by the Eagle Air Service team, and fourth was taken by the Jaycee women's team. Rundell Electric retained the championship for the sixth year in a row.

CRAZY COSTUMES worn by employees at the K-Mart store really got them into the spirit of the costume contest sponsored by the retail business association during Crazy Days, and they walked away with three cash prizes and an honorable mention. Nancy Jensen took third place, $25, with her half man-half woman getup; Sherry Passa took fourth place, $15, as a windup doll; Ann Borg took a fifth place, $5, as Charlie Chaplin; and Delores Kainz received honorable mention with an outfit that was just certifiably crazy.

BIG SHOES worn as part of her hobo clown costume gave Sherry Myers sore feet after a full day as a clerk at the Pamida store, but the smile was genuine as she was informed that she had won second place and $30 in the costume contest sponsored by the retail business association during Crazy Days on Thursday.

Loeffler Earns Sales Award

Tim Loeffler, Thief River Falls, is being honored by American Family insurance among a select group of agents for sales of auto, homeowners, health, life and business insurance.

Tim's performance earned an invitation to attend the "All American" convention in New York City, July 21 through July 24.

Grand Forks Summerthing '83 Set Aug. 3-7

"Summerthing '83" will be held in Grand Forks' university park August 3 to 7. As in the past six seasons the event is free and open to the public.

This year Chautauqua returns to Grand Forks to open the festival and continue until the close of the event. Idea of open-air educational and cultural programs still has appeal, and this year's Chautauqua tour "Dreamers on the Frontier" brings together portrayals of historical characters.

Final "Summerthing '83" weekend, August 6 and 7, beginning at 1 p.m. is a full scale festival of the arts, with music, artists' demonstrations and exhibits, dance, childrens theatre, magic and juggling.

In addition to "Free Hot Lunch", a trio from Madison, WI, who performed last summer, visitors can hear folk singer George Russell, "Auraflux" — a seven-piece modern jazz group; easy listening guitarist Bruce Ruscitti; Bob King and Duck Donald who have been regulars at the Winnipeg folk festival; and local favorites "Dick King and the Classic Swing Band", Third Street Symphonie and Henry Rose Quartet.

Rheumatoid Arthritis Still Medical Puzzle

Rheumatoid arthritis is a widespread and puzzling illness. It affects over 120,000 Minnesotans, according to the Arthritis foundation. In its most serious form, it causes painful, badly damaged joints. But in its mild form it causes only minor discomfort and doesn't lead to serious joint deformity.

While the cause of rheumatoid arthritis is not yet known to medical science, and no cure has yet been found, the disease can be controlled, a foundation spokesman reported. Early diagnosis, good medical care, and disciplined day-to-day compliance with physicians' and therapists' instructions can prevent or control crippling in the overwhelming number of cases, the foundation spokesman added.

Arthritis foundation has a special message on rheumatoid arthritis that may be heard in August by calling the Foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1274. Foundation has just published a new booklet on the disease that is available free to callers.

These and other services of the Arthritis foundation are made possible in Minnesota communities by public support.

Exploiting Walking

Columnist Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer-Journal believes the current promotion of walking as America's number one exercise could follow the normal progression of other activities and lead to exploitation. Here is his explanation:

There already are overtones of commercialism in "The Walk Book", the pamphlet printed as part of the campaign.

For example, the table of contents lists a couple of rather ominous-sounding titles — "What will walking do for me?" and "How can I be sure it's working for me?"

It's only a matter of time before commercialism leads to fadism and eventually, hedonistic walking. And from there, it's only a step to professionalism, which leads to recruiting, television contracts and, finally, "Walk of the Week" with Vin Scully doing the commentary and Joe Garagiola doing the color by describing the time he had a perfect day against the Dodgers, drawing three walks and a walk back to the dugout in four tries.

Then there's the inevitable — disillusionment and scandal. Envision, if you will, the young walking stars, fresh out of high school and being pressured by Minnesota A & S (Ambling and Strolling), Georgia (Herschel Walker's alma mater) and the South Dakota State School of Podiatry, which walked off with the NCAA championship last year, much to Gov. Perpich's dismay.

These youths will be buffeted by offers of new cars so they won't have to walk to walking practice. They'll hear such sweet talk as, "With you anchoring our 400-meter saunter, we'll win the conference title in a walkaway" from the big schools. Counters such as: "Kid, you can walk for us as a freshman; you go to those big diploma mills and they'll walk all over you" will come from the smaller institutions.

Understandably swayed by flattery and hollow promises, many of them will walk away from childhood dreams and sign with the big campus, there to sadly learn that walking in the fast lane takes its toll.

Athough all-around walkers in high school, they'll be assigned to the offensive unit and ordered to become specialists. The old skills — heel-and-toe, shuffling, straight walking and off-speed ambling — won't be good enough any more. They'll be exposed to such intricate formations as "downshift to lolligag," "instep patterns" and "fallen arch sidestep."

Confused, and disenchanted, they'll start skipping practice, using such excuses as "My corns were acting up." Next they'll be investigations of bunion pad abuse.

And, finally, the NCAA will order suspensions that will limit participation in Walker Cup competition, ban appearances in the Walker Bowl and reduce walking scholarships to a barefoot minimum.

And many of these young walking stars, untrained in anything else, will drop out of school and turn pro.

You can see now where the danger lies. It would, therefore, be wise to walk away from this thinly disguised attempt to corrupt one of the few participation sports still available to those of us who suffer from abject sloth.

New Generation Gap

Following was written by Frank J. Fahrenkopf Jr., chairman of the Republican national committee:

In the midst of the turbulent 60's, everyone talked about the generation gap. Today there is another kind of generation gap and it's even more alarming.

The generation gap is in education. For most of America's history, each new generation was better educated than its predecessor, but that is no longer the case. Now, 23 million adults are illiterate as are 13 per cent of all 17-year-olds and as much as 40 per cent of minority youth. Only one-fifth of all 17-year-olds can write a persuasive essay and only one-third can solve a math problem involving several steps. From 1963 to 1980, average S.A.T. scores fell 50 points in verbal skills and 50 points in mathematical ability.

The problem is even greater in the face of America's economic growth. American high-tech industries are booming, and we must make educational decisions now that will affect us for decades.

Why is education failing? There is no single answer. Low pay for good teachers has something to do with it. Bright graduates shun the profession and for those already teaching, there are no financial incentives for excellence. Curriculums have become erratic, ignoring basic skills, and then parents have dropped the ball in many cases. They have become less involved in educational decision-making.

The answer? While money is important it is not the whole solution: federal spending increased 17-fold during the same 20 years that education saw such a dramatic decline. The answer is putting parents and communities back in charge of schools, bringing the basics back to the classrooms. The answer is also higher pay for teachers and the master teacher program, systematically rewarding excellence with both respect and cash. Those are solutions President Reagan favors. His administration is committed to educational recovery.

A Great Idea

Following editorial is from the Indianapolis Star:

The Senate got into a bitter squabble recently about how much members should make inside and outside of Congress. It settled the question with little grace and even less sensitivity by giving members a 15 per cent salary increase beginning July 1 and delaying until next year any limit on what members may earn from speech-making and similar activities directly attributable to the congressional connection.

The battle of wits and words started when some senators argued that it was unseemly at best to be paid less than members of the House of Representatives and the only way the upper chamber could save face was to start collecting the same salary as the House.

But then somebody brought up the Senate privilege of unlimited outside income, as compared with the House's 30 per cent of salary ceiling. And quite a few of your run-of-the-mill senators pointed out that some Senate committee chairmen had earned a passel of money last year on the chicken and peas circuit. In some cases, some earned more speaking to special interest groups than they got from Uncle Sam.

That made a few people squirm and so there were proposals to put a ceiling on outside earnings or eliminate outside earnings altogether and raise salaries to $100,000.

But most drastic — and most appealing — proposition of all came from Tennessee's Senator Howard Baker, who recommended cutting both salaries and the legislative year in half. Have the Senate in session only from January to July, Baker urged, slash the pay in half and let members earn whatever they can the rest of the year.

That's the best deal any member of Congress has offered to the American people in at least 25 years.

With half the usual time in session, members could be expected to make only half the mischief they make now. Just think, half the legislation, half the taxes, half the noise pollution. Ah, it's an intoxicating prospect.

We don't know if Baker was serious or just grandstanding. Or maybe he figures less time on the Senate floor means more time to campaign for the presidency.

At any rate, he had a great idea going there for a while. Too bad it got upstaged by that 15 per cent pay increase.

Curve Balls Do Curve

Following report on a scientific discovery is provided through the courtesy of Bob Johnson in the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

I've always wondered why modern science practicioners continue to prove the earth is round and that it revolves around the sun.

At a recent science advancement meeting in Michigan, scientists learned there actually is such a phenomenon as a curve ball — in baseball, that is.

Dr. Robert Watts, a Tulane mechanical engineer, using a computer and strobe photography, proved that a pitch from the mound crosses home plate two feet wider or lower than it would be in an airless void. Dr. Watts' effort required 10 years.

Even a casual baseball fan knows there is indeed a curve ball, and a slider and knuckle ball, as well. But scientists kept saying there was no such thing as a funny ball.

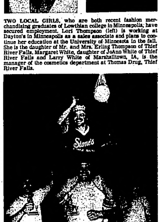
There was a time when science said the bumblebee couldn't fly. Unaware of scientific facts, the bee kept on flying, just at pitchers kept on throwing curve balls.

I hope Dr. Watts learned something useful in the 10 years he devoted to his study.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Three boys were discussing their family income. The lawyer's son said his dad earned $1,500 in one court case. The doctor's son said his dad collected $2,000 from one operation. The minister's son said his dad only had to talk 15 minutes and it took four men to carry the money.

TWO LOCAL GIRLS, who are both recent fashion merchandising graduates of Lowthian college in Minneapolis, have secured employment. Lori Thompson (left) is working at Dayton's in Minneapolis as a sales associate and plans to continue her education at the University of Minnesota in the fall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erling Thompson of Thief River Falls. Margaret White, daughter of JoAnn White of Thief River Falls and Larry White of Marshalltown, IA, is the manager of the cosmetics department at Thomas Drug, Thief River Falls.



AFTER SUCCESSFULLY defending their title in the Jaycee sponsored waterfights for the sixth year in a row, the Rundell Electric team was exhuberant as they posed with their trophies on Thursday night, in spite of the fact that they were soaking wet and it was dark outside. As they demonstrated what the competition will have to do to beat them, Steve "Runt" Rundell manned the hose from the shoulders of Mike Gilbertson, flanked by Dale Warne, left, and Kirby Stiltsworth. They also credited Phil Scott for assisting during the early matches.

Stumpf Talks To Education Commission

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer has expressed his concern over the cost and accessibility to the state's higher educational institutions at a meeting of the Governor's commission on the future of post-secondary education in Minnesota.

The commission was meeting in St. Paul to begin a dialogue regarding the future of post-secondary education in the state as it relates to declining enrollment, fiscal restraints and quality education.

"I told the commission members that the people of our area are especially concerned about the questions of reciprocity and how it affects tuition costs, the accessibility of students to quality educational experience within a reasonable driving distance, and the publication of programs at many of our schools both in Minnesota and just across the border," Stumpf said.

The commission, chaired by former Governor Elmer L. Anderson, has been conducting meetings across the state in an attempt to assess the future of Minnesota's higher educational system and to make recommendations for changes in programs, facilities or both to the Minnesota legislature.

"As vice chairman of the Senate's education committee," Stumpf said, "I have seen the need for reform in our higher educational system, but I also see the need for holding the line on tuition, continuing a level of accessibility for all students wishing to attend these schools in Minnesota and cutting the duplication of programs to reduce this unnecessary cost."

Stumpf emphasized the importance of accessibility and cost of tuition remaining reasonable in neighboring states, saying "our children should not have to drive 250 or 400 miles to attend a school when good schools are available right in our own region at a reasonable cost."

He said this issue becomes "very important and I hope the commission takes it into consideration in its meetings to come.

"The cost of tuition must also be kept low at all of the schools in our area, such as Grand Forks, Crookston and Bemidji, in order to attract these students," he added. "We must also ask the questions of whether we should close just one or more schools in order to eliminate this duplication, but certainly not at the expense of accessibility and higher tuition costs to our students," he added.

LOIS STEIGER of Annette's Fabrics received an honorable mention placing in the Crazy Days costume contest in Thief River Falls Thursday.

MEA Summer Leadership Meet Slated

Thirty-seventh annual summer leadership conference conducted by the Minnesota Education association (MEA) will take place August 2-5 at St. Cloud state university.

Contract negotiations and teacher rights as well as other legal aspects of local association activities will be discussed by teachers from throughout the state. Nearly 400 are pre-registered.

Leadership functions, communications, local association program maintenance and membership concerns are included as part of the four-day program.

The summer leadership conference, says MEA president Donald C. Hill, "is designed to help members and their colleagues organize their local associations for maximum effectiveness in dealing with the concerns and problems that teachers and education face today.

"Participants will learn about programs to establish in their local associations that will allow teachers to take control of their profession, and also will take an in-depth look at internal and external communication techniques."

Higher education will receive attention in a seminar designed to deal specifically with problems and programs in that area, he said. Theme for teacher negotiations is partnership, with local associations providing mutual support during negotiations.

The conference also will deal with the future direction of the association and provide suggestions for innovative planning for the future.

BSU Schedules Non-Traditional Student Meet

Prospective non-traditional students considering a learning experience at Bemidji state univeslty can receive information and assistance in registering by attending a "Give Yourself Credit" session August 23 from 5:45 to 7 p.m.

"Give Yourself Credit" is a program designed for the older than average student making a decision to return to college after interrupting their education because of family responsibilities, financial considerations, military service or other career choices.

Approximately 25 per cent of the average BSU enrollment consists of non-traditional students, many of whom seek a college education to increase employability in today's job market.

Session, held in the Beaux arts ballroom at Bemidji state university, provides opportunities to visit with BSU faculty, meet other non-traditional students, discuss special interest services and explore alternative academic programs.

Interested individuals may also complete registration for fall quarter classes at that time if they so desire.

For more information on the "Give Yourself Credit" program, contact Ed Gersich, Deputy Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601 (218-755-2068).

Torstveits Attend Young Farmer Meet

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Trostveit, St. Hilaire, participated in the Land O' Lakes "Away-For-A-Day" young farmer program held July 19 and 20, in Detroit Lakes.

Young farmers were selected to attend on the basis of their farming operation and their interest in community and cooperative affairs. This program is jointly sponsored by local cooperative members of Land O'Lakes, Land O'Lakes voting units, and Land O'Lakes district associations.

I.R.A. Regulations make it possible for practically every working person to participate!

Even if you already have a company retirement plan, even if you are a government employee or are in the armed forces, you can still put money you earn into an Individual Retirement Account! That means that you can put up to $4,000.00 jointly (up to $2,000.00 individually); $2,250.00 if there's a non-working spouse). It's a great way to get high interest and a tax-deduction for the entire amount.

East Grand Forks laid claim to the Northwest League American Legion baseball title on the final night of regular season play last week with a 7-4 victory over Crookston.

After early season challenges by the smaller programs at Karlstad and Warroad, it wound up with the three Class AA teams finishing in their familiar 1-2-3 positions atop the league standings.

East Grand Forks finished with a 9-3 record against Northwest League opponents, while Thief River Falls and Crookston shared second place at 8-3-1.

Title-winning East Grand Forks gained its first league pennant since a title share with Thief River Falls in 1975 despite two losses at the hands of Warroad this summer. But East Grand Forks swept Crookston, Hallock, Roseau and Karlstad and split its series with defending champion Thief River Falls, winning the first encounter 7-1 but losing a rematch a week later 3-2.

Thief River Falls won or shared six of the eight previous Northwest League pennants, but a 2-0 loss at the hands of Karlstad and the failure to beat Crookston erased those title figures this summer. Thief River Falls lost to Crookston 6-2 early in the year and the two teams played to a 1-1 tie called because of darkness later in the year. Crookston's title chances suffered a blow at the hands of Karlstad, too, 11-0.

Importance of the Northwest League standings, used to determine post-season tournament seeding positions in Sub-District 4 lost some of its prestige when East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls and Crookston were elevated into Class AA status this summer.

Although the top two finishers in the four-team Sub-District 4 tournament at Warroad were to move onto Ninth District Class A tournament play, it didn't work out that way since Karlstad failed to pay its required fee. In opening round Sub-District 4 play, Karlstad beat Hallock 4-2 and Warroad blanked Roseau 7-0, with Warroad topping Karlstad 9-4 in the finals last Monday. But it was Warroad and Roseau moving onto the Ninth District Class A tournament at Battle Lake, not Warroad and Karlstad.

Detroit Lakes Standout Sidelined

Detroit Lakes high school athletic standout Bob Caulfied, an NHL draft choice as a junior this past hockey season and scheduled to serve as one of four Detroit Lakes football captains this coming fall, has been lost to the football team for the entire 1983 season and may even miss some of the 1983-84 hockey season with the Lakers, according to Ralph Anderson of the Detroit Lakes newspapers.

Caulfield was at Colorado Springs, Colo. recently, along with Tim Bergland of Thief River Falls and Craig Mack of East Grand Forks, to try out for the 1984 U.S. National Junior hockey team and it was discovered at the tryout camp that Caulfield has a broken bone in his left wrist. The break will require surgery which will be performed sometime this month at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, and depending on the rate the wrist heals, Caulfield will probably miss from three to five months of athletic competition during the 1983-84 school year.

Apparently the bone was broken sometime during the 1982-83 school year while Caulfield was participating in either hockey or football, according to physicians at Colorado Springs. Caulfield was told he should have surgery, but was allowed to take part in the Canadian Professional Hockey School in Detroit Lakes two weeks ago and last week was a participant at a hockey school in Brainerd.

"We were counting heavily on Bob for his leadership this coming season," said Detroit Lakes football coach Dick Riedberger. "He came on very strong at the end of last season and there's no doubt that his loss will really hurt."

"We are inexperienced in the backfield as it is, and now we'll have to fine someone for the fullback slot who doesn't have any varsity experience," Riedberger told Anderson. Caulfield was the Lakers' second-leading ground-gainer last fall, making good yardage in tough up-the-middle situations.

Thief River Falls' 1983 football home opener will be against the Lakers after the Prowlers' traditional season-opener is played on the road this year at Grand Forks Red River.

After playing just three home games and six on the road last fall, that schedule will be reversed this year for the Prowlers, who will also play host to Mahnomen, Breckenridge, Moorhead, Bemidji and Crookston while visiting Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks.

Miscellaneous

+ An attempt by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) through the Thief River Falls park and recreation department to stage a two-week North Country Summer Hockey Camp in the old arena in downtown Thief River Falls fell prey to the 90-degree temperatures and was cancelled. The two-week camp for Squirts, Pee-Wees and Bantams, plus a high school league, was scheduled to open Sunday, but attempts to maintain an artificial ice sheet were finally called off Thursday afternoon. About 130 hockey players were expected to be involved in the program.

Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup, Pro-Am Golf Tournaments Held In TRF

Rain Saturday morning eliminated first-day action in the annual Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club, but played picked up Sunday and Jerry Imgrund of Thief River Falls emerged as the championship flight winner with a 27-hole 107.

Imgrund shot consistent rounds of 35-36-36 for a four-stroke victory over Marv Carlson of Thief River Falls and Lee Sorensen of Red Lake Falls, who shared second place at 111 in the eight-player field. Carlson toured the course in 36-40-35 while Sorensen had rounds of 37-39-35.

Championship flight was scheduled to cover 45 holes of medal play, including 18 holes Saturday.

A smaller field also participated in the flight play Sunday when competition featured nine holes for the first match and 18 holes in the finals of the four-man match play flights. Originally the match play flights were to include 18 holes both Saturday and Sunday. Only four flights went out Sunday.

First flight winner was Karl Gjernes, with Joel Carlson finishing second and Tim Erickson winning the consolation title.

Second flight winner was Wally Krueger, with Art Welter finishing second and Monte Markstrom winning the consolation title.

Third flight winner was Dean Anderson, with Bob Ekeren finishing second and Bill Corliss winning consolation honors.

Fourth flight winner was Bob Larson, with Tom Greelis finishing second and Jim Carlson winning consolation honors.

In junior division play Sunday, Todd Anderson beat Jason Peterson on the second extra playoff hole for the title. Both had finished the regulation 18 holes deadlocked at 90, with Anderson shooting rounds of 45-45 while Peterson shot 46-44. Eric Bolen was third at 95 with rounds of 53-42.

Junior division play was originally scheduled to feature 18 holes of qualifying play Saturday and 18 holes of medal play Sunday.

There was no women's division.

Weekend activity started Friday with the Pepsi-KSNR Pro-Am attracted 10 visiting professional golfers who captained the four-man teams of amateurs in the 3-out-of-5 best-ball competition.

Paul O'Leary of Lincoln Park in Grand Forks was the top pro and his 70 over the 18 holes earned him the $350 first place prize money. His rounds of 32-38 were highlighted by an eagle on the No. 6 hole during his first round.

Colin Bork of the Detroit Country Club in Detroit Lakes and Bill MacAskill of Edgewood Country Club in Fargo shared second place in the pro standings and each won $162.50 for their 71's. Bork shot rounds of 34-37 while MacAskill had rounds of 36-35, including an eagle on the No. 6 hole.

Larry Hoffman of the Detroit Country Club in Detroit Lakes was the fourth place finisher in the pro ranks and earned $75 with a 72 on rounds of 39-33.

Jay Moum, representing the Thief River Country Club and serving as a "pro" to captain one of the 11 squads while himself playing for amateur prizes, matched Hoffman's 72 on rounds of 38-34.

Rounding out the field of pros and winning $25 apiece were Mike Funovits, Fergus Falls Country Club, 73 (38-35); Jim McElhaney, Apache Wells Country Club, Scottsdale, Arizona, 75 (38-37; Ed Demery, Fargo Country Club, 77 (40-37); Dave Kingsrud, Edgewood Country Club, 77 (39-38); Al Bergan, Ironwood Country Club, Palm Desert, California, 78 (40-38); and Steve Timm, Oxbow Country Club, Fargo, 78 (37-41).

In the team standings, a squad led by Larry Hoffman and featuring Thief River Falls golfers Marv Carlson, Myrle Carlson, Karl Gjernes and Steve Hagenah emerged with winners with a 35.

Three teams tied for second place with 39's:

Fifth place went to Steve Timm's team, with Tim Hogan, Tom Greelis, Bill Penning and Art Welter.

STANDING ON THE edge of No. 1 green, Al Buhl watched as a difficult 25-foot putt rolled accurately to the hole and dropped in, giving him a good start Friday in the Pepsi-KSNR Pro-Am portion of the Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club. Buhl was playing on a team with professional golfer Jim McElhaney, plus fellow Thief River Falls golfers Tom Williams, Wes Johnson and Stan Sjoberg.

Babe Ruth Team Splits State Tourney Decisions

Beaten 10-0 by Fridley in opening round play Friday night, Thief River Falls Babe Ruth A team bounced back to defeat Dilworth 9-4 Sunday afternoon to remain alive in the ten-team, double-elimination state Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14-15-year-olds being played at Edina.

Coach Mark Harder's Thief River Falls team was scheduled to face Morris today (Monday) in a 10 a.m. Loser's bracket game. A win would put Thief River Falls back in action Tuesday at 1 p.m. A loss would send the team home.

Fridley pitcher Terry Traczyk tossed a no-hitter at Thief River Falls Friday when his squad capitalized on Thief River Falls errors to turn a 3-0 third inning lead into an 8-0 fourth inning cushion. Thief River Falls was charged with 12 errors — six of them coming in the fourth. Fridley had but one error.

Losing pitcher Jeff Anderson gave up seven base hits.

Sunday, though, the shoe was on the other foot as Dilworth collected eight of the game's nine errors in Thief River Falls' 9-4 win that eliminated the losers from the tournament.

Trailing 4-1 going into the fifth inning, Thief River Falls pulled within 4-3 on a two-out, two-run double by Kory Joppru. Thief River Falls pushed four runs across the plate in the sixth to take a 7-4 lead, forcing play on a variety of squeeze plays at the plate, agressive base running and hits.

Thief River Falls out-hit Dilworth 12-4, with Ritchie Bendickson, Lee Hamre, Tom Knoff and Joppru all getting two hits each as all but one Thief River Falls batter in the line-up collected at least one hit. Marty Levin has three RBI's for the winners, who backed the pitching of East Grand Forks pick-up player Troy Ausmus with solid defense.

Harder said by telephone this morning that it was apparent Thief River Falls suffered from tournament jitters in the opener. The team became more relaxed in the second game, he said, when the hits began to fall, taking some of the pressure off the defense.

Thief River Falls took a 26-8 record into today's game.

Ninth District Class AA . . .

TRF Eliminated In Legion Play

Offensive failure, including a hitless effort in a season-ending loss to Fergus Falls in the loser's bracket Saturday afternoon, eliminated Thief River Falls from the six-team, double-elimination Ninth District Class AA American Legion baseball tournament being played at Moorhead.

Thief River Falls started the tournament Friday afternoon with an 8-6 12-inning victory over Crookston. But even then coach Nick Drees' club had its problems, blowing a 6-0 fifth inning cushion.

Matched against No. 1-seeded Moorhead Friday night, No. 4-seeded Thief River Falls saw a 1-0 lead disappear when the host Blues had back-to-back four-run innings in the fifth and sixth for an 8-1 victory.

Thief River Falls' dwindling offensive production hit a new low Saturday in a 6-0 loss to Fergus Falls when the loser's were no-hit and ended the year 23-8-1.

"We saved the worst 'till last," mused Drees. "We just didn't hit the ball. The defense was adequate, but the big thing is, we just didn't hit the ball."

It was a disappointing finish for the club. Thief River Falls coaches figured their team was slighted with its fourth place seed behind Detroit Lakes and East Grand Forks after a 22-6-1 regular season and had hoped to prove their worth with a strong tournament showing.

"The season as a while was more than we expected," said Drees, whose youthful squad made considerable progress during the summer, "but we expected a little more (at the tournament)."

Championship games in both Class AA and Class A Ninth District tournaments will be played today (Monday).

In the Class AA event at Moorhead, the unbeaten Moorhead Blues play once-beaten East Grand Forks at 6 p.m. A second game, if needed, would be played at 8:30. Moorhead Blues beat East Grand Forks 8-1 Saturday night to reach the finals, with East Grand Forks getting a title game berth through the loser's bracket by beating Fergus Falls 13-8 Sunday.

Meanwhile, in Class A action at Battle Lake, unbeaten Breckenridge will play once-beaten Warroad in the finals at 6 tonight. A second game, if needed, would be played at 8:30. Breckenridge got by Warroad 1-0 in an eight-inning second round meeting Friday and beat the Moorhead Golds 9-1 to reach the finals. Warroad bounced back to beat New York Mills 3-2, Audubon 3-1 and the Moorhead Golds 5-4 in the loser's bracket to gain a title shot.

Class AA and Class A winners will meet in a 2-out-of-3 game series to determine the Ninth District representative at the Minnesota state American Legion baseball tournament next week at New Ulm.

Crookston 6

Al Ness' double in the top of the 12th inning scored Kirk Jensen, who had reached base on an outfield error, breaking a 6-6 tie and giving Thief River Falls an 8-6 marathon victory over Crookston in the tournament's first game Friday afternoon.

Ness also scored before the inning was over to give Ryan Drees, the third Thief River Falls pitcher, the victory.

A two-run third inning double by Tim Bottem provided Thief River Falls with an early edge, with an RBI single by Tim Nyland making it 3-0 in the fourth.

Thief River Falls doubled the margin to 6-0 in the fifth on singles by Jim Hallamek, Jensen and Ness, but then surrendered five Crookston runs in the sixth on three hits, two errors, three walks and a wild pitch. Crookston scored the tying run on Derrick Bray's two-out single in the seventh.

Back-to-back walks to start the game and a one-out single by Kerry Wollin gave Thief River Falls a 1-0 first-inning lead against Moorhead Friday night, and that margin stood up until the fifth when the pre-tournament favorite Blues struck for four runs. They added four more in the sixth for an 8-1 victory.

Moorhead, held to just two hits through four innings, got three of them in the fifth, along with two walks, to take the lead. Two of the three hits were doubles, and all the runs scored with two out.

There were four more Moorhead hits in the sixth as the Blues doubled their lead and ran their winning streak to 18 games.

TRF 0

Bottom-seeded Fergus Falls pulled off a major surprise by no-hitting Thief River Falls 6-0 in Saturday's loser's bracket.

It was 1-0 on a Jason Wentler fifth inning RBI triple until Fergus Falls struck for five runs in the top of the seventh on six hits, including another run-scoring triple by Wentler.

Thief River had just three base runners during the game, putting just one runner on base — via an error — over the final six innings.

TOM WILLIAMS lifted a chip shot onto the No. 3 green Friday during the early portion of the Pepsi-KSNR Pro-Am golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club. Friday's Pro-Am event kicked off the weekend activity at the Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup tournament.

THE LONG and short of it were featured Friday during the special Jim McElhaney Magic Tee Show that preceded the weekend golf activity at the Thief River Country Club. McElhaney's exhibition of trick shots provided some 45 minutes worth of often laugh-producing entertainment. He displayed his long driver, and had fan participation invoke laughter as Marv Carlson, recognized as one of the top golfers at the Thief River Country Club, flailed away unsuccessfully with a short-staffed driver. McElhaney, based out of Arizona, travels across the country with his show. After the demonstration he was one of nine visiting professional golfers who took part in the Pepsi-KSNR Pro-Am tournament. Paul O'Leary of Lincoln Park in Grand Forks won the professional portion of the tournament and the $350 first place prize.

DNR NEWS

Expanded Ground

Fearing that intensive irrigation will deplete the water supply and alter its quality, the 1983 Minnesota Legislature appropriated funds for expanded ground water monitoring.

Appropriated funds will be recovered through increased fees from large water users. The increases took effect July 1.

Legislature raised the minimum water appropriation and protected water permit application fee from $15 to $30. Annual water appropriation reporting fee was increased from a $5 flat rate to a variable rate. For agricultural irrigation, these revised fees will be based on permitted irrigated acres and, for all others, on annual permitted appropriation (million gallons per year).

DNR, with the cooperation of Soil and Water Conservation District observers, is currently measuring water levels in 231 wells across the state. This will be increased to about 350 wells over the next two years. The project is designed to monitor effects of intensive water use.

High priority locations for additional water level monitoring are those buried sands and gravels in western Minnesota where irrigation and community withdrawls are already heavy and little is known about the long-term water supply.

Water level monitoring in the major aquifers statewide will also benefit from the appropriation. DNR cooperates with the U.S. Geological Survey on this project. Wells in this project are less tied to development and are chosen to represent long-term aquifer response.

Appropriation will support water quality sampling in areas of the state where irrigation is heavy.

Two pilot studies in eight counties of central Minnesota have shown the need for continued systematic analyses in areas of intensive development. These counties include Morrison, Wadena, eastern Otter Tail, Hubbard, Douglas, Stearns, Pope and Kandiyohi.

DNR and the U.S. Geological Survey will begin a new study of the Anoka Sand Plain in Anoka and Sherburne counties. New wells will be drilled and some existing wells will be selected this year for sampling in the spring of 1984 and 1985.

Selected wells in the study areas will be resampled annually to keep track of the longer-term changes in ground water quality.

For further information about these activites, contact Sarah Tufford, DNR Division of Waters, Box 32 Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call 612-297-2431.

— Youth Baseball —

Post-season playoffs are underway in the Thief River Falls summer youth baseball program.

Those involved in the 7-8-year-old instructional league will complete their regular season schedules this week while those in the Bambino League West Division for 9-10-year-olds and those in the Bambino League East Division and Bambino Major League for 10-11-12-year-olds end the year with double-elimination playoffs.

First round games in the four-team Bambino League West Division playoffs start today (Monday) at 3 p.m. when the Orioles play the Red Sox and the Royals face the Tigers. Those first round losers met Tuesday at 1 p.m., with the first round winners playing Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Final loser's bracket game will be played Wednesday at 2:30 p.m., with the championship game scheduled Thursday at 1 p.m. A second title game in the double-elimination format, if needed, would be played at 3 Thursday afternoon.

Bambino League-East

First round games were played Friday in the four-team Bambino League East Division playoffs as the Blue Jays defeated the Twins 10-4 and the A's downed the Yankees 4-2.

Play resumes Tuesday when the Twins and Yankees play in a 1 p.m. loser's bracket game while the Blue Jays and the A's meet at 3 p.m. for a berth in the finals.

Twins-Yankees winner will play the Blue Jays - A's loser Wednesday at 3 p.m. for a shot at the title game, scheduled to be played Thursday at 1 p.m. A second title game match, if needed, would be played at 3 that same afternoon.

Bambino Major League

Blue Jays stopped the A's 5-1 Friday to open the five-team Bambino Major League playoffs.

Games tonight (Monday) match the Twins vs. the Yankees at 5 p.m. and the Blue Jays against Red Lake Falls at 7.

On Tuesday, the Twins-Yankees loser plays the A's at 5 p.m. while the Twins-Yankees winner plays the Red Lake Falls-Blue Jays winner at 7, with that winner moving into the finals.

Play in the loser's bracket continues Wednesday at 5 and 7 p.m. Finals are scheduled Thursday at 5 p.m., with a second game, if needed, planned for 7 that night.

Slow Down and Live

A TREE sitting in the No. 3 fairway provided a problem for Stan Sjoberg Friday during the Pepsi-KSNR Pro-Am golf tournament at the Thief River Country Club. Sjoberg recovered, only to hit another tree with his next shot.

Todd Bergland Will Be On UWS Squad

Todd Bergland

Todd Bergland, a 6-1, 180-pound wing and captain of the Northland community college hockey team last season will transfer from the Thief River Falls school to the University of Wisconsin-Superior this fall.

UWS head hockey Coach Gary Harker said Bergland is interested in eventually earning a degree in medicine, with a minor studies in physical education and coaching. Bergland scored 31 points in 20 games last season. He earned letters in hockey, cross country and baseball in high school, while playing both hockey and baseball at Northland.

"Todd is a quality small college hockey player," Harker commented. "His size and scoring ability will be a welcome addition to our hockey program."

Bergland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bergland of Thief River Falls.

Youth Baseball Invitational

Tournament Won By TRF Ball Club

Despite rain at the beginning and the end, the first Lake Agassiz Bambino invitational baseball tournament for 10-11-12-year-olds was held Saturday in Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls Blue, coached by Charlie Cornell, emerged as the tournament champion with a 16-6 title game victory over Roseau.

Warroad edged Thief River Falls Gold, coached by Myron Peterson, 10-8 in the third place game; Red Lake Falls out-scored East Grand Forks 10-9 for the consolation title; and Crookston defeated Baudette 13-6 in the seventh place game.

Originally scheduled to feature one Thief River Falls all-star team from the Bambino Major League here, the tournament line-up wound up with two Thief River Falls entries when Williams dropped out of the eight-team field late in the week.

1. When will the Department of Natural Resources begin buying cones this year?

DNR-Forestry will most likely be purchasing cones to supply the seeds for our tree nursery operations, but depending upon the nursery's needs for particular species and whether or not we have a good production year for the desired species, we may purchase cones in some areas and not in others. If you desire to collect cones with hopes of selling them to the DNR, you need to first contact your local Department of Natural Resources-Forestry office to find out whether they will be purchasing cones and get the lowdown on our cone purchasing procedure. Charles Krysel, area silverculturist.

2. For many years I purchased a non-resident fishing license to fish in Minnesota. I now find that the state of Minnesota does not give free fishing licenses to non-resident senior citizens. Why is that?

This is mainly a matter of economics. The state Legislature which determines license fees and requirements, has not chosen to extend free fishing priviledges to non-resident senior citizens. To do so would result in the loss of several hundred thousand dollars to the game and fish fund, which is used to improve fishing and hunting opportunity in the state. I am not aware of any surrounding states that allow non-resident senior citizens to fish without a license or for a reduced fee. Stan Daley, regional fisheries supervisor.

3. Got a question, a complaint or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR "Hotline" is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 218-755-3976.

Matt Blair Chairs "Don't Smoke Day"

Minnesota Viking linebacker Matt Blair is acting as honorary chairperson for Minnesota D-Day ("Don't Smoke Day"), announced Terry Pechachek, Ph. D., D-Day chairperson and director of smoking research at the University of Minnesota.

Matt Blair is an avid non-smoker and is particularly concerned with youth and smoking. "Peer pressure is a powerful force that drives kids into the smoking and drug scene," Blair commented. "But then it's you who are left holding the bag if you start smoking."

As honorary chairman, Blair will be promoting all D.Day activities ("D-Day") will be held November 17) including a "Quitters' Raffle," in which smokers who quit will have an opportunity to win several donated prizes. "The biggest prize of all," Matt said, "is better health."

In his nine years of professional football, Blair has emerged as one of the most outstanding linebackers of all time. He is very active in charitable activities, including running a football camp for disadvantaged children every summer.

Minnesota D-Day is co-sponsored by the American lung association of Minnesota and the American cancer society, Minnesota division. For information on this year's D-Day activities, write to: D-Day Headquarters, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, MN, 55102.

Boat Accident Fatalities Are Reported Down

Fatality rate for recreational boating accidents decreased in 1982 to the lowest total since 1963, according to the latest U.S. Coast Guard statistics.

Total fatalities from recreational boating accidents were 1,178, down 30 from the 1,208 deaths in 1981. There were 7.9 fatalities per 100,000 estimated recreational boats.

In contrast, the number of boating accidents, injuries and the value of property damaged increased in 1982. The Coast Guard estimates that it receives reports of fewer than 10 per cent of the non-fatal accidents.

In men's fast pitch softball, both Melvies and United Satellite Systems (USS) picked up their first win of the year as they split a Tuesday doubleheader.

Melvies won the first game 4-2 behind Leroy Christenson's five hitter and USS took the nightcap 4-2 as Tony Johnson tossed a five-hitter. Al Melvie scored a run in the second inning with his first home run ever as a fast pitch player to knot the score at 1-1, but USS got a run in the bottom of the inning and added a pair in the third for their four runs.

In the first game on Wednesday night, the two teams went at it again with USS eking out a one run win in a 12-11 slugfest. Rick Kofstad had the only homer, a lead off shot in a seven-run Melvies fourth inning. But USS used three as a lucky charm as they had four three-run innings in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth.

Wednesday's second game had Schmidts-Coke edging Popplers 3-2 with Greg Harder's game winning hit in the bottom of the seventh providing the margin. Schmidt-Coke had taken a 2-0 lead into the sixth inning before Popplers scored a run on Jeff Hendrickson's sacrifice fly to score Brian Peterson. Del Beito laced a one out homer in the seventh to knot the contest.

Thursday night featured another doubleheader as Schmidts-Coke and Neibauer's went through 5½ innings of scoreless ball until Ron Ostby belted a grand slam homer for a 4-0 Neibauer's win. Jeff Cwikla led off the inning with a walk, two infield errors loaded the bases and Ostby picked out a 1-1 offering for the big blow. Al Erickson and Mike Drury matched three-hitters.

Neibauer's took on Melvies in the second game Thursday and Erickson fired another three-hitter in Neibauer's 8-0 romp. Darrell Stromlund went 3-for-3 with a couple of RBI's while Bruce Johnson had a pair of doubles in three trips to pace a 13-hit attack.

Finally, on Friday night, Popplers used a three run first inning en route to a 4-1 win over USS. Mark Schmitke's bases loaded double scored all the runs with two out. USS got its only run in the bottom of the third as Tony Johnson and Jeff Imgrund pulled a double steal with Imgrund scoring on the play. Popplers outhit USS 10-4.

Wild Burros Are Offered For Adoption

Seventy wild burros from western public rangelands will soon be readily available to Wisconsin and Minnesota residents, when the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management (BLM) sets up a temporary wild burro adoption center in Wisconsin, July 28-31. For the second year in a row, BLM will track animals to Billy Nelson's Blue Ribbon Ranch near Elk Mound, Wis. — not far from Eau Claire or Chippewa Falls, and just 70 miles east of St. Paul. Animal lovers who promise to give them good homes may adopt as many as four animals. To qualify under the adoption program, applicants must have adequate facilities and a means for caring for the animals, and pay an adoption fee of $140 for each burro.

Applications and information about the event can be obtained from the Adopt-a-Burro Program, Bureau of Land Management, 350 South Pickett Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22304, telephone (703) 235-2866 or (703) 235-2840. Prospective adopters can also pick up the materials and be screened at the Blue Ribbon Ranch during the adoption event, July 28-31. All approved applicants will select their animals at the site.

"Last year's adoption program in Wisconsin was so successful that we were eager to return," said BLM eastern states director G. Curtis Jones Jr. "Adopters are always needed to help us solve the problem of overpopulation among wild horses and burros on public rangelands. People in Wisconsin and Minnesota have shown a great willingness to provide homes for these animals."

According to Jones, some 140 residents of Wisconsin already have adopted 245 animals. Residents of Minnesota have adopted 199.

Jones explained that, under the protection of federal law, herds of wild horses and burros increase rapidly, and must compete for limited forage and water with native wildlife and domestic livestock that also graze the public lands. "Even though BLM has found homes for nearly 42,000 excess wild horses and burros," he said, "the populations grow so fast that thousands more must be removed each year in order to prevent serious harm to the range and to the herds themselves."

The burros coming to Wisconsin were gathered on public rangelands in Arizona. Most wild burros are found in Arizona and southern California. Before shipping east, every animal BLM rounds up is thoroughly checked by a veterinarian, Coggins tested, and vaccinated for various equine disorders.

"These animals are wild," Jones said, "but they're probably more afraid of humans than people are of them." With care and patience, he added, wild burros make excellent pets, and can be tamed and used for farmwork, breeding, breaking cattle to lead, eating thistles or other non-commercial purposes. They require adequate shelter and corral space with sturdy fencing, and their new guardians should have some experience with livestock.

Jones explained that the $140 adoption fee will help cover the federal government's cost of roundup, veterinary care, transportation, feed and administrative expenses. For at least 12 months following the adoption, each animal remains U.S. government property. After that, if the burro has been cared for humanely, the adopter may apply to receive title from BLM.

HUNG UP, John Zimple of Plummer spun his wheels in vain as he tried to get back in the action during the Jaycees demolition derby which began a week of Summerfest activities last Sunday.

While the two cars struggled to get separated, the destruction went on around them, so that when they finally did get free, there was just that much less competition. The show did not go unappreciated, as the stands were filled to overflowing.

Summer Heat Poses Threat To Health

Minnesotans look forward to the warmth of summer only to discover summer may bring with it a number of adverse conditions. Hot, humid air has been one of the worst enemies this summer, reports the Marshall County Nursing Service.

The service provides a few helpful reminders may make the summer more pleasant and you more healthy.

Extent to which various body systems can adapt to a hot climate or hot working conditions, exposure to alternately high and low temperature extremes and conditions of high and low humidity is apparently related to an individual's ability to avoid heat illnesses. This body adaption varies among individuals.

Drinking adequate amounts of water (1½ to 2 quarts daily) even if you don't feel thirsty, and increasing the intake of salt are two preventive measures that may help to avoid heat illness. Restriction of activity, good ventilation and movement of air by fans and air conditioning, moderate eating habits and the wearing of light colored, loose clothing can help lower the incidence of heat reactions.

Older people have an especially difficult time with the heat. They don't prespire as easily, so they don't lose body heat as readily, the nursing service says.

Older persons may gradually lose their ability to regulate their body temperature, and they may not realize they are getting too hot. Any of the above heat precautions should be heeded faithfully by elderly persons.

Prevention used during these hot weather days can help to avoid serious illness. For further information contact the Marshall County Nursing Service, Courthouse, Warren, MN 56762.

Sunday they joined a group who left on an enjoyable bus tour sponsored by the Sr. Recreation club. They toured the Yellowstone park and Tetons. They also saw the Passion Play at Spearfish, S.D. They returned home Friday evening, July 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rupprecht and Daryl and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Rupprecht brought birthday wishes and helped Karla Rupprecht celebrate her birthday at the home of her parents, the Roger Rupprechts Wednesday evening.

Thora Skomedal visited Sunday evening with her sister, Amanda Torgerson.

Gene Knutson of Fort Morgan, Colo. called on Mike Torgerson Monday forenoon.

Bernice Knutson, Myrtle Solberg and Mrs. Bernice Trochmann were among those who attended the Christian women's luncheon in Thief River Falls Tuesday, July 19.

News is scarce this week due to the fact that so many residents and 4-Hers were busy taking in the various programs and activities at the Pennington county fair last week.

Mrs. Amanda Torgerson and Mrs. Don Jorde called on Mrs. J.B. Murphy in Thief River Falls Monday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Gustafson, Tony and Susan were Monday evening visitors and coffee guests at the Jarvis Torgerson home.

Friday afternoon Mrs. David Rodahl, Mandy and Michael brought birthday wishes to Lisa Torgerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Wold were among the guests at the Irvin Schmitke home in Thief River Falls Sunday afternoon to help Mrs. Carl Aune and Irvin celebrate their birthdays and to enjoy birthday cake and coffee with them.

LEGAL NOTICE

Aug. 1, 8, 1983
Notice of Hearing

TO ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN JUDICIAL DITCH NO. 23 IN MARSHALL COUNTY, MN.:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE, that the Marshall County Board of Commissioners has filed with the County Auditor a resolution stating that it would be desirable or advantageous in the construction or maintenance of Excel Township, to make a minor alteration or change in a public drainage ditch to wit:

Judicial Ditch No. 23, that ditch system directly affecting said highway and further stating that the alteration or change would not affect the efficiency or functioning of said ditch system and portion of Judicial Ditch No. 23 proposed to be changed involves relocating and reconstructing approximately 800 feet of the ditch along the west side of Excel Township Road No. 463, located between Sections No. 3 and 4, T154N, R43W. An existing centerline culvert under said road will be salvaged and relocated as a field entrance pipe to Lot 5, Section 4, T154N, R43W. All as shown with particularity by the plans of such proposed changes which are on file with the Marshall County Auditor.

YOU WILL PLEASE TAKE NOTE FURTHER, that said resolution will be heard by the Marshall County Board in the Commissioners' room at the Courthouse in Warren, MN on the 16th day of August, 1983 at four o'clock P.M. (4:00 P.M.) at which time all persons interested may appear and be heard and present arguments for or against said resolution.

Stumpf Calls For FmHA To Make Changes

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer Thursday called on the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) to make some minor changes in its lending programs to farmers to help them weather the continuing agricultural recession in the region.

"A number of farmers and businessmen have contacted me asking what can be done to alleviate some of the economic pain in our agricultural area of the state," Stumpf said. "Although the legislature has approved a number of proposals such as funding for low-interest business and farm loans, agricultural promotion and land conservation, this is a national economic problem that can best be addressed by the federal government and the U.S. Congress."

While he said he couldn't recommend any solutions as extreme as entirely forgiving loans or providing long-term, low-interest disaster loans, Stumpf suggested that the FmHA make a number of minor changes in the loan program to aid farmers caught in the cost price squeeze, such as:

— Extending the present deferment on loan payments by another two years due to the bad weather the past four years;

— Transferring some farm operating money left over last spring to farm ownership to facilitate the completion of any outstanding disaster loans;

— Reevaluating the use of a farmers' own records on a farm-by-farm basis to determine eligibility since farmers' base income becomes so low they would have to completely lose everything to qualify for further disaster loans; and

— Reamortizing existing loans using old interest rates rather than current interest rates.

"It is my hope that our elected officials in Washington, D.C., will see fit to act on these concerns and begin working to bring economic stability and recovery back to the farms and agricultural economy in Minnesota and the entire agricultural regions," Stumpf added.

Certain Crops Join Federal Insurance List

Federal crop insurance coverage will be available for the first time to farmers of certain crops in 26 Minnesota counties, according to Senator Rudy Boschwitz. Crops eligible for insurance coverage in these Minnesota counties beginning in crop year 1984 include soybeans, sunflowers, oats, flax, peas, potatoes, sweet corn and sugar beets.

"With the high degree of risk involved in farming, this is good news for Minnesota," Boschwitz said. "From now on more farmers have the option of participating in the federal crop insurance program and thus reduce some of that risk."

Crop insurance is available to cover up to 75 per cent of a grower's yield. In the event of loss, payments are made on the basis of pre-selected crop prices.

"Crop insurance is especially important today because farmers are just working their way out of a recession. A major loss now could force many producers out of business, unless they are protected by crop insurance," Boschwitz said.

Federal Crop Insurance corporation is a wholly-owned corporation within the department of agriculture. Insurance covering most unavoidable causes of loss is currently available in over 30 crops nationwide. Insurance can be purchased through licensed crop insurance agents, located in most agricultural areas.

High Protein Flour Shipped To Chinese

A twenty-foot container of bread flour left Minnesota last week, bound for the People's Republic of China. The flour is a donation from the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council to the model demonstration bakery constructed in Beijing by the producer funded market development organization, U.S. Wheat Associates, and the various state wheat promotion groups including the Minnesota wheat council and the North Dakota wheat commission. The flour will be presented to the Chinese by Minnesota Governor Rudy Perpich when the trade mission he is leading arrives in China in November.

According to Ed Ross of Fisher, chairman of the Minnesota wheat council, the bread flour donation is being made at the request of U.S. Wheat Associates in order to demonstrate to the Chinese the advantages of using a higher protein flour in bread mixes. The 12.5 per cent protein flour is higher in protein than the flour the Chinese have normally been using, which has been more in the neighborhood of nine per cent.

The container holding the 38,000 pounds of bread flour was packed in New Prague. According to Ross, it is scheduled to be loaded on a vessel in Houston in mid-August and arrive in China in mid-October. In conjunction with the flour's arrival in China, U.S. Wheat Associates will be sending Don Dubois, a baking instructor for the American Institute of Baking in Manhattan, Kansas, to Beijing as a consultant to work with the Chinese bakery officials. Dubois will develop the formulations for the proper utilization of the high protein flour, either as a 100 per cent mix, or in blends with weaker protein flour.

The model demonstration bakery, which was constructed by the U.S. wheat producers through their check-off programs, is the first of its kind in China, and sells products through 27 outlets around the city of Beijing. Ross said a container shipment was necessary to provide a quantity large enough to give an adequate demonstration to bakery and other government officials and to accommodate the distribution of the bread to the various outlets for consumption and evaluation by the people.

"The Chinese have generally purchased the cheapest wheat available, which is usually the lower proteins," Ross stated. "By exposing the bakery officials to a higher protein flour we hope to demonstrate that it would be to their advantage to switch to purchasing higher protein wheats like those grown in this area," he said.

Soil Maps For Beltrami Co. Are Available

Interim soils maps for western Beltrami county have been received by the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district and are available for use by individuals in the district.

Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician, said the office staff can copy necessary portions of the field sheets and make information available on suitability of soils for such uses as on-site septic systems, building foundations, potential crop production, fill and other uses.

"Since we have had the maps," he said, "we have had information requests for septic suitability, an absentee landowner requesting soils and drainage information on his property, and have worked with the Red Lake watershed inspector to provide soils information on the area where ditches are being cleared and dikes created."

Rundell added that his office does not have soils information for much of the land in Marshall county since a soil survey contract has not been approved for that county. He noted that the survey could be contracted with one-third financing from each of the federal, state and county governments.

"If you feel we should try to get a contract signed before the funding is ended," Rundell said, "let your county commissioner know that Marshall county needs a complete soil survey."

Cheri Perisian Performs With Theatre Group

Cheri Perisian, Thief River Falls, has participated in four major productions this summer with the Vermilion summer repertoire theatre. Productions included "The Man Who Came to Dinner," "The Sound of Music," "Finian's Rainbow" and "The Sunshine Boys."

Cheri is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Perisian of Red Lake Falls. She is a graduate of Deer Creek high school and Lowthian fashion and design, Minneapolis. She plans to return to Northland community college in Thief River Falls in the fall to study drama and psychology.

Inter-City Gas Announces Cut In Gas Rates

Inter-City Gas Corporation announced today that the rates for natural gas service will be reduced by 12.38 cents per million british thermal units (adjusted Mcf), for gas service on or after August 1, 1983. This decrease is the result of a Canadian Border price reduction for Inter-City Minnesota pipelines, one of Inter-City's four gas suppliers.

The Canadian Border reduction resulted from the implementation of a Volume Related Incentive Pricing (VIRP) plan for exports of natural gas from Canada to the United States. VIRP went into effect on July 6, 1983 and will stay in effect until Nov. 1, 1984.

Under VIRP, licensed Canadian exporters who are able to sell gas in excess of a base level established by the Canadian national energy board will receive an incentive price of $3.40 per million British thermal units (MMBtu). Base volumes of gas exported will continue to be sold at the uniform border price which is currently $4.40 per MMBtu.

This new price for natural gas at the border is equivalent to less than $20.00 per barrel for oil landed in New York.

Inter-City is planning to implement interim rates in accordance with the rules of the Minnesota Public Utilities commission in their recently filed general rate increase application. The interim rates are scheduled to be put into effect on August 9, 1983, and will be announced at that time.

Inter-City Gas provides natural gas to approximately 20,000 customers in 44 northern Minnesota communities. Inter-City has their Minnesota headquarters in Cloquet and operates district offices in Cloquet, Chisholm, International Falls, Thief River Falls and Wadena.

Accident Kills L. Konickson Near Warroad

Larry Konickson, 22, presently of Roseau and formerly of the rural Red Lake Falls area, was killed in a one-car accident about 2:45 a.m. today on highway 11 about three miles west of Warroad.

Konickson was the driver of a car traveling west on highway 11 when it left the roadway on the right side and struck an embankment, throwing both passengers from the car. Investigating Minnesota state patrol officers said Konickson was dead on arrival at the Roseau hospital. A passenger in the vehicle, Myron James Connell III, 19, of Warroad, is listed in critical condition at the Roseau hospital.

Arts Council Meets Monday

Thief River Falls community arts council will meet at 4 p.m. on Monday in the library meeting room at Northwest regional library. Main item for discussion will be possibilities for new members of the council.

SEN. RUDY BOSCHWITZ met with the area wheat producers at the Minnesota Wheat Growers association building in Red Lake Falls Saturday to gain input about their opinion on proposed government wheat programs for the 1984 crop year. He also took a poll of farmer opinion on which alternative programs would be acceptable to them.

Arctco Manufactures First Arctic Cat

Bill Ness
Arctco President

Ole Tweet
Arctco Vice President

Marlene Johnson
Minnesota Lt. Governor

Amid the glare of television lights and prestige of visiting dignitaries including Minnesota's lieutenant governor, Arctic Cat came back to Thief River Falls on Monday.

The occasion was an official ribbon cutting ceremony arranged by Arctco, Inc., to mark the first Arctic Cat snowmobile off its production line in the former Arctic Enterprises building. Arctco, which has negotiated the use of the Arctic Cat name and exclusive production rights, is now in full production of the popular snow machines which have been absent from the market since Arctic Enterprises filed for bankruptcy about two years ago.

Among special guests at the ribbon cutting ceremony and plant tour was Marlene Johnson, Minnesota lieutenant governor, who spoke briefly at the ceremony. Also speaking were Bill Ness, president and chief executive officer of Arctco; Ole Tweet, vice president of marketing for the new company; and Mayor Bob Carlson.

Ribbon releasing the first snowmobile produced by Arctco was cut by Lowell Swenson, former chief executive officer for Arctic Enterprises, assisted by Jim Grafft of Certified Parts corporation in Janesville, WI. Grafft is the parts supplier for Arctic Cat parts and also owner of the Arctic Cat name and production rights. An estimated 300 people attended the ribbon cutting ceremony.

Also joining in the festivities as special guests of the company were Joseph Alexander, Minnesota commissioner of the department of natural resources; Mike Mulrooney, assistant to the Minnesota commissioner of economic development; Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer and Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

Following a social and get acquainted session outside the plant where a collection of older model Arctic Cat snowmobiles was on display, a tour of the manufacturing operation was conducted for the visiting officials with Chris Twomey, director of corporate administration, leading the tour. Visitors completed the tour at the end of the assembly line where the ribbon cutting ceremonies were conducted.

Ole Tweet opened the speaking program, expressing his pleasure at the attendance and the optimism of the new company, and introduced Mayor Carlson. The mayor expressed the community's enthusiasm for the return of Arctic Cat manufacture here and expressed best wishes for continued growth into the future. He then introduced Lt. Gov. Johnson, who brought greetings from the state government executive branch and called attention to the community development grant which the community had received to assist such industries as Arctco.

Arctco president Bill Ness acknowledged a number of people who had been instrumental in revitalization of the snowmobile industry in Thief River Falls. Among them were Edgar Hetteen, founder of the original Arctic Enterprises company; Lowell Swenson, long associated in Arctic Enterprises leadership; Dennis Dunham, Alaska distributor who provided a $1.2 million letter of credit for

Hearing On Old Library Plans Set For Aug. 16

Thief River Falls city council has scheduled an informal public hearing for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, August 16, to hear concept proposals for possible uses of the Carnegie Library building, located on the corner of First Street and Main Avenue.

Council has heard one proposal from Gerald Mundt Architects, Golden Valley, which is considering a plan to remodel and add on to the library for use as an office building with a possible bar and delicatessen in the lower level. That proposal included a suggestion that the library should be sold for approximately $1,000, on the grounds that the improvements and private ownership would result in additional income for the city from tax revenues.

Any individual or firm that is interested in developing the Carnegie Library building for commercial use should submit a concept proposal at this meeting. Citizens may also present their personal views on suggested uses for the building.

Orientation Scheduled For Ninth Graders

Grade nine orientation to Lincoln high school will be held August 16, 17, 18 and 19. Ninth graders and their parents are requested to attend one of these sessions, according to Whitey Olson, Lincoln high school guidance director.

The student's schedule for 1983-84 will be reviewed as well as the student's cumulative folder. Information on opening day procedures will be presented and a tour of Lincoln and the district service center will take place.

Please contact the Lincoln guidance office and arrange for an appointment. The telephone number is 681-2700, extension 247.

Band Concert At Newfolden

Newfolden community band under the direction of Sheila Nelson will be presented in concert Monday at 8 p.m. at the senior citizens shelter at Newfolden. Lunch will be served by the senior citizen group. Public attendance is invited.

Sen. Boschwitz Hears Farmers

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz came to Red Lake Falls Saturday morning to hear what area wheat growers had to say about proposed farm programs. What they said was that none of the proposals went far enough in providing needed assistance and that government interference in the past had created the dire problems faced by farmers today.

Offered to the farmers as proposals from Secretary of Agriculture John Block were several options.

The first option would freeze the target price for wheat at $4.30 (the current target price); require farmers to set aside 25 per cent of their land for which they would not be paid (the 1983 program includes 15 per cent unpaid setaside); and allow them to idle another 10 to 25 per cent under a payment-in-kind (PIK) program at the rate of 80 per cent of proven yield or county average yield. Under this year's PIK program, farmers receive 95 per cent of their proven yield for idled acres.

The second option would see the target price rise to $4.45; force the farmers to set aside 30 per cent of their land to become eligible for the payment-in-kind. They could then idle 10 to 20 per cent under the PIK program at a 75 per cent compensation rate.

A third option would be a compromise between the two, Boschwitz said. It would put the target price at $4.45; require an unpaid setaside of 25 per cent and allow 10 to 25 per cent PIK participation with an 80 per cent compensation rate.

The target price is designed to insure that farmers receive prices for their products that are close to the cost of production. Farmers participating in the program would receive the difference between the target price and the average market price.

Farmers in attendance and speaking about their situation were not in full agreement as to what would be needed to provide them with the most help. Some preferred less government interference in allowing farmers to sell their wheat worldwide. Others felt that target prices were below the cost of production and in effect set ceilings on prices that could be expected in the market.

In addition to farm programs relative to wheat production, farmers expressed comments on need for barley programs and government-backed loan programs. It was also pointed out that reduced value in farm

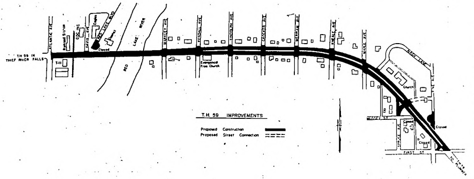
Meeting Set Aug. 11 For Third St. Improvements



Officials from the Minnesota department of transportation and the Thief River Falls planning commission will be meeting with interested persons to discuss planned improvements to highway 59 between Atlantic avenue and First street at a meeting scheduled for 7:30 on August 11 at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. The public is encouraged to attend this meeting.

According to Mn-DOT preliminary design engineer Steve Baker, a preliminary layout has been prepared and the meeting will provide the public with an opportunity to view the proposal and discuss concerns with department and city officials.

Baker said that highway 59 in the project area would be completely reconstructed but that the plan now under consideration is not too much different than the current design. In the divided roadway area, the new roadways would take up about two more feet on each side. Four lanes of traffic would be carried from the end of the divided roadway to Atlantic avenue. Sidewalks would be extended to First street.

Changes are being considered for intersections at Davis avenue, Red Lake boulevard, Spruce avenue, Mussey street and Pine avenue to alleviate problems in traffic patterns and to improve the safety situation.

Improvements to the bridge over the Red Lake river will be tied to this project. This work would include the replacement and widening of the bridge deck to accommodate the four traffic lanes that are proposed for highway 59, according to Baker.

In addition to the planned highway work, the failing storm sewer system under Third street will be replaced while these roadway improvements are taking place. The cost of the new system will be shared between the city and the department of transportation.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Kjensrud-Christianson Marriage Vows Spoken

Cynthia Marie Kjensrud and Dean Wallace Christianson exchanged marriage vows at 4:00 p.m., on June 18, at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kjensrud of this city and Mr. and Mrs. Arne Christianson of Edinburg, N.D.

Rev. Berton Hushagen and Rev. Louis Hermansen officiated at the ceremony. Organist was Dorothy Larson. She also accompanied Karen Kjensrud as she sang "Through the Eyes of Love," and "The Wedding Song;" and Duane Jonasson when he sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Lilac bows graced the bouquets of white gladioli in the chancel and marked the pews reserved for members of the family and special guests.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white organza and satin. Venice lace trimmed the bodice, outlined the Queen Anne neckline and formed the deep cuffs on her full sleeves, appliqued with lace. Rows of matching lace trimmed her satin skirt which flowed into a cathedral length train. Her headpiece was a derby hat of illusion net and Venice lace. She carried a cascade of roses, daisies and stephanotis in yellow, white and lilac, accented with white ribbon streamers.

Attending the bride were Pam Murphy, as maid of honor; Kathy Murphy, Linda Mattson, Kim Woodward, Jackie Christianson and Tami Christianson. Their floor-length gowns of lilac chiffon over taffeta, were styled with sweetheart necklines and full lantern sleeves. In their hair, they wore combs, with flowers matching their lilac, yellow and white bouquets.

Flower girl was Amy Steen. She wore a cap sleeve, white chiffon floor-length gown with ruffles at the neckline and hemline. A lilac ribbon encircled her waistline. She carried a basket of lilac, yellow and white flowers, matching the mini flowers on her headband.

The rings were carried by Ryan Rude, who like the attendants wore a black vest, trousers and dinner jacket with a white wing collar shirt and a black bow tie.

The groom was attended by Randy Steen, as best man, Jeff Gemmill, Todd Laxdal, Dennis Novacek, Stuart Meyer and Art Woodward. Ushers were Jim Kjensrud, Kim Murphy, Terry Steen and Robin Pederson.

Special guests were the grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Axel Steen and Thelmer Christianson.

A reception followed in the church parlors. The wedding dance was held at Lon's. Host and hostess were Ronnie and Ruth Steen. Judy Kjensrud and Esther Flaten were at the coffee service, Lora Dukelow and Harriet Fingarson cut the cake, Sharon Indergaard and Mary Laxdal served the punch and Sandee Rude presented at the guest book. In charge of the gifts were Brenda Dahl and Joni Fingarson. Waitresses were Connie Moe, Heidi Kjensrud, Lisa Otto and Barbara Nelson.

Following a wedding trip to Vail, Colo., the couple is at home at Rapid City, S.D. The bride is a graduate of the University of North Dakota and is employed as a staff accountant for McGladrey Hendrickson and company in Rapid City. The groom, a graduate of Aakers Business college, is a sales representative for Combined Insurance company of America. Photo, LeMar photography, Crookston.

$1,000 Lost To Thieves Friday At Goodridge

Approximately $1,000 in merchandise and change was stolen from the Hartz store and cafe in Goodridge early Friday morning, according to manager Gerald Grabowska.

Entry was apparently gained by breaking the latch on the back door of the building. The burglary was discovered by Grabowska's wife Helen when she opened the store that morning. Damaged was limited to the lock and latch on the door. Bills had been removed from the till the night before, but the thieves got away with approximately $70 in change. The largest portion of the loss was in cigarettes and other merchandise.

Pennington county sheriff's office is investigating the incident.

Arctco Builds First Machine Here Monday

1983-84 production which assisted in securing start-up financing; and local bankers who provided interim financing until the long-term arrangements could be completed.

Following the tour and ribbon cutting ceremony, a company-sponsored picnic was held at L. B. Hartz park with approximately 300 in attendance. Evident throughout the crowd were imprinted caps proudly proclaiming that "The Cat Is Back."

Arctic Cat History

Edgar Hetteen founded Polar Manufacturing company in Thief River Falls in 1961 and in 1962 changed the name to Arctic Enterprises. The first production model in 1961 featured side-by-side seating for two, an optional cab and electric start for six, eight, 12 or 16 horsepower engines. Production also started on the Model 100 which featured a front-mounted engine.

The company operated in the former Barzen seed company building which is presently the main office area for the School District 564 service center. Design and blueprint type drawings were often done directly on the concrete floor and all parts made to scale from the floor drawings. An arrangement of bins and crates protected the floor drawings.

Lowell Swenson purchased the company from Hetteen in 1965 and engineers and designers set out to change the capabilities, looks and image of the Arctic Cat snowmobile. Fiberglass hoods replaced the steel cowling of the early models and the sleds became more streamlined.

It was 1967 when the first black Panther model was introduced, and the industry turned the corner toward wide acceptance of the machines as winter sport vehicles. The Panther had an all new lightweight aluminum chassis, exclusive "flip top" hood, revolutionary fiberglass strand rubber track and the Arctic-designed slide rail suspension which is still used in today's most modern snowmobiles.

The company grew rapidly to a peak employment of about 1,700 people and during its 20-year lifespan produced 780,000 snowmobiles. Downturn in the national economy and two consecutive years of low snowfall created economic troubles the company could not withstand and lenders refused to extend credit for continued operations. The company filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 11 provisions and eventually the snowmobile operation was separated from other operations and sold.

Manufacturing rights were purchased by Grafft along with the parts inventory which he continued to operate. A group of prior Arctic Cat employees and investors negotiated with him for the exclusive manufacturing rights and Arctco, Inc., was formed.

Arctco contacted existing Arctic Cat dealers and began taking orders for 1984 model Arctic Cat snowmobiles and the entire 1984 product line production is based on dealer orders supported by letters of credit. Approximately 3,000 snowmobiles are to be produced this year. Company officials are looking to double that total, add more models and operate under the same advance order situation for the 1985 model year.

Arctco is shipping dealer direct in the continental United States south of Canada while Canadian and Alaskan dealers will receive their snowmobiles from Arctco, Canada, Ltd. in Winnipeg and Arctic Recreational Products in Anchorage.

Ole Tweet says he believes the use of the old Arctic Enterprises manufacturing facility is ideal. "We have prior Arctic employees returning to produce snowmobiles on the quality equipment they have experience in using," he said. "The automated assembly line and paint system, along with welding, tooling and fiberglass operations, will insure the continuation of superior Arctic Cat quality snowmobiles."

Arctco's office staff of about 20 people is being supplemented by about 70 employees involved in the manufacturing process. Office staff includes experienced Arctic employees in areas of engineering design and testing, quality assurance, manufacturing engineering and other areas.

Revitalization of the Arctic Cat snowmobile has increased the potential for Northern Outerwear, a clothing manufacturing company started here in the summer of 1982 to produce the Arcticwear brand of winter clothing. The company moved into the building formerly occupied by the city street and parks and recreation department along highway 59 south and employs about 25 people in office and production areas.

"We at Arctco feel a common bond with the early Arctic Cat company of the 1960's," Tweet said. "We're a small company with a dedicated staff who has taken on the task of bringing back the Cat. The Cat does have nine lives and always lands on its feet. With a little bit of that 'old black magic' you're going to see a lot more of us in the future. Our slogan says it all: 'Good Times Are Coming on the Cat!' " land has reduced borrowing capability of farmers that has created an additional financial squeeze.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR Marlene Johnson found this vintage model Arctic Cat snowmobile fascinating during her visit to Thief River Falls for the observance of the first Arctic Cat being produced by Arctco, Inc. A ribbon cutting ceremony for the first machine off the assembly line was held Monday afternoon with about 300 people in attendance. Joining Lt. Gov. Johnson on this machine is Joe Alexander, commissioner of the Minnesota department of natural resources. Standing (left to right) are Mike Mulrooney, assistant to the commissioner of economic development; Rep. Wally Sparby, Thief River Falls; and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer. Snowmobiles from this early model to the last produced by Arctic Enterprises were on display outside the Arctco plant Monday.

Sen. Boschwitz Hears Farmers On Wheat Plan

Noting that politics played a definite role in what programs farmers could expect to get from Congress and the department of agriculture, Sen. Boschwitz pointed to the $50,000 limit which had been placed on the 1983 deficiency payments. While it is practical to include the larger farmers in programs to increase their overall effectiveness, he said, it is not popular politically to permit large farmers to share proportionally in such programs because of the large payments involved. There appeared to be no opposition at the meeting to increasing the $50,000 maximum.

Plummer Gets $11,734 Grant To Landscape

Plummer has been approved for a grant of $11,734 for a landscaping project under the federal emergency jobs act, according to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

"Our community was fortunate to be selected along with 31 other communities across the state for this funding," Stumpf said, "which will be used in communities that are experiencing over 11 per cent unemployment rates at the time."

Sen. Stumpf, a member of the local and urban government committee in the Minnesota Senate, explained that the grant is part of a $775,000 influx of landscaping funding from this federal government act.

"More than 200 jobs will be created in Minnesota as a result of these projects," Stumpf said, noting that several jobs should be created in the city of Plummer as well.

TRAIL . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Wonders of Illinois and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Flateland and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Flateland Jr. of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Ordean Flateland of Badger were Sunday dinner guests at the Howard Flateland home.

Mrs. Lester Enje and Mrs. Albert Aaknes distributed cheese and dry milk at the V.F.W. hall in Trail on Monday from 1 to 2 p.m.

Mrs. Perry Lolland and Steve left for Jamestown, N.D. to spend a week with her daughter, Edie Higdam and family and with other relatives and friends.

Services Held For Lawrence Nicholson, 66

Funeral services for Lawrence Nicholson, 66, of this city were held Saturday at 11:00 a.m., at the United Methodist church. Nicholson died Wednesday, July 27, at Northwestern hospital following a lingering illness.

Rev. Melvyn Budke officiated at the service. Special music included a solo by Elaine Idso. Jeannie Harger served as organist. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery, with military honors provided by members of the American Legion. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Hartz employees and members of the United Methodist church.

Active pallbearers were Dennis Wegge, Willard Fleegal, Mel Burrell, Chris Saustad, Ed DeLap and Calvin Ripley.

Lawrence Francis Nicholson, a son of the late Ira and Ruth Loft Nicholson, was born Aug. 23, 1916 at Gatzke. In 1919, he moved with his parents to Thief River Falls. He attended school here, graduating from Lincoln high school with the class of 1935. While in high school, he participated in sports and was a member of the 1932 State Championship Baseball team.

He was united in marriage to Evelyn (Peggy) Hegland of Crookston on Sept. 3, 1938. They have since made their home here.

Nicholson was employed by L. B. Hartz Wholesale as a truck driver from 1936 until 1980, when he retired because of ill health. During that time, he served in the Armed Forces in 1945.

He was a member of the United Methodist church and served as head usher there for nine years. He was also a member of the American Legion and the Elks.

He is survived by his wife, two sons: Lynn Nicholson, San Dimas, Calif.; and Donald, Thief River Falls; a daughter, Mrs. Mark (Judy) DuChamp, Thief River Falls; six grandchildren; two sisters: Mrs. Chris (Irene) Saustad and Mrs. Ed (Ila) DeLap, both of Thief River Falls; and one brother, Earl Nicholson of Tustim, Calif.

Services Set At Oklee For Sharon Jensen

Funeral services for Sharon Rae Jensen, 17, of Oklee, who died early Sunday morning in a one-car accident on Red Lake County highway 1, about 3½ miles east of Plummer, have been scheduled.

Services will be held Thursday at 2:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church, Oklee, with Rev. Charles L. Gunderson officiating. Special music will be provided by fellow members of the Zionettes, a girl's singing group. Mrs. Alice Skreland will be the organist. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will be the Zionettes.

Serving as active pallbearers will be Charlie Bishop, Randy Berberich, John Cyr, Arlan Fore, Richard Murack, Mike Swenson, Doug Swenson and Darrin Tougas.

A prayer service is scheduled for tonight (Wednesday) at 8:00 at the Peterson Funeral home, Oklee, where the body is reposing. The body will also repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

Sharon Rae Jenson was born May 9, 1966 at Bagley to Alvin and Bonnie Nelson Jensen and lived her whole life with her family at Oklee. She was baptized and confirmed there in the Lutheran church and was a "born-again Christian." She was employed by Melby's Fairway during the summers and worked there part-time during the school years. She would have been a senior at Oklee high school this fall.

She participated in numerous school activities. She was a member of the Oklee school chorus, speech group, drama, the high school musical, was director of the one-act play, was on the annual staff and newspaper, and was a member of the photo club and the Oklee high school volleyball team. She also was a member of the Zion Lutheran Zionettes and was an active member of the Golden Spur saddle club while the club was in existence.

She is survived by her parents, three brothers: Alan Jensen, a student at Bemidji State college; Barry, with the U.S. Navy aboard the S.S. Garcia; and Eric, at home; five sisters: Mrs. Guy (Ludeen) Rice, Fond du Lac, Wis.; Mrs. Arlen (Joani) Marquis, Oklee; Mrs. Bruce (Connie) Kriel, Devils Lake, N.D.; Mrs. Philip (Donna) Larson, Motley; and Diane, at home; and three nieces, five nephews.

Also surviving are her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Nelson, Oklee, and several aunts and uncles.

She was preceded in death by her paternal grandparents, Art and Ollanna Jensen.

Ronald Vennes Dies August 3; Rites Pending

Ronald Vennes, 31, of Rt. 3, Thief River Falls, died this morning (Wednesday) at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Ronald Vennes are tentatively set for 3:00 p.m., Friday at Zion Lutheran church in this city.

The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will be published in the Monday edition of the Times.

Carl Forslund, Once Of TRF, Dies July 28

Carl Forslund, 82, of New Rockford, N.D., and formerly of Thief River Falls, died July 28, at the New Rockford hospital.

Funeral services for Carl Forslund were held Saturday, July 30, at the Evans-Knott chapel in New Rockford. Interment was August 1 at Greenwood cemetery at Warren.

Carl Forslund was born March 9, 1901 at Thief River Falls to Alfred and Kristine Forslund. In 1945, he moved to North Dakota where he worked as a farm laborer in the New Rockford-Sheyenne area.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ralph (Emma) Smeby of Devils Lake, N.D.

Preceding him in death were his parents, two sisters: Alice Nelson and Agnes Johnson; and two brothers: Albert and Oscar.

Rites Held In EGF For "Buz" Vandeventer

Funeral services for LeRoy "Buz" Vandeventer, 53, of this city were held today (Wednesday) at 2:00 p.m., at the Stennes Funeral home in East Grand Forks. Vandeventer, a former resident of East Grand Forks, died unexpectedly on Saturday at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls.

Rev. Robert Bergland, pastor at Our Saviour's Lutheran church, East Grand Forks, officiated at the services. Interment was in Resurrection cemetery in East Grand Forks.

LeRoy Vandeventer was born June 7, 1930 in East Grand Forks. He was married there on Feb. 4, 1950 to Greta Lenzen. Following their marriage, they moved to Olympia, Wash. They returned to East Grand Forks in 1976. In 1980, they came to Thief River Falls where he was employed by the T.P. property management company as manager of the Riverside Terrace apartments.

Vandeventer was a veteran, serving in the U.S. Army from 1946 until 1948.

Surviving are his wife, two daughters: Karen Ward, Thief River Falls, and Donna Smith, Grand Forks, N.D.; a son, Robert Vandeventer, Gainsville, Fla.; six grandchildren, four sisters: Sue Tweten, East Grand Forks; Mrs. Gunder (Zora) Sorenson and Mrs. Gunder (Louella) Krostue, both of Fisher; and Mrs. John (Joyce) Bellamy, Croswell, Ore., and two brothers: Rollan, Boardman, Ore., and Wilfred, Nevis.

Mrs. Erdmann Schultz Rites Held At RLF

Funeral services for Mrs. Erdmann (Elsie) Schultz, 86, of rural Red Lake Falls, were held today (Wednesday) at 10:30 a.m., at St. John's Lutheran church in that city. Mrs. Scultz died Sunday at St. John's hospital, following a brief illness.

Rev. Roger E. Raebel officiated at the services. Bruce Arvidson was the soloist and Jean Baril, the organist. Interment was in the Immanuel Lutheran cemetery in Wylie township of Red Lake county. The Petterson Funeral home, Red Lake Falls, was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were grandsons: Gary and Arlan Weiss, Bruce and Mark Arvidson, Lyndon Schultz and Lowell Schuhmacher.

Mrs. Schultz, the former Elsie Edith Wolff, was born April 16, 1897 in Worth county, Iowa to August and Ottilie Knaack Wolff. Prior to her marriage, she lived in Worth county, Iowa and at Park Rapids.

On Nov. 30, 1922, she was married at Myrtle to Erdmann Schultz. The couple farmed northwest of Red Lake Falls for many years. Following the death of her husband on Oct. 4, 1969, Mrs. Schultz continued to live on the home farm.

She was a member of St. John's Lutheran church and had been active in its ladies aid.

She is survived by one son, Arley Schultz, rural Red Lake Falls; three daughters: Mrs. Richard (Ellen) Weiss, rural Red Lake Falls; Mrs. Roger (Mavis) Arvidson, Red Lake Falls; and Mrs. Delbert (Bernice) Schuhmacher, Glenville; 12 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by three brothers and three sisters.

A. Bertilrud Services Held At Greenbush

Arnold G. Bertilrud, 65, of Greenbush died July 27, at Cando, N.D., where he was employed as superintendent by the J.R. Spalji construction company.

Funeral services for Arnold Bertilrud were held Saturday at the Bethel Lutheran church in Greenbush with Rev. Glen Stadler officiating. Interment was in the Moe-Rose cemetery at Roseau. The Eeg Funeral home, Greenbush, was in charge of arrangements. Military honors were accorded by fellow members of the Greenbush American Legion post, 88; and the Badger VFW post 3832.

Pallbearers were Keith Kilen, Jerel Kilen, Michael Kilen, Mark Bertilrud, Jeff Olson and Tim Truscinski.

Arnold Gilmer Bertilrud was born Nov. 11, 1917 in Deer township of Roseau county to Mikkel and Anna Bertilrud. He was baptized and confirmed in the Bethlehem Lutheran church, rural Greenbush, grew up on the family farm, and was a graduate of the Greenbush high school.

In 1941, he entered the U.S. Army and served throughout World War II, stationed at the Aleutian Islands, near Alaska. He returned to Greenbush in 1945 and lived there until his death, farming and working for the Spalji company based in Cando, N.D. He also collected scrap metals.

He was married June 22, 1946 at the First Lutheran church in Middle River to Myrtle Olson.

He was a member of the Bethel Lutheran church, the Greenbush American Legion, the Badger VFW, and the Karlstad Eagles.

Surviving are his wife, two sons: Allen, Red Lake Falls, and Alvin, Greenbush; four grandchildren, three brothers: Edwin and Maurice, both of Greenbush, and Rudolph Anburn, Wash.; and six sisters: Helen Kilen, Greenbush; Clara Boe, Olga Thompsen and Gerda Bertilrud, all of Duluth; Mabel Erickson, Badger; and Lillian Lennon, Hackensack, N.J.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peras

Q. Pastor Don, "Do you believe that it was necessary for Jesus to be born of a Virgin. If so, why?

A. The doctrine of the virgin birth has been believed by the church from its very beginning.

The miracle of the Virgin birth of Jesus Christ has been a problem to some people because it was a miracle. Scripture does not treat this event as ordinary occurrence, but rather as a supernatural act of God.

There are several reasons why the virgin birth was necessary. One of the reasons was that Jesus Christ must have sinless blood flowing in His veins. Sinful heredity is transmitted through the blood and not through the flesh. God had to find a way whereby Jesus could be perfectly human according to the flesh and not have the blood of sinful humanity. That problem was solved by the virgin birth.

It is now definitely known that the blood which flows in an unborn babe's arteries and veins is not derived from the mother but is produced within the body of the fetus itself only after the introduction of the male sperm.

Joseph could not have been the father of our Lord Jesus Christ, or Christ would have had sinful blood. Christ's blood came from God by the process of a miracle through the agent of the Holy Spirit.

Luke 1:35 L.B. says to the virgin Mary, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon you, and the power of God shall overshadow you; so the baby born to you will be utterly holy-the Son of God.

Several hundred years before the birth of Christ, the prophet Isaiah said in Is. 7:14, "Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

It is very important that the blood of Jesus Christ be pure and holy so that we might have our sins forgiven by the blood of Christ.

Hebrews 9:22 teaches "That without the shedding of Christ's blood, there can be no forgiveness of sin."

Hebrews 9:14 says "How much more shall the blood of Christ, who through the eternal spirit offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God." The virgin birth of Christ is not only a historical fact, but it was also a necessary historical fact when one considers all the data.

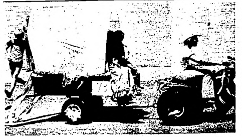
SACK RACES sponsored by the Jaycee Women as part of Summerfest activities at Bill LaFave Park on Sunday resulted in some wild action, with kids in the air, on the ground and at various stages in between. For those who got a little too close to the ground, the sandy beach made a soft landing spot and the indignities were eased with prizes for everyone.



CHILDREN'S CATEGORY winner in the Jaycee Summerfest parade float competition was this little covered wagon featuring Little Miss and Mr. Best Western, Jocelyn Helgeland and Christopher Warne.

BEST FLOAT in the Jaycee sponsored Summerfest parade on Saturday, as determined by the judges, was this model of the city of St. Hilaire as it looked 100 years ago. The float was entered by the St. Hilaire centennial committee.

MN Produces 114.9 Million Gallons Milk

Minnesota's June milk production estimated at 114.9 million gallons was the highest for that month in 17 years and three per cent higher than a year ago, but the federal assessment for the third month erased the monetary gain for this fourth leading dairy state's farmers, according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

June assessment siphoned more than $4.9 million out of the milk checks of Minnesota dairy farmers. That boosted the federal take for the first two and one half months of the 50 cents per hundredweight surplus milk assessment to $12.5 million for Minnesota.

Dairy farmers have been given an administrative reprieve from the imposition of an additional 50 cents federal assessment, from August 1 to September 1, but only as a Reagan administration strategy to prompt Congressional action on demanded sharper cuts in milk price supports and a freeze on farm crop price supports.

Commissioner Nichols said the Minnesota and national dairy estimates for the first six months of 1983 continue to show that farmers have not yet seen the federal incentives necessary to reduce production and increase consumption. State and national milk production through June is two per cent higher than in 1982. Pending federal proposals provide assessments of up to $1.65 per hundredweight, even against dairy farmers who do cut back herds and milk production to pre 1980-81 levels.

Dairy farming historically has been the single leading source of gross farm income in Minnesota, exceeding $2 billion annually for the past four years. This emphasizes the importance of pending federal government decisions that can make or break that vital industry, Commissioner Nichols said.

Congressman Urges Block To Grant Aid

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has urged that emergency steps be taken by the Farmers Home administration to assist disaster-stricken farmers in northwestern Minnesota.

"I have called on Agriculture Secretary John Block to immediately release $600 million in economic emergency guaranteed loan funds," Stangeland said.

This program will provide low-interest loans to farmers who could otherwise be forced out of business due to depressed prices. The economic emergency (EE) loan program was approved by Congress in the fiscal year 1983 agricultural appropriations act, but has never been implemented by the administration due to budgetary considerations.

"National agricultural policy should be made by the department of agriculture, not the office of management and budget," Stangeland said. "I have urged Secretary Block to implement the EE program on an emergency basis so that these congressionally-approved loan funds are immediately made available to our hard-pressed farmers."

Congressman Stangeland also announced that he has urged state FmHA director Russ Bjorhus to open an additional county office in northwestern Minnesota.

"The severe weather conditions that have damaged crops in Norman, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Marshall and Clay counties will most certainly lead to disaster declarations for many of the farmers in this region," stated Stangeland. "It is Farmers Home's job to see that these farmers are served in a timely manner. An additional FmHA office in this area would help speed up the loan processing for those farmers who are in dire need of emergency assistance."

Stangeland added that many farmers in this region are facing their fourth year in a row of weather-induced crop disaster.

Stangeland's efforts follow an earlier personal appeal to USDA Secretary John Block to act quickly on the counties' disaster declaration requests once they have been received from the governor's office.

Discount Given To Bus Riders At State Fair

Minnesota state fair will offer a 50-cent discount on outside gate admission to adults who ride a Metropolitan transit commission (MTC) bus to the 1983 exposition, August 25 through Labor Day, September 5.

Discount will be offered to fairgoers who ride an MTC bus to the state fair on one of the three routes servicing the state fairgrounds (routes four and five in St. Paul and route 60 from Minneapolis). Buses on the routes run about every 10 minutes.

Fair visitors using MTC fairgrounds service must ask the bus driver for a discount coupon when boarding the bus. Coupons will allow the purchase of a regular $3.25 adult admission to the state fair for $2.75 and will be redeemable at the bus and taxi gate on Como avenue near the Coliseum or at the Como-Snelling pedestrian gate. Discount will not apply to fair books of 12 gate tickets nor to satellite bus service from Rosedale shopping center.

Hire Tobias To Aid Chemical Dependency

Pennington county social services board recently completed contract negotiations with the Glenmore foundation at Crookston for the services of a community/chemical dependency counselor, according to Gary Erickson, Pennington county social services director.

Jack Tobias, a former principal at Plummer high school, is an employee at Glenmore. Under provisions of his contract, Tobias will work in Pennington county three days a week providing counseling services to the chemically dependent. The balance of his time will be spent serving Red Lake county in a similar capacity. His work will be directed by the county social services staff in the two counties.

Tobias has been employed as an aftercare coordinator at Glenmore and his duties in Pennington and Red Lake counties begin August 1. His duties will include individual and family assessment, presentence investigations for the court and direct counseling services to individuals and troubled families.

The contract also calls for him to make educational presentations to churches, schools and service clubs within the community. He is available for consultation and technical assistance services to employers, professionals and other agencies within the county. Individuals returning to the community from treatment programs at Glenmore and Fergus Falls state hospital will be assisted through Tobias' aftercare services.

Persons interested in obtaining services under this new program or in need of additional information should call 681-2880 or toll free 1-800-8675582.

MN Vietnam Veterans Plan Sept. Meeting

Vietnam veterans throughout Minnesota will gather this fall at the Curtis hotel in Minneapolis for their first statewide reunion.

Coordinated by the Vietnam Veterans leadership program (VVLP), the event will occur on Saturday and Sunday, September 24 and 25. Planned activities include unit reunions, a morning vigil to honor those who died in Vietnam, seminars to inform veterans about services and benefits still available.

"Our purpose is to gather together Minnesota Vietnam veterans to honor the dead, to share and renew old comradeships, and possibly to use the occasion to help put our experiences and losses in perspective," said Jim Main, Minnesota VVLP chairman.

Event is open to all Minnesota veterans and their families. Steve Markley, VVLP coordinator, said, "Basically, we just want to reach out to all Vietnam veterans and say, hey — you've still got buddies. Here we are — come and join us."

Persons interested in attending or getting more information may contact Steve Markley at 375-0076.

Audits Reveal Families Seek Free Lunch

Almost one-fifth of the sampled households in a U.S. department of agriculture pilot study received excess school meal benefits for their children, according to a USDA report released recently.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Mary C. Jarratt said misreporting household income by an average of $88 accounted for 93 per cent of excess benefits awarded.

Study is the second report from the first year of the school lunch income verification pilot project, a two-year study mandated by Congress in the omnibus budget reconciliation act of 1981.

The fundings are based on in-home audits of 741 applicants for school meal benefits in 54 schools in nine school districts across the country during school year 1981-82. While this particular study was not nationally representative, the results held true for every school district examined. Jarratt said two other USDA studies, both nationally representative, show even greater evidence of understated income on meal applications.

"These findings of underreported income in order to qualify for higher benefits make a compelling case for the verification of reported income on a selected portion of the meal applications," Jarratt said.

"The study clearly shows the need for the mandatory minimum income verification requirement which is in effect for this fall," she added.

Starting in the 1983-84 school year, schools will be required to verify the income information on a small sample of applications submitted for free and reduced-price meals.

"The study gives schools an error-prone profile to use in this effort — a quick and effective screening device for choosing a sample likely to contain fraudulent applications," Jarratt said.

School officials can use the profile to identify high-risk applicants by looking at information routinely submitted on the application. Applications selected by the profile are four times as likely to contain errors which would affect eligibility status as those selected randomly, the study showed.

Initial report on the school lunch income verification pilot project was issued in February. It showed that the USDA meal application form used since 1981, a form which requires social security numbers of adult household members, was successful in deterring some income misreporting.

Second phase of the income verification test ran during the 1982-83 school year in more than 120 school districts and tested a range of income documentation and verification techniques used in 60 sites. Results of the second phase now are being evaluated and will be reported to Congress in the fall of 1983.

National school lunch program is the largest of the federal school nutrition programs, serving more than 23 million children daily during the school year. About 10 million children receive free lunches and about 1.5 million get reduced-price lunches. Eligibility for free or reduced-price meals is based on Congressionally-mandated income guidelines.

The Presidential Commission on Drunk Driving has recommended in its interim report that states immediately adopt 21 years of age as the minimum legal drinking age for all alcoholic beverages.

Bonanzaville Church Service Plan Noted

Three worship services have been scheduled to be held at the Cass county historical society's annual Pioneer Days review Sunday morning, August 21. All services are held at St. John's church, Bonanzaville, on the West Fargo fairgrounds.

For the third time an old Catholic Latin mass will be celebrated at 8 a.m. Father Robert Laliderte, from Cardinal Muench seminary, Fargo will officiate. Arrangements are being made for servers and ushers. Bonanzaville gates will open at 7:30 a.m.

At the German service, scheduled for 10 a.m., Darrold Engel of Fargo will officiate and speak.

At the Norwegian service scheduled for 11:30 a.m., Rev. Lars M. Larsen of Moorhead will officiate. Trygve Berger of Moorhead will be the Klokker. Organist is Mrs. Howard Qualley, rural Fargo, who had been organist in the St. John's church when it was in Horace.

The Fargo Sons of Norway "Kringer Kor" will sing under the direction of W.D. Syverson. He will also sing a solo. Accompanist for these special numbers will be Mrs. Elizabeth Soberg.

Pioneer Days have been scheduled for August 20 and 21 with the grounds being open to the public from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. Over 90 Pioneer Day activities will be demonstrated and displayed at Bonanzaville, with several hundred volunteer workers participating. A parade will be held each day at 2 p.m.

REPORT

From The

Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

Top executives of 63 Minnesota companies comprise the membership of the Minnesota Business Partnership. Organized by leaders in the business community in 1977, its goal is to establish better cooperation between government and the private sector to pass laws which will enhance the Minnesota business climate.

At its annual meeting in June, the Partnership's Chairman, Kenneth Dayton, said that in the legislative session just ended "government and labor and business have turned an historic corner" in building the kind of cooperation that will lead to a healthier economy.

The Partnership, along with other business and labor organizations and individuals, worked very closely with the Legislature this year in drafting legislation they believe will help get Minnesota on the move again. Dayton said, "I want to salute Governor Perpich and his staff, our legislative leaders and indeed the entire Legislature."

His words are indeed welcome as a counter to all of the negative publicity and some statistically twisted studies purporting to show that Minnesota has a bad business climate.

A study done by researchers at the College of St. Thomas is a prime example of the damage that can be done by a few distorted figures. The College of St. Thomas actually disassociated itself from the study, but only after it was plastered across front pages statewide and aired at least two times on a major TV network. The damage was already done and very few people are aware of the College's rejection of the report.

The study reported that 407 manufacturing companies either left Minnesota or expanded in other states between 1967 and 1982. What the study failed to point out is that all states lose some businesses and gain others each year. Even the list of companies the study names as having moved has been questioned.

Actual figures from the United States Bureau of Census show that between 1980 and 1981 alone, the number of businesses established in Minnesota increased by 108. During that same period North Dakota gained only 10 and South Dakota lost one.

I don't want to appear to be critical of the news media, but often it seems that the negative news about the business climate captures their attention more than anything that is positive. The recent announcement that Jeno's would be moving out of the Duluth area came at about the same time as Prudential announced it would be expanding its operations in Minnesota and bringing in maybe three or four times as many jobs as the loss expected by the Jeno move. I received several comments about the Jeno move but heard very little positive reaction to the Prudential announcement.

Now don't get me wrong. Everything about our business climate isn't good. But it certainly isn't all bad either. We have definitely turned the corner and are beginning to address some of the more serious problems. It is true that businesses in border areas are more severely impacted by disparities between Minnesota and neighboring states, but overall I believe Minnesota is faring quite well.

What we don't need now is a lot of negative rhetoric about our business climate. That in itself is self-defeating. Who wants to move a business into an area where everyone is saying, "Boy, do we have a lousy business climate here"?

The best thing we can do as individuals or organizations is to promote Minnesota as a good place to live and do business, while at the same time remembering we still have improvements to make.

We can point with pride to our Minnesota workforce, which has the reputation of being well-trained, productive, and efficient. The spokesman for the Prudential Company said those were some of the reasons Minnesota was picked for expansion.

Taking everything into consideration, I feel quite optimistic about our future as a good place to do business. But I believe we must continue to encourage cooperative planning between business, labor and government if we hope to create more jobs and stimulate business growth in Minnesota.

"HEY! WAIT A MINUTE... We're going the wrong way!" The Jaycee Women's entry had a few minor navigational problems during the milk carton boat race held on the Red Lake River during Summerfest activities on Sunday. Considering the fact that they had never paddled the craft before, the crew (Margaret Peterson and Lynn Pederson) still did an admirable job, finishing well ahead of fourth place entry Phil Scott of radio station KKAQ. First and second place were both taken by more experienced draws, with the Water Warriors, Shawn Heinze and Jared Garner, defeating last year's winner, the Northern State Bank Viking ship, piloted by Scott Fowler and Lon Aune. A more conventional craft stood by, ready to rescue any participants who capsized.

WASTING NO TIME, Beverly Rustad, who was crowned Miss Thief River Falls on Saturday night, began her duties by presiding over Summerfest activities at Bill LaFave Park on Sunday. She proved that she was more than just another pretty face when she pitched right in on some of the less glamorous jobs as well, such as helping Jaycee Women Lynn Pederson and Pat Mannie husk corn in preparation for the barbecue and corn feed.

FRUSTRATED drivers who get temporarily caught behind this specially equipped pickup as it cruises city streets and alleys between now and Tuesday are asked not to take it out on driver John P. Kennedy. He's only doing his job. An employee of Heath Consultants Inc., Omaha, NB branch, Kennedy has been hired to survey 46.9 miles of natural gas mains in the city for Inter-City Gas. While driving at approximately two miles per hour, sophisticated electronic equipment installed in the truck will be monitoring the air to detect leaks in the underground mains. Paul Lane, supervisor of the Inter-City Gas office here, reported that a recent survey of the service lines was completed, with no leaks detected.

Grand Forks Potato Field Day Aug. 18

Red River Valley potato growers association will sponsor their annual field day on Thursday, August 18 at the Red River Valley potato research farm, located three miles south of Grand Forks.

Potato test plots located at the research farm will be discussed by leading potato research personnel from the University of Minnesota, North Dakota state university, and the Red River Valley potato research laboratory.

Commercial exhibits will open at 9 a.m. Noon lunch will be followed at 1 p.m. by the plot tours.

New varietal research, hail simulation studies, various chemical control test plots and new storage and handling techniques are among the many items to be discussed at this one day event.

Aging Council Meets Aug. 14

Pennington county council on aging will hold a regular meeting on Monday, August 15 at 1:30 p.m. in the meeting room of the city auditorium. All seniors are encouraged to attend.

Pat Rood, director of aging programs of Northwest development program will conduct a presentation on the older American act funds. Coffee will be served.

Writers May Submit Story Manuscripts

Story manuscripts may be submitted for evaluation by three nationally known children's authors prior to the fourth annual writers conference in children's literature October 13 and 14 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

The conference will feature authors Stella Pevsner, Judy Delton and Jane Resh Thomas, as well as children's book editor Susan Pearson of Minneapolis.

Each manuscript of 1,000 words or less must be typed, double-spaced and mailed by October 1 to Faythe Thureen, RR 2, East Grand Forks, Minn. 56721.

The conference will highlight workshops about writing the junior novel and magazine articles and reviewing children's books. Other activities include panel discussions, public lectures, a book sale and autograph party.

For more information, contact the conference director, Emily Johnson, UND department of English, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202, or phone 777-3321.

Pioneer Engelstads Are Honored On Anniversary

(Editor's Note: This is the next to last segment of the historical review of Peder and Mathilde Engelstad, pioneer couple in the Thief River Falls area. The concluding segment will be published in the next issue of the Times and includes the deaths of these two pioneers less than two years apart.)

by Melvin Engelstad

50th Wedding Anniversary Observed at the Farm Home on August 12, 1931

As described in the Thief River Falls Times on the following day, it was an occasion "when 100 businessmen from Thief River Falls and their wives, with 200 relatives and friends from the surrounding countryside, gathered to do honor to Mr. and Mrs. Peder Engelstad, pioneer farming couple." The celebration took the form of a supper and program arranged by the Commerical Club.

W.E. Dahlquist, president of the club, introduced H.O. Chommie, who gave the principal address of the evening, paying tribute to the pioneering spirit that inspired Mr. and Mrs. Engelstad and led to their achievements in promoting agriculture in this section of the state.

"We are honoring," he said, "not only Mr. and Mrs. Engelstad but the class that they represent. This pioneer couple have been both thinkers and doers — real leaders of agriculture." Rasmus Oen, pioneer friend and neighbor, spoke briefly during the ceremonies that were interspersed with musical selections by the Thief River Falls city band and with vocal numbers by a quartet made up of E.M. Bennes, Robert J. Lund, B. Dan. Bjorkman and Kern Olson.

A group of 12 grandchildren, under the direction of Ted Hulbert, presented their tribute to Peder and Mathilde in song. The verses had been written by Mr. Hulbert for the occasion and were sung to the tune of "When It's Springtime in the Rockies."

At the conclusion of the program, Peder and Mathilde were presented with a purse of gold as a token of friendship and respect, and both responded with brief words of appreciation. The write-up in the Thief River Falls Times included a summary crediting Peder with leadership in activities such as the raising of alfalfa, purebred sires, modern buildings, silos, cream separator and more.

Interviewed at the time, Peder made the following commentary: "While I wouldn't trade modern conditions for the pioneer days and although we endured many hardships in the early days, we seemed to have more fun at that time. The whole neighborhood was like one big family, and there was constant visiting back and forth. I can remember when Mrs. Engelstad put two of our children in a wheelbarrow and trundled them to the home of one of our neighbors, a mile away. Now, we start out in an automobile and we are no longer limited to our own neighborhood."

"The farmers of today are overloaded with taxes and interest, but in cases where a man is not overburdened with debts, I feel he can make as good a living on the farm as anywhere else, especially when prices of farm products begin to improve from their present low point. I am, and always have been, optimistic over the future of this section. We are blessed with good soil and good markets and are bound to make steady progress over a period of years."

In the editorial column of the same issue, we find the following greeting from the Thief River Falls Times:

"To Mr. and Mrs. Peder Engelstad, who yesterday celebrated their 50th anniversary of their wedding, congratulations. When the history of this territory is written their names will be prominent among the group of pioneers who built the country. May their remaining years bring them that happiness and satisfaction which lives of useful service deserve."

Organization of Pennington Association

Peder was instrumental in organizing the Pennington Association in 1932, which operated as a branch of the Federal Land Bank with Peder as secretary-treasurer for three years until consolidation of 10 associations — two in Kittson county, six in Marshall and two in Pennington — into one district with the headquarters office at Warren. Sometime later, Red Lake and Clearwater counties also were incorporated into the same district.

Many loans were made through the Federal Land Bank system. It seemed to be free from some of the ills that had beset the Valhall National Farm Loan association, which had come into being when farm land was skyrocketing under the influence of war prices. This situation had led to oversized loans and, consequently, a top-heavy structure, while the Pennington association had been organized at a time when land values were extremely low.

Peder and Mathilde Take Part in Parade During "Pioneer Day" in 1932

Forty years had passed into history since the completion of the Great Northern railroad to Thief River Falls, and a gala celebration was planned to commemorate the event, "Pioneer Days" — a four-day festival on October 10-13, 1932. Men, young and old, agreed to let their whiskers grow during the summer, subject to a fine if they shaved. It was required that an official discharge be granted by Paul Lundgren before any of those who had agreed to raise whiskers would be permitted to shave without a fine.

Peder and Mathilde participated in the long parade driving a team of horses drawing a wagon containing reproductions of many of the items brought with them from Hillsboro, N.D., 49 years earlier. Peder's whiskers, grown for the occasion, added realism to the scene, as he sat atop his wagon-load of belongings, among which were some live chickens and a calf, in separate crates. Seated on Mathilde's lap was one of her granddaughters, three-year-old Fern, who enjoyed the lively band music and the excitement of the parade, as she played the role of her Aunt Louise on the overland trek of these pioneers in 1883.

The four days were filled with a happy atmosphere of music and dancing, with many prizes being awarded for outstanding achievement in growth of whiskers, while Peder's son, Paul, drove up and down the main streets in the center of the city, with the same surrey and team he had driven in the parade, inviting persons to take part in polka, waltz and square dancing on a hayrack that was moved from one busy corner to another.

The first use of federal government contracts to restrict the employment of child labor took place in 1918, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Middle River Jaycee Women Plan Contest

Middle River Jaycee Women are sponsoring a baby photo contest which will be conducted from August 15 to September 15 at the First National bank in Middle River. The contest is a fund-raiser for the chapter with voting being done through donations in the name of the child selected.

Children from birth to three years of age are eligible for the competition and pictures of children entered should be sent to Cindy Brandon, Box 1F, Middle River, MN, no later than August 15. Pictures may be no larger than 8x10 and will be displayed at the bank through the contest period.

Child with the most votes will receive a 12-inch tricycle and second place youngster will win a toy bear, both of which are on display at the bank.

Legion Has Impressive Record

Over the past four years under the coaching of Nick Drees, Harley Drees and Howard Dalager, the Thief River Falls American Legion baseball teams have won 110 games while losing 46 and tying two — a .702 winning percentage.

With Nick Drees designated as the head coach, Thief River Falls has had successive season records of 27-14 in 1980; 24-14-1 in 1981; 36-10 in 1982; and 23-8-1 in the recently-completed 1983 season.

Thief River Falls' summer American Legion baseball program has blossomed under their direction during the 1980's, but the coaches continue to be frustrated by the lack of post-season success at the Ninth District tournament level.

Moorhead Blues are trying for their tenth Ninth District title in the past 12 years this weekend against Breckenridge, but Thief River Falls hasn't made an appearance in the state American Legion baseball tournament since back-to-back trips in 1954 and 1955.

Until that title drought ends, Thief River Falls coaches will never be completely satisfied with the team's progress.

Class AA champion Moorhead Blues and Class A winner Breckenridge meet in a 2-out-of-3 game series this weekend to determine the Ninth District representative in the 1983 American Legion state tournament August 12-15 at Johnson Park in New Ulm. Moorhead is 33-7 for the year, which includes 20 straight wins. Monday the Blues ripped East Grand Forks 22-1 in the Class AA finals at Matson Field in Moorhead, out-hitting the Northwest League champions 20-1 in the match-up of the tournament's No. 1 and No. 2-seeded teams.

Meanwhile, Breckenridge ended Warroad's championship dreams 5-3 in the Class A finals at Battle Lake the same night, breaking a 3-3 tie in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Like the Moorhead Blues in AA, Gonvick carried a 17-game winning streak into the Class A Ninth District tournament, but unlike the Blues, the Gonvick streak was quickly ended by weekend losses to Roseau 4-2 and New York Mills 11-0. Gonvick hadn't lost since an 8-2 loss to Thief River Falls on June 22. At the Sub-District 3 tournament last week, Gonvick beat Twin Valley 12-3, Bagley 9-6 and Fertile 13-2.

Since 1972, only Breckenridge in 1973 and Detroit Lakes in 1980 other than the Moorhead Blues, have represented the Ninth District in state tournament play.

TRF Finalists Win at Birchmont

A pair of area golfers who met in the Thief River Falls Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup finals the year before, were finalists in the prestigious Birchmont International golf tournament completed Saturday at Bemidji when Jim Strandemo of Mahnomen tripped Gregg Mirault of Fosston 3-2.

"I feel sorry for Gregg because he's been the runner-up two years in a row, but this is my eighth trip to the Birchmont and the closest I ever reached before was the semifinals," Strandemo told Pat Miller of the Bemidji Pioneer at the 59th annual Birchmont came to a close.

It was Strandemo's seventh tournament title this summer to go along with a third place finish at the Minnesota state amateur held recently in Detroit Lakes. He's a former Northland community college golfer who served as a student teacher at Lincoln high school during the 1982-83 school year to complete his work toward a degree at Bemidji State University.

"Even though I lost in the finals, I'm not disappointed," Mirault told Miller. "My goal was to get into the finals and I attained that. I never gave up. I kept plugging away. As it turned out, I just ran out of holes and lost to a good friend."

At this time a year ago, Strandemo beat Mirault for the Pepsi-Cola Challenge Cup title on the Thief River Country Club, but this year's scheduling conflict found the two golfers in Bemidji instead of Thief River Falls.

Miscellaneous

+ Bemidji American Legion baseball team beat Park Rapids 4-2 and stopped Wadena 5-1 for a sub-district title last week at Sebeka, earning a spot in this week's Sixth District tournament at Cold Spring. Bemidji is 14-10 for the year which include two losses and a win in three games against Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls finished the 1983 season with a 23-8-1 overall record after being eliminated Saturday in the double-elimination Ninth District Class AA tournament at Moorhead. Thief River Falls opened the tournament with an eight-inning 8-6 win over Crookston, but then lost to the Moorhead Blues 8-1 and Fergus Falls 6-0.

CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM IN Saturday's Lake Agassiz Bambino invitational baseball tournament for 10-11-12-year-olds played here was one of two local all-star teams selected for the event — the Thief River Falls Blues, coached by Charlie Cornell. The Blues beat Baudette 13-7, the Thief River Falls Golds 10-4 and Roseau 16-6 in the finals. Members of the first place trophy-winning squad included, front row left to right, Jeremy Dicken, Kevin Holmes, Jeremy Anderson, Todd Brandon and Corey Poole; back row left to right, Tim Benson, Sean Myhrer, Tim Nelson, Dean DuChamp and Robbie Coltom.

Breckenridge, Moorhead Win Baseball Titles

Moorhead Blues crushed East Grand Forks 22-1 and Breckenridge shaded Warroad 5-3 Monday to win Class AA and Class A titles, respectively, in Ninth District American Legion baseball tournament play.

Six-team, double-elimination Class AA tournament was played at Matson Field in Moorhead, while the eight-team, double-elimination Class A tournament was played at Battle Lake.

Moorhead and Breckenridge will meet Saturday at 2 p.m. at Breckenridge in the first game of a 2-out-of-3 championship series that will determine the Ninth District representative at the 1983 American Legion state baseball tournament in New Ulm August 12-15.

Babe Ruth A Team Ends Year With 26-9 Record

Thief River Falls Babe Ruth A baseball coach Mark Harder said his team made a fine showing at the 1983 Babe Ruth state tournament being played at Edina, even though Thief River Falls was eliminated midway through the week-long, ten-team, double-elimination tournament.

Tournament jitters played a part in Thief River Falls' first-game 10-0 loss to Fridley Friday night, but the Lake Agassiz District 7 champions came back to claim a come-from-behind 9-4 victory over Dilworth Sunday afternoon to stay alive in the loser's bracket before dropping a close 3-2 eight-inning game to Morris Monday morning to bow out of the tournament.

"We played some really good baseball," said Harder in assessing Thief River Falls' tournament showing. "Except for the first game when we were a little nervous, we played right with everyone. I thought we made a really good showing. We could just as easily won the Morris game."

Thief River Falls, after giving up a pair of Morris runs in the fifth, tied the game in the top of the sixth when Lee Hamre and Tom Knoff had back-to-back one-out singles and Kory Joppru came through with a two-out, two-run double.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the eighth when Morris won it with a lead-off single and a one-out infield throwing error that put runners on first and third — in position to score the game-winning run on a sacrifice fly to left field.

Dave Onkka, who came in relief of Knoff in the sixth, was tagged with the pitching loss. Jeff Anderson was brought in with one out in the eighth.

Morris had a 5-4 base hit edge, but used eight walks to produce scoring chances. Thief River Falls had the game's only error.

Thief River Falls finished the year 26-9 under Harder in the first year of coaching for the Hamline University sophomore.

— Women's Slow Pitch —

Dwight's Hartz-St. Hilaire handled Hardware Hank 12-2 Monday in a match-up of Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league Division I co-leaders.

Sharon Stauss homered for the winners, who earlier in the night posted another ten-run victory, this one an 11-1 decision over American Legion as Diane Anderson and Marlys Huot homered.

Meanwhile, the Musherettes locked up the Division II title with a doubleheader sweep, beating Al & Wally's Country Market 18-13 as Sue Olson homered and shading Hutchinson Transfer 2-1.

Schmidt Stealers stopped the Honeybees 13-3. Ruth Ostby hit a grand slam home run for the winners, with teammates Rosemary Naeseth and Barb Natvik also hitting home runs.

Regular season league play is scheduled to be completed today (Wednesday), with the post-season playoffs, set up in tournament fashion, scheduled to be held Sunday at the four women's slow pitch diamonds — two at the fairgrounds, one at East Side park and one at Northland community college.

League standings are minus four scores: Mon., July 18 — Pizza Hut vs. Health Hustlers; and Mon., Aug. 1 — Health Hustlers vs. KSNR, American Legion vs. Honeybees, Jaycees vs. KSNR. Those results must be turned into the Seven-11 store immediately to finalize the standings that are used to determine pairings for Sunday's playoffs.

Athletes Must Finish Forms At A.D. Office

Athletic director Russ Smith reminds all Lincoln high school students who plan to participate in sports activities during the upcoming 1983-84 school year that several steps must be completed by the student-athlete:

+All completed athletic forms must be turned into the Lincoln athletic director's office, not to the coaches as in past years.

+Athletic user fees must be paid at the athletic director's office.

+A clearance card must be picked up at the athletic director's office to be given to the coaches.

These steps must be taken before the student-athlete will be allowed to compete in any sports program.

Lincoln athletic director's office will be open Monday through Friday beginning August 15.

United Satellite Systems (USS) used a newly discovered weapon, reports Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league publicist Dick Bjerken — the three-run inning — in shocking Schmidts' Coke 11-6 Tuesday night.

Schmidts-Coke has taken a 3-1 lead into the top of the fourth inning, but USS used a walk, an error and four hits to score three runs.

A run-scoring double by Nick Drees in the bottom of the fourth pulled Schmidts-Coke into a 4-4 tie, but USS came back with three more runs in the fifth, a lone tally in the sixth and yet another three-run burst in the seventh to win it.

Paul Walker's league-leading fifth home run of the year, a two-run shot in the seventh, was the only Schmidts-Coke scoring over the last three innings.

Second half of the make-up doubleheader between the two was suspended with USS holding a 7-5 lead with one out in the top of the seventh when lightning, wind and rain forced the stoppage of play.

Schmidts-Coke got on the board early in the nightcap with a five-run burst in the first inning as Walker and Greg Harder both hit two-run home runs.

But once again USS went to its three-run weapon. Steve Wiskow tripled in the third, Ryan Bakke doubled for a run and Kerry Wollin homered for a 5-3 game.

Two USS runs in the fourth knotted the contest and in the seventh, Tim Bottem used some lightning with a lead-off home run and Todd Ortloff used a walk, an error, a passed ball and a wild pitch to circle the bases.

Then the real lightning struck and the game was quickly suspended.

Lap swim fund-raising participants will be making contacts for pledges.

Safety is YOUR Business

MAYNARD MOEN, manager of the Thief River Falls Neibauer's men's fast pitch softball team, was honored Sunday when he was presented with the Carl Edstrom Memorial Trophy during the 26th annual Lakes fast pitch softball tournament at Detroit Lakes.

Maynard Moen Named Trophy Award Winner

Special recognition was given to Thief River Falls' Maynard Moen Sunday when he was presented with the Carl Edstrom Memorial Trophy during the 26th annual Lakes fast pitch softball tournament at Detroit Lakes.

Serving as team manager, Moen has had a team in the tournament finals each of the past three years. His North Star Transport squad won the 1981 tournament with a 4-2, 10-inning championship game win over Lepird Dry Wall of West Fargo and a year ago they reached the finals before losing to Moose Lodge of Bemidji 5-2.

On Sunday, the team, known this summer as Neibauer's, once again played its way into the championship game before losing to the Fargo Knights of Columbus 15-1.

Started as the Lakes Invitational most valuable player award in 1964, it was renamed the Carl Edstrom Memorial Trophy to signify sportsmanship and special contribution to the tournament.

Twice before Thief River Falls was honored with the award — in 1978 when Al Erickson was the award winner as the pitcher on the championship Coca-Cola team that beat Skaar's Pabst of Bemidji in the finals, and in 1975 when the award was given to the Thief River Falls American Legion team after several players on the squad were involved in an automobile accident Sat., July 19, that killed pitcher Mike Neibauer.

Schmidts-Coke of Thief River Falls bounced back from a first-round 5-4 loss to the eventual champion Fargo Knights of Columbus squad to win consolation championship honors.

DNR NEWS

Illegal Fish Sales

An investigation by state, federal and tribal enforcement officials has resulted in charges being filed against 16 residents of the Red Lake Indian reservation for the illegal sale of walleye pike from Lower Red Lake.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reports that during the course of the investigation, DNR undercover enforcement officers purchased approximately 8,500 walleye fillets. Some 600 fillets and 45 'whole' walleyes were bought on the reservation with the other buys made in Chicago and Hennepin counties.

In addition, state and federal undercover buyers were frequently offered large quantities of fish which could not be purchased due to "financial and manpower" considerations, said the DNR.

According to DNR Enforcement Director Fred Hammer, agents were offered 3,000 walleyes by several Red Lake band members during one weekend in April. He said several band members said they would be willing to supply "up to 1,000 walleyes per week" on a regular basis.

"Based on what was larned during the investigation," said Hammer, "we estimate that at least 6,000 illegally taken fish were for sale weekly in the Twin Cities alone, just by the subjects involved in this one case."

He said there was information to indicate that Red Lake Walleyes were also being sold in other parts of Minnesota, and even to out-of-state locations. Under federal, state and tribal law, fish taken from Red Lake waters of the reservation must be marketed through the tribe's commercial fishery operation. Fish purchased by undercover agents were in effect sold on the "black market" — circumventing the reservation fishing industry.

Under an agreement between state, federal and tribal officials, a quota has been set on the number of pounds of fish that can be harvested annually from red Lake.

Interpretive Programs

Nearly 110,000 persons attended interpretive programs conducted at Minnesota state parks last year, reports the Department of Natural Resources.

Informing visitors of the history, geology, vegetation and wildlife of the area, the interpretive programs offer an opportunity to become more aware of the park's resources and to make their visit more meaningful and enjoyable.

This summer, 37 Minnesota state parks are offering interpretive services. Interpretive centers in many of these parks include exhibits and informational materials highlighting natural resources of the park, including the wildlife and plants commonly found in the area. Many parks also have self-guided trails where signs or brochures enable the visitor to explore the surroundings at their own pace.

Activities directed by park naturalists include such events as guided interpretive hikes, campfire programs, film and slide shows, special events, guest speakers, canoe, bike, and ski tours and demonstrations where one can learn anything from how to call a turkey to procedures for making maple syrup.

Year-round interpretive programs are available at Whitewater, Sibley, Fort Snelling, Wild River, Lake Bemidji and Helmer Myre state parks in order to acquaint visitors with the changing patterns of the world in winter, spring, and fall as well as summer.

Blue Mounds state park has a nine-month program while 19 other parks provide three-month services. In four state parks the Historical Society offers programs to heighten the visitors' awareness of the area's historical significance.

Occasional activities are also provided by volunteers of staff other than interpreters in eight other parks.

Interpretive program schedules are available at the parks. For more information on the services provided, contact one of the regional naturalists listed here:

Aid Deer Research

Pope and Young Club, a national organization which recognizes big game trophies taken with bow and arrow by rules of fair chase, has donated $1,000 to help support deer research in southern Minnesota.

"This is the third consecutive year we have received such a donation from the Pope and Young Club," said Dr. John Ludwig, deer research biologist at the DNR farmland wildlife populations and research group, Madelia. "These gifts have been a great help in our continuing studies of deer population dynamics and movements and are very much appreciated."

Acid Rain Program

Department of Natural Resources has announced that Super America-Ashland Oil has supplied a "portable conductivity meter" to the DNR for use in its acid rain studies.

Studies are to identify waters having a low ability to neutralize acids and may therefore be susceptible to damage from acid rain.

Ron Payer, acid rain specialist with the DNR, noted that measurement of calcium carbonate content of the water is one means to classify how sensitive a lake or stream might be to acid rain.

Nine DNR area fisheries headquarters have been equipped with precision laboratory equipment to determine calcium carbonate levels, said Payer.

Drownings Increase

With the several weeks of hot weather recently, activity on Minnesota's lakes and rivers has increased tremendously, but so has the potential for accidents, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

"July and the early part of August traditionally have the highest numbers of swimming deaths and boating accidents", according to Kim Elverum, DNR boat and water safety coordinator.

As of July 22, there were 45 water deaths in Minnesota, compared to 53 last year on that date.

Elverum noted that several of the swimming deaths in the past two weeks occurred in rivers. He said the recent high water has created dangerous currents in streams and increased water flow over rocks and small dams.

He also gave the following tips to help prevent mid-summer water tragedies:

1 — Do not rely on inflatable devices like air mattresses and inner tubes to replace swimming ability. Use personal flotation devices (PFD's) when tubing down rivers.

2 — confine swimming to supervised areas on lakes when possible. Don't venture out into the area frequented by boats; as a swimmer, you are not very visible and run the risk of being hit by watercraft.

3 — Wear a PFD when boating, fishing or water skiing.

4 — When boating or fishing, keep a sharp lookout for other boats and swimmers. The most common type of nonfatal boating accident is a collision causing injuries and property damage.

5 — Restrict your use of alcohol; according to some studies, drinking is involved in 60-70 per cent of all drownings.

Conservation Tillage

A policy of encouraging the use of conservation tillage on lands administered by the Department of Natural Resources has been instituted.

"The DNR must provide a leadership role and set a good example of soil stewardship on state-administered lands," said DNR Commissioner Joseph N. Alexander.

Policy statement defines conservation tillage as a method of soil tillage, or no-tillage, that leaves much of the previous season's crop residue on the land surface.

Conservation tillage usually results in reduced soil erosion as compared to conventional mold-board plowing. Spring or fall mold-board plowing followed by secondary tillage buries most, if not all, of the previous season's crop residue leaving the land surface exposed to the erosive forces of wind and water.

Policy states in part, "It is the goal of the Department of Natural Resources to protect the soil resources on all DNR-owned and administered lands and to encourage the use of conservation tillage measure on all lands under agricultural cultivation." This goal has the potential of affecting approximately 22,000 acres of state-administered land.

"The use of conservation tillage will be encouraged and promoted by the DNR since its use will substantially improve many of our other natural resources. It will help improve water infiltration, reduce evaporation and soil erosion, reduce sedimentation of our rivers, lakes and wetlands and will provide additional food and cover for wildlife through the winter," Alexander stated.

Conservation tillage policy will affect cooperative farming agreements and leases between the DNR and individual farmers in addition to state lands cultivated by the DNR for wildlife food plots.

Alexander stressed that the policy will be "phased in" as more conservation tillage equipment is purchased.

School Board Discusses Evaluations

Evaluations of the school board and Supt. Robert Block were reviewed at a special meeting of the board of education Tuesday morning at the school district service center board room. While the evaluations were considered satisfactory and adequate to good, areas of concern were noted for efforts toward improvement.

A subcommittee comprised of Myrle Carlson, Hank Hallstrom and Greg Pribula was appointed to meet with Supt. Block to discuss his prospective salary and benefits for 1983-84.

Comments by a parent indicating concern regarding a teacher in the district were heard and taken under advisement by the board.

Representatives of the girls swimming program requested an extension of time to raise money to support the program. A resolution was adopted extending the deadline to August 8, at which time an overall plan for raising the funds is to be presented to the board for review.

Suggested lease agreement with the city of Thief River Falls was discussed regarding use of the softball fields east of the area vocational-technical institute. It was recommended for forwarding to the city council for review and potential approval.

Supt. Block reviewed the legislative mandate concerning cooperative efforts between Northland community college and the AVTI. Areas of possible cooperative efforts were again discussed on Tuesday.

Boys tennis coach Whitey Olson presented a report on the fund-raising tennis tournament and noted that proceeds and participation fees would leave the $1,750 program about $450 short. Since the program had been placed in the co-funding area, he asked the board to fund the $450 difference. The board determined that no funding would be granted until it is better aware of the district's financial situation following teacher and other contracts still being negotiated.

Kennel Club Dog Training Classes Set

Agassiz Kennel Club will again be sponsoring dog training classes this fall.

Classes will be offered in beginners, advance obedience, showmanship and conformation classes.

Fee for the obedience class, which will run for 10 weeks, will be $18 for adults; $9 for children under the age of 18; and $5 for children in 4-H dog projects. Fee for the 4-H participants is good for an entire year of training in both obedience and showmanship.

Sign-up will take place Tuesday, August 9, at 7 p.m. at the sheep barn on the Pennington county fairgrounds. Rabies shot certificate is required. Dogs should not be brought at the time of the sign-up.

DANCE CONTEST was held at the Elk's Club as part of the Jaycee Summerfest activities last Thursday evening. Country and Western music was provided for the fancy steppers by a newly formed local band, "County Line", who donated their services in order to gain public exposure. Winning dance partners included: first, Tom and Linda Ronchetti; second, Arnold and Eunice Wiskow; and third, Denise Stepp and Larry Brotsch.

GRANDSTANDS HAD lots of room for more spectators during the three-wheeler moto-cross races sponsored by the Thief River Falls Jaycees at the fairgrounds on Saturday as part of Summerfest activities. Lack of attendance was a shame, since the jumps and right turns on the track challenged the riders of the unstable, balloon-tired machines and provided a good show for the viewers.

WATER BALLOON tossing competition was one of the children's games sponsored by the Jaycee Women as part of Summerfest activities at the beach on Sunday. Teammates started out facing each other only a few feet apart, taking a step backward after each successful catch. Techniques for handling the unstable water bombs varied wildly, with some contestants taking great pains to catch them as gently as possible and others preferring to avoid the risk and let them land on the sand before getting too close.

River Valley

Mrs. Orlando Chervestad
Oklee, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tieso and son of St. Paul spent last weekend in the area and attended Peggy's 10th Oklee class reunion. Formerly Peggy Myrum, she visited with her school pals, Lana and Brad Nelson. They all attended the class reunion at Oklee high school and afterwards enjoyed a pig roast at the Kelly Lundeen farm. Peggy's son was an overnight guest at the Nelson home. Peggy completed her first year of law school in California and Robert is a St. Paul attorney.

Orlando Chervestad was surprised Tuesday evening by visitors bringing birthday greetings and cake. People there were Mrs. Brad Nelson and Ryan, Quinten, Brent, Tyler and Christopher, Mrs. Korydon Chervestad, Aaron, Abegail, Angela and Adeline, Robert Flaten, Danny and Duane Nelson and mother, Sena Chervestad. Happy birthday Orlando.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Neuschwander of Grygla are proud parents of a baby boy, Dustin Wayne who weighed 7 lbs. 7 oz. when he was born at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Juel Chervestad, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Neuschwander, greatgrandmother, Sena Chervestad, great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Neuschwander of Grygla. Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Johnson, Jelle and Jodi of Fairmont are proud parents of a baby girl, Jodi, born June 22. They spent some time here visiting grandparents, the Juell Chervestads and Leonard Johnsons of Goodridge and other relatives. They also visited with great-grandmother, Sena Chervestad. Joy and family and sister Karen Matheson and family visited with Sena.

Gene and Nancy Teigland of Minneapolis visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stucy and other relatives. The Teiglands enjoyed an interesting two weeks vacation trip in the western states and also visited with her sister, Dr. and Faye Johnson and girls in Chico, Calif.

Verner and Mildred Arveson enjoyed a 12 day vacation visiting relatives at Piapot, Canada. The Arvesons visited with Sophie Arveson and her family in Idaho and Sophie's brother at Stanwood, Wash. and relatives in Seattle. They traveled through Yellowstone national park, Mont. and Roosevelt national park in North Dakota. Tom Hofstad was the caretaker of the farm while they enjoyed their vacation away from the busy farming activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rodahl from Californa, formerly from this area and Rachael's sister of Fosston stopped over to visit with the Orlando Chervestads Monday and enjoyed a tour of District 39's old school house. Rachael taught school in 1941 and her salary was $62.50 a month. Board and room at the Rodahl home across the road was $12 a month. Rachael taught 19 children, was her own janitor and the water supply was carried in from a farm nearby. She married Victor several years later in Thief River Falls. Ole Austad was the best man and her sister was bridesmaid. Wallace Gunderson of Witchita, was one of her students and he was up here visiting too.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Gunderson entertained at an outdoor steak supper Wednesday for Wallace and Sonja Gunderson and family of Witchita, Kans. Wally and family are visiting his mother, Alice in Thief River Falls and with other relatives. The invited guests who enjoyed the supper and visiting with the Gundersons were his relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, Audrey Stawarski and mother Birdie Gunderson of Oklee, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Tasa and grandson of Baudette, Mr. and Mrs. Juell Chervestad, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matheson, Mr. and Mrs. Bergdahl of Thief River Falls, Jillyn Skibicki and Aloma Koop of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Brad Gunderson and Ashley all visited together. Wally enjoyed talking about an old party place called Skunk Hollow. The log house has been moved to the historical site in Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Signe Evenson was taken by Oklee ambulance to Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls on Monday. Signe was unable to move with back pain. Visiting with Signe during the week were Pastor Miller, Ethel Wiseth, Helen Chervestad, Geline Bjornarra, Lillian Jorstad of McIntosh, Tillie Waalo of TRF, Ragna Gunderson, Carol Chervestad and Father Patnode of Oklee. Olaf Stolaas delivered flower arrangements from the Ebenezer church. Hurry and get well Signe. Friday Helen Chervestad visited with her mother, Signe and also visited with Cora Vraa, Ernest Gisselquist, Mrs. Dreng Roiland all at the CNC unit at the hospital and also stopped in to see Gust Iverson who fell out of his bed at the hospital and suffered a broken hip. Hurry and get well Gust. Olaf Stolaas also visited with Gust.

We are sorry to hear Johnny Tanem of Goodridge was rushed to Northwestern hospital and is in the intensive care unit.

Mr. and Mrs. Galen Peters of Goodridge visited at the Olaf Stolaas home Sunday and evening visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Omer Nesland and Doris Dahle.

Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad and Ethel Wiseth attended the Telemark Laget convention at the university in Marshall last weekend. They stayed at the dormitory but it was very uncomfortable with no air conditioning. The convention hall was air conditioned and all enjoyed the Norwegian program and entertainers from Norway and speaking the Norwegian language. Helen wore her Telemarken costume and took part in the style show.

Mr. and Mrs. Brad Nelson and family and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Nelson and family of McIntosh enjoyed camping last weekend at Bagley.

Mrs. Glenn Tasa and daughter, Mrs. Bob Solheim and boys of Baudette, visited with great-grandmother, Sena Chervestad last week.

Carol Chervestad and girls motored to Brookings, S.D. last weekend. They met Korydon and Aaron from Winner, S.D. Aaron came home after spending six weeks helping his dad with custom combining. Aaron and his sisters are taking swimming lessons in Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hughes and family of St. George, Utah are visiting at the Ethel Wiseth home of Goodridge, the Signe Evenson home and the Orlando Chervestad home.

Robert Flaten and Orlando Chervestad visited at Bob's sister's, the Gary Andersons in Thief River Falls last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Verner Arveson visited Thursday evening at the Clifford Arveson home. Mrs. Orlando Chervestad was a coffee guest at the Verner Arveson home Thursday.

Card of Thanks

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the doctors and nurses at the hospital for the care given my husband during the time he was a patient there. Thanks also to St. Hilaire elevator, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ose and Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Reierson for the beautiful flowers, to others for calls and get well cards. Special thanks to all the Reiersons and Weleskis for their help and concern, to our daughter-in-law Debbie, and son Pete for standing by us, to Lois Phillip for being a good friend, and to Cecil and Maryel Anderson for their support, to Jim Mattson, Francis Koehmstedt, Greg Kalinoski and Mrs. Laurel Nabben for their help and advice. Thank you all and God bless you all.

Chet and Liz Carlson 2t62c

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for kindness shown us during the loss of our dear son, brother, brother-in-law and uncle.

Special thanks to Pastor Luther Anderson for being with us the many times we needed him and for his comforting words and prayers.

Also thanks to the ambulance drivers, Dr. Davidson, and staff of Northwestern Hospital, who helped in any way, the Black River LCW for serving dinner at the church, the organist, Mrs. Ruthie Mosbeck and soloist, Mrs. Grace Hommer, the Green funeral home and all who sent cards, flowers and memorials and to all who helped in any way. God bless each one.

The family of Rodney Srnsky

Card of Thanks

Murray Hogenson wants to thank all his friends, relatives for prayers, gifts, cards and telephone calls while he was a patient at St. Mary's in Rochester so long. God bless you all.

Mr. & Mrs. Lloyd Hogenson & Murray 1t62p

Public Notices

Public Notice

Notice to voters of Excel township, Marshall county. A continuation of the annual meeting of March 8, 1983, will be held at Steiner hall on Tuesday, August 9, 1983, at 8 p.m. for the purpose of discussing and adopting the budget for 1983-84 fiscal year.

Walter Steinhauer, clerk 2t62c

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lunde at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3899.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the kind nurses and Dr. Padilla and Dr. Mestery for the wonderful care that I received while I was ill at Northwestern Hospital. Special thanks to Pastor Smerek for his visits and to all who sent cards and flowers.

God bless you all.

ASSEMBLY LINE at the Arctco, Inc., manufacturing plant is in full operation this week as the fledgling firm begins its manufacture of Arctic Cat snowmobiles. The company will have some 70 employees involved in the manufacturing process, most of them experienced previously with Arctic Enterprises prior to its bankruptcy filing. Two models of Arctic Cats — the Panther and El Tigre — will be produced for the 1983-84 sales season. More models will be added next year when the company expects to double its production on an advance contract for sale basis.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS touring the Arctco, Inc., plant in Thief River Falls Wednesday afternoon were shown various parts of the manufacturing area by Chris Twomey, a recent addition to the Arctco staff as director of corporate administration. To the left of Twomey are Ken Murphy, city council member; Rep. Wally Sparby, Thief River Falls; Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer; and Mike Mulrooney, assistant to the Minnesota commissioner of economic development. At the right are Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson and Joe Alexander, commissioner of the department of natural resources.

Cases handled by the Pennington county sheriff's department included the following:

July 27 — David Stock, Fergus Falls, reported that a tire and rim, value $125, had been stolen from a John Deere disc which was parked in Numedal township.

August 2 — Aaron Bartsch, Thief River Falls, reported that speakers, value $20, had been stolen from his vehicle while it was parked at the Lantern restaurant and lounge.

Cancer Fund Memorials Are Received

Memorials to the cancer fund have been received by the Pennington chapter of the American cancer society.

Funds were received in the memory of Lena Iverson, May Symons, Wilma Arnold, Ann Wilson, Katherine Stigar, Emma Syversrud, Frances Cook, Myrtle Herman Loberg, Alfred Longren, J. Richards "Dick" Sanders and John Sunsdahl.

These gifts help support the research, education and service programs of the American cancer society, according to Mrs. Charles Krause, memorial chairman.

State Betters Its Short Term Credit Rating

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls today said that "Minnesota's improved short-term credit rating is the latest sign that the state's fiscal situation has sharply improved."

"Obviously, I'm very happy," he said. "I think it shows that Governor Perpich and the Legislature succeeded in putting together a budget that would bring stability back to state finances, particularly with the $250 million budget reserve."

The credit rating — which went from MIG-2 to MIG-1, the highest rating possible — is determined by Moody's Investors Service of New York, the nation's primary rating service for short-term notes. The state's credit rating had been downgraded to MIG-2 in May 1982 after a series of budget crises in the previous administration,' Sparby said.

He noted the higher credit rating means Minnesota will pay less in the interest when it repays its short-term notes. The state, for instance, could save one million dollars in interest on $200 million borrowed this month.

"The state traditionally borrows money at certain times of the year to maintain its cash flow since tax collections and payments do not always coincide. Despite this, Minnesota will still reduce its short-term borrowing this year from $850 million to $500 million," Sparby said.

"Minnesota's improved credit rating will also make it easier for local units of government to borrow money. There is a perception out in the market that stability has returned to Minnesota," Sparby concluded.

"Artist Of The Month" In TRF Is Nancy Ricci

NANCY RICCI displays one of the charcoal drawings which will be in an exhibit of her work through the month of August at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls. The display is being sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council which has named Nancy as its "Artist of the Month."

Nancy Ricci of rural Thief River Falls has been selected as August "Artist of the Month" by the Thief River Falls community arts council. An exhibit of her charcoal, pencil, and pen and ink drawings will be on display in the Northwest regional library throughout the month.

Nancy is known in this area as a teacher of private guitar lessons, but she also has become active in the visual arts. She originally became interested in art in grade school, and says, "it probably suits my nature. I like work that is quiet and takes a long time." In junior high and high school, Nancy took as many art classes as she could, and a teacher even suggested she attend art school.

After high school, she sold a couple paintings, but art fell by the wayside as she began her family life. Her husband, Tony Ricci, is a piano tuner, musician and instructor of private music lessons at Northland community college. They have a daughter, Collette.

Nancy's interest in art was renewed after a time. "It took a few years to get back to it," she admits. She began taking art classes at Northland community college, and new horizons opened for her as she experimented with new art forms. She credits Mike Trudeau, art instructor at Northland community college, for this. "Mike is responsible for getting me charged up about visual arts. . . You get rusty at it and it takes a while to become comfortable at it again. Mike helps make you comfortable. He is energetic, enthusiastic, and encouraging." She also feels the studio setting at the college has made it easier for her to explore her potential in art.

Besides doing charcoal, pencil, and pen and ink drawing, Nancy enjoys oil painting, ceramic sculpture, and printmaking. "Anything decorative excites me," she says. Nancy is also involved in the Chameleon Theatre, community choir, and church related activities such as the Methodist handbell choir, church choir and performing guitar-flute duets.

Congressman Applauds Sale To Russians

Congressman Arlan Stangeland applauds the successful completion of negotiations on a new long-term trade agreement (LTA) with the Soviet Union for American crops.

The terms of the LTA, announced Thursday by Agriculture Secretary John Block in Washington, are as follows:

+ In each of the following five years, the Soviets have guaranteed to buy between nine and 12 million metric tons of U.S. wheat and feed grains;

+ The Soviets have an option to buy a million metric tons of soybeans and soymeal. If they buy the full one million metric tons of soy products, that amount will be deducted from the nine million metric ton guaranteed annual purchase of wheat and feed grains.

+ After the Soviets have bought 12 million metric tons of wheat and feed grains in a given year, they must negotiate for further purchases.

"This will mean higher commodity prices, greater U.S. exports, and relief for America's farm economy," said Stangeland, a member of the House agriculture committee. "President Reagan and Secretary Block deserve a hand on these successful negotiations."

"This is America's first breakthrough since the Carter grain embargo, which triggered the recent crisis in U.S. agriculture," said Stangeland, a four-term House veteran and a life-long family farmer. "Now we can regain some of the trade we lost because of the 1980 embargo."

Prior to the embargo, which was lifted by President Reagan in 1981, America held 70 per cent of Russia's food import market. Since the embargo, that figure has been cut by more than half. The USSR had signed long-term agreements with several of America's food-producing competitors, including Canada, Argentina, Brazil and India.

"I feel certain that the Soviets will quickly reach the 12 million metric ton ceiling, Congressman Stangeland said. "When they do I will encourage President Reagan to study our grain reserve levels. If we have enough to sell, then higher levels of sales should be approved."

BBB Resolves 25 Formal Ad Challenges

Advertising review division of the Better Business bureau of Minnesota resolved 25 formal local advertising challenges during the past month.

Majority of the cases challenged (14) were the result of the BBB's own monitoring efforts, nine cases were initiated by consumers and two were brought to the BBB's attention by competitors.

In eight cases the BBB found the advertisers had a basis for their claims. In the remaining cases the advertisers either agreed to revise their claims to meet the guidelines established by the BBB code of advertising or agreed to discontinue the claims.

The 25 challenges resolved by the bureau during the past month involved the following: pricing claims, 11 cases; insufficient quantity of merchandise and nondisclosure, two cases; false or misleading claims, seven cases; underselling or puffery claims, three cases; automotive dealer prep and freight claim, one case; and energy savings claim, one case.

Advertising division of the BBB handles investigative work for the advertising industry's self-regulatory mechanism. It reviews and evaluates challenges to the truth and accuracy of advertising brought by outside sources or initiated by the BB as a result of its own monitoring or print and broadcast advertising.

Following its investigation BBB will dismiss or uphold the challenge, requesting in the latter event modification, or withdrawl of the requested advertising. Where efforts by the bureau are unsuccessful, or where the advertiser or complainant disagrees with the findings of the bureau staff, the bureau may request the Minnesota advertising review committee (MARC) set up a panel to review the matter and advise the bureau chief executive. The Minnesota advertising review committee (MARC) functions as an appeals body on advertising matters investigated originally by BBB. Panel findings and opinions are publicly disclosed.

Is the Power of GOD

Men are fascinated and sometimes appalled by manifestations of vast power beyond all human control.

Primitive man stared with frightened awe at angry storm clouds and fled in terror to his cave when the fury broke and the winds lashed the trees and lightning tore great holes in the landscape.

New powers have been discovered as man has dug deeper into the secrets of nature and all of them have been viewed with apprehension or plain fear.

Steam, electricity, explosive gases, diesel, radium and many others, each in turn with its marvels of achievement and its vast potentialities, have filled mankind with awe as he wondered what other secrets of power lay buried in the bosom of the universe.

Today it is the nuclear bomb which staggers man's imagination and makes him fear for the future of his world and his civilization.

But the power of nature is the power of God. Used rightly, it always proves a boon and blessing for mankind; but employed for evil purposes, its destructive powers are unlimited.

The secret of the right use of the powers of the universe is embodied in religion and expounded in the teachings of the Church.

RELISHING FRESH ZUCCHINI

Whether you have a zucchini patch in your garden or buy it at your local produce market—now is the time to take advantage of fresh zucchini. Enjoy its delicate flavor with summer meals by making Easy Zucchini Relish. Using Jell-O® brand fruit flavor gelatin and crunchy fresh zucchini, relish is super simple to prepare. Make it up ahead of time and store in the freezer or refrigerator. This way, you'll always have relish ready to serve with a cold-cut buffet, as a condiment to picnic sandwiches or alongside your pork or chicken dinner.

EASY ZUCCHINI RELISH

2-1/2 cups shredded, unpeeled zucchini
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1/3 cup vinegar
1/4 cup horseradish
1 package (3 oz.) Jell-O lemon flavor gelatin

Combine zucchini, sugar, water, vinegar and horseradish in a medium saucepan. Bring to a boil; boil 5 minutes, stirring often. Remove from heat; add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Ladle quickly into hot sterilized small jars or freezer containers. Cover tightly; cool. Store in freezer, or refrigerate up to 2 weeks. Makes 3 cups.

The Cat Is Back!

It was an optimistic and enthusiastic group that gathered at the Arctco manufacturing plant Monday afternoon for the ceremonial ribbon cutting as the first Arctic Cat manufactured by Arctco reached the end of the assembly line.

Included in the group were officials and employees of the company, local business and professional people, dealers and distributors from a wide area, representatives of the news media and trade publications and many formerly affiliated with Arctic Cat manufacture by Arctic Enterprises, Inc.

If there were any uncomfortable people among the group, they were most likely the principal organizers of the new company who have been in shirtsleeve drudgery for so long that suits and sportcoats seemed out of place. There has been the feeling throughout the organizational period that success of the venture is closely tied to the direct involvement of the organizers in the actual operation of the business. Such involvement has rarely been at what is normally considered an executive level.

It was good to see familiar faces long associated with local snowmobile operations, all bearing pleased smiles as production is actually underway. The plant appears to be in good order, the workers seem familiar with the tasks at hand, and the spirit of recovery could almost be felt in the air. And the end product, the sleek 1984 model snowmobiles, look ready to go out into the market and meet old friends who have been longing for the return of the Cat.

While this year's production run is just beginning, plans for the next year are well underway and a doubling of production is being talked about. We join with the many Thief River Falls and northwestern Minnesota residents who extend the warmest best wishes for Arctco, In., to meet with great success in its maiden year and into the future. The Cat is back — and that's just great!

Zucchini Eradicator

Following is from a column by Bill Dix in the North Hennepin Post:

Last week local TV presented Sophia Loren's own story. A scene in an Italian marketplace triggered an alarm in my brain. Sophia's mother told her to "get some zucchini". Squash indeed. Calling zucchini "squash" is like calling an anthill the Matterhorn. Hubbard, acorn, buttercup — zucchini — like a sour note in a beautiful melody.

It's that time of the year again. The zucchini season. Chopped zucchini in your chocolate cake and tonic water. Very proper ladies will offer callers zucchini bread as they kick a 10-pound, bloated "summer squash" under the nearest chair. The danger that we become completely paralyzed by zucchini is even greater this year because of the tropical, rain-forest weather we have been having. Zucchini is growing in the sidewalk cracks. Already the sad tales are being told.

A case in point: Tiny Hidgraf of New Hope is well known as an incompetent gardener. Last year his tomatoes succumbed to anthracnose, stemphylium and septoria leaf spot. His beans had cowpea curculio and a hord of leafhoppers. Cerospora blight did in his carrots, stinkbug his spinach and he started an epidemic of phomoposis blight with his eggplant. His strawberries stunk of botrytis rot and frogeye leaf spot peppered his peppers. He should have given up, but didn't.

He did what all incompetent gardeners do — planted zucchini. Now he waddles around New Hope begging people to come and see his wonderful garden. "Have a zucchini," he says. Just like a new father passing out cigars. He hauls out monstrous squash by the tonsful.

All over New Hope people are using Tiny's zucchini to plug gopher holes, mulch their rutabagas and patch their mufflers. New Hopeians are sticking zucchini in their ears and reviving the old "hey, lady, you've got a zucchini in your ear" joke.

There was one thing that Tiny didn't count on. Dumb zucchini growers never do. That is the rapid growth of the plant. If not harvested in time, they grow at an ever accelerating rate until they explode. Therein lies the tragedy of Tiny Hindgraf's zucchini patch.

Tiny bragged so much that he ignored one zucchini growing near his garage. Late one night it passed the point of no return and blew. Did in his garage and the '57 Chev. But that wasn't the worst part: The neighborhood cats, all in heat, were on the garage roof. When the thing exploded, one of the Toms went straight up and landed on the high-power transmission line. Blacked out half of New Hope. The neighbors didn't think Tiny so smart after that. And the cat was sick for a week. Tragedies like Tiny's will multiply if people do not get their zucchini growing under control. Anybody can raise a zucchini. Few can control it or find any constructive use for it.

Which brings us to Bob Murgaas, who writes gardening columns in these pages. His writings are good, but naive. Last week he warned of the "squash (sic) vine borer." A natural enemy of the zucchini. He told people how to get rid of it. After years of uncontrolled zucchini mania, finally a long-sought solution. A borer that eats the vines and does in the hated plant. And Bob Murgaas tells us how to kill the bug.

In our foolishness we go hell-bent on self destruction. Our Creator gets involved and sends us a way out of our morass — the vine borer. And Bob Murgaas wants to kill it. Bob Murgaas may be a good horticulturist but he just doesn't understand the danger of a world filled with 20 pound zucchini. He's never seen the pain suffered by a child who was flopped-on by a zucchini that was rolling out of control down a hill.

If God has sent us a bug to do in the zucchini, Bob Murgaas should keep his mouth shut. In this serious matter we must trust that God knows best.

The 'Muskie Curse'

Following editorial is from the Phoenix (AZ) Republic:

Although former Vice-President Walter Mondale is the most experienced and best financed Democrat chasing the party's presidential nomination, his strategists worry about what might be called the "Muskie Curse."

Edmund Muskie, then a U.S. senator, also had the financing and the lead for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

But Muskie stumbled, and his lead evaporated. George McGovern was picked by the party to run against Richard Nixon.

Mondale may have another problem. He is perceived to be for everything that every Democratic special interest group is for, and thus seems to stand more for expediency than principle.

He is for bolder U.S. global leadership, but he also favors disarmament and reduced military spending.

He is four-square for improved education, more and better prisons, comfort and health for the aging, housing and jobs, but all with less government spending.

Mondale also has begun an ideological metamorphosis. He is attempting to shake the image he developed as the late Vice-President Hubert Humphrey's protege — as a disciple of immense government spending and social engineering and an advocate of the most extreme form of U.S. liberalism.

Mondale has already uttered what may become the whole campaign's most vacuous statement — "I know what our people want. They want us to get on with it."

Mondale's four years with Jimmy Carter in the White House, and his defeat in 1980 as Carter's running mate, also is a drawback.

By the time all hopefuls have announced, Democrats cannot complain of a lack of ideological variety in the field of candidates.

They will have Mondale and U.S. Senators Alan Cranston of California and Gary Hart of Colorado, on the left, with former Florida Governor Reubin Askew as the right-of-center candidate, and U.S. Senators John Glenn of Ohio and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina as candidates of the Democratic far right.

And just think — voters will have 18 months until the nominating convention to listen to all of them.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The race horse owner took one of his aging and ailing thoroughbreds to the veterinarian. "Your horse has a bad heart, and bad back and he's lame," the vet said.

"Can I race him," the owner asked.

"Sure," the vet replied, "and it's my guess you'll probably beat him."

The rich Texan felt a pain in his chest. "I think I'm having a heart attack," he called to his wife. "Quick, buy me a hospital."

"Yes, you're right," said the new maid, hanging up the phone.

When it rang again she answered and said, "Yes, Ma'am, it sure is," then hung up again.

"Who is that?" the employer asked.

"I don't know," the maid replied. "Some crazy lady keeps saying it's a long distance from New York and I keep agreeing with her."

IT'S A FACT!

In a dialogue on pain, sponsored by Panadol®, a maximum strength, non-aspirin analgesic, these facts emerged about the management of pain:

- Realize you are not alone—don't isolate yourself, nearly everyone suffers from some form of daily aches and pains at one time or another.
- Take steps to adjust your environment. Some common examples are: improving your posture, changing the lighting in your workplace, exercising more and wearing earplugs in heavy noise areas.
- Know that responsible self-medication with an over-the-counter pain reliever is an alternative.

Looking Backward

1923 — 60 YEARS AGO

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

The 1983 Legislature, like the 1981-82 Legislative sessions preceding it, spent a great deal of time attempting to provide some effective reform in the area of reducing workers' compensation insurance rates, thereby lessening the costs for small businesses especially burdened by them.

The major thrust of this year's legislation was to effectively reduce these rates by two major initiatives: encouraging the earlier return to work by injured employees and, second, inserting more competition into the system to lower rates through the insurance marketplace.

The first bill approved by the Legislature (H.F. 274) made changes in benefits and in the administration of the workers' compensation system, with the goal of reducing premium rates by also providing a more efficient system of contacting and caring for workers injured on-the-job.

The bill sets aside $8 million for the Department of Labor and Industry to provide better claims management, plus a new benefit schedule patterned after the management system used successfully in Wisconsin to reduce rates there.

The new "two-tiered" benefit formula is expected to reduce costs at least 10 per cent by slightly reducing benefits paid to workers suffering minor injuries and by increasing benefits paid to workers with more serious injuries. This system should also result in improved case management and speedier and more amicable case settlements, which should cut down on expensive court suits and encourage the earlier return to work of injured employees.

The second thrust toward solving the problem was addressed by appropriating $3 million toward the implementation of a "state competitive fund" to compete with private insurance carriers for this coverage. It has been proven that larger businesses are saving money through self-insurance, and that local units of government now self-insuring are also realizing great savings.

Industry analysts are predicting that premium savings reductions of up to 50 per cent can be possible under this plan, creating the potential for a 60 per cent cost savings, together with the other changes in the reform action.

In view of the fact the insurance industry was asking for a 31.4 per cent rate hike (delayed under the bill until Jan. 1, 1984) and with deregulation of the rate-setting system set for next year, it was an important year to make substantive new changes in the workers' compensation rate structure. Given the importance of the problem, and the bi-partisan support for the final package, the consensus at the Capital this year was that we passed major reforms that should effectively reduce these premiums and improve our state's business climate in the future.

Workers' compensation legislation is the story of literally hundreds of hours of study, negotiation and consultation between a number of interested employees, employers and other parties. The reforms we approved should prove in the long run to protect injured workers, while also allowing small businesses to realize reduced premium costs and improve the business climate.

CANCER FACTS & MYTHS

Though cancer is a disease where early detection and prompt treatment can make a difference, there are some misconceptions many people have about this disease. Here are some of them.

MYTH: Blacks rarely get cancer.

FACT: Blacks have higher rates of some kinds of cancer than whites. This includes cancers of the lung, prostate, stomach, cervix, pancreas and esophagus. Cancers of the breast, large bowel, bladder and mouth are among other types of cancer on the rise in the black community.

MYTH: Cancer is contagious.

FACT: Cancer is not contagious. It cannot be spread from person to person by sneezing, coughing, kissing or in any other way.

MYTH: A bump or a bruise can cause cancer.

FACT: Bumps and bruises do not cause cancer. Sometimes cancer is found when a person is being treated for an injury. In such cases, the cancer was there before the injury. It just wasn't noticed earlier.

A helpful booklet called, "What Black Americans Should Know About Cancer," is available free by writing to: National Cancer Institute, Building 31, Room 10A18, Bethesda, Maryland 20205, or calling the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER.

COOKING CORNER

Casserole Adds Wheat Germ For Goodness Sake

Roadside produce stands and home gardens are full of fresh vegetables just ripe for the picking.

Take advantage of this in-season, inexpensive produce in your favorite dishes...perhaps one like Ratatouille Casserole. This recipe calls for a combination of much of the best the season has to offer—eggplant, tomatoes, zucchini and complements them with that year-round favorite, wheat germ.

This dish not only aims for a variety of colors and flavors but for good nutrition as well. Kretschmer Wheat Germ is one of the most convenient ways to add vitamins and minerals naturally—for goodness sake. It can be used as a baking ingredient, garnish or add-on to cereal, fruit or yogurt. Vacuum-packed regular wheat germ has the added benefit of being fresh from the jar and has a wonderful nutty flavor because it's toasted.

Wheat Germ Ratatouille Casserole is a perfect opportunity to fall in love with wheat germ for the first time, or for long-time fans to utilize its crunchy appeal in yet another novel way.

WHEAT GERM RATATOUILLE CASSEROLE

4 slices bacon, diced
1/2 medium eggplant, cut into 1/2 inch cubes
1 medium onion, cut into wedges
1 medium zucchini, sliced
2/3 cup Kretschmer Regular Wheat Germ
2 cups (8 oz.) Monterey Jack cheese, grated
2 medium tomatoes, sliced
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1/4 cup water
1/2 to 1 teaspoon crushed oregano leaves
1/2 teaspoon crushed marjoram leaves
1/4 teaspoon crushed rosemary leaves
1/4 teaspoon salt

Fry bacon in large skillet until almost crisp. Add eggplant, onion and zucchini. Saute until eggplant is tender, about ten minutes. Place half the vegetables in four individual casseroles (one and a half to two-cup size). Spoon wheat germ on vegetables. Sprinkle with half the cheese. Top with tomatoes and remaining vegetables. Combine tomato sauce, water and seasonings. Pour over vegetables. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Bake uncovered at 375° for 20 minutes until hot. Serves four.

For more recipes, order the new 64-page Kretschmer Wheat Germ recipe book. Send $1.25 (check or money order) to: "Something for Everyone," P.O. Box 302-A, Milwaukee, WI 53201.

Reunion Open House

The ten children of the late Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Halvorson and their families are having a reunion the weekend of July 29-31 at the farm home of Harold and Alpha Halvorson, with pot luck picnic dinners at noon both Saturday and Sunday. Open house will be held Sunday afternoon in honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Lester and Thelma Halvorson. No gifts, please. All friends and relatives are invited.

Senior Citizens' Recreation Club Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe furnished a ride to Fargo Saturday, July 16 for Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas, Mrs. Myrtle Rude and Mrs. Ethel Moe. The three passengers stayed in Fargo overnight and left the next morning on the Yellowstone-Teton bus tour sponsored by the Senior Citizens' recreation club, together with seven other senior citizens from Thief River Falls, making a total of 46 who enjoyed the trip. From Fargo they went to Bear-Tooth Pass and from there to the Yellowstone National Park where they saw Old Faithful erupt twice. Their next stop was at Jackson Hole in Wyoming where they toured the Chapel of Transfiguration and then on to Cody, Wyo. where they enjoyed going through the Buffalo Bill museum. At Spearfish, S.D. they saw the Black Hills Passion Play, which was very interesting and beautiful. From there they went to Deadwood, S.D. which is the trade center for the Black Hills mining region. They got back to Fargo Friday, July 22 and spent the next day shopping in Fargo. They also visited Bernice's brother, Emil, who lives at Kristine, a little town just out of Fargo. They returned to Thief River Falls by bus Saturday evening after a very enjoyable and interesting trip having covered over 2,000 miles.

Mrs. Alfred Solem attended a brunch and ALCW meeting at Trinity Lutheran church Monday forenoon, July 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Moe were Sunday evening visitors at the home of Pete and Eleanor Bradley.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson are the proud grandparents of another grandson, Michael Thomas, whose parents are Nick and Debi Drees. He was born Tuesday morning, July 19, which is Alpha Halvorson's birthday. Michael weighed 9 lbs., 9¾ oz. at birth. He has a two year old brother, Nicholas David. Congratulations.

Folks from our area have been busy the past week exhibiting and attending the Pennington county fair in Thief River Falls. Many reports have been heard that it was one of the best fairs held locally with a very good variety of exhibits both in the barns and the arena. Congratulations are extended to all 4-H members and leaders who contributed so much to the interest of everyone and who did so very well, not only with exhibits but also with demonstrations.

The birthday club to which Mrs. Clara Jaennette belongs met Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Linda Meritt in Thief River Falls. Others present not already mentioned were Mrs. Anne Muzzy, Mrs. Sadie Bugge who brought the birthday cake, Mrs. Marie Fischer and Mrs. Arneda Mathieu, the birthday guest.

Mrs. Dale Ranum treated Mrs. Clara Jaennette to breakfast Monday morning at the Best Western in honor of Clara's birthday, which is July 26th.

In India where 65 per cent of the people are farmers, two-thirds of the income goes for food. In Russia, 39 per cent are farmers, and more than half the income goes for food. In the U.S., two per cent are farmers, and less than 20 per cent income goes for food.

Band Concerts Had Major Role In U.S. History

by Mary Combs
Smithsonian news service

The sound of the band, the smell of hot dogs, hamburgers and mustard, the screams and laughter of children and the murmur of mosquitoes filled the hot summer air. Farm families sat in wagons lined up along the hitching racks, boys and girls walked hand in hand under the trees or met around the lemonade booths. Small boys crawled among the music stands or sat around the edges of the bandstand, banging their heels on the sides in time to the music, cracking peanuts and munching popcorn.

Meanwhile, led by the professor, the band played on, trying not to inhale too many bugs, fanning the hot sticky seats of their chairs with their caps during intermission, the openings in their uniform fronts getting lower and lower as the pitch of their instruments rose with the heat. At last, the "Star-Spangled Banner" was played and the instruments put away while small boys watched in envy and wonder. Couples strolled home to porch swings and families drove home through the dark lanes. The band concert was over — until next week.

That's the way it was in Anytown, U.S.A., any summer between 1890 and 1910, when the passion for brass bands that swept the nation in the last half of the 19th century was at its peak. Sometimes the band performed in a canvas-roofed stand, set in a different location on Main Street each week, as local merchants took turns cashing in on the band's activities. But by the 1890s, most communities boasted a permanent bandstand, in the town square, perched on a hill or snuggled among trees in the park.

Some were rustic, with bark still on the wood, some were painted forest green to blend with a sylvan setting. But most were white, and the Victorian fancy for ornament often produced a structure that would not have looked out of place on a wedding cake.

Bandstands and the bands which played in them are a vital part of the history of popular entertainment in this country, and at the Smithsonian's national museum of American history in Washington, D.C., a new project is examining one small piece of that history, a bandstand newly acquired from the Jacksonville, IL mental health developmental center.

Eventually, the bandstand will become a setting for performances and re-creations of period concerts. "It's a unique opportunity for us," Carl Scheele, curator in the museum's division of community life, says. "We can take this beautiful structure without depriving the community — since an almost identical twin 'sister' bandstand remains there."

Band at Jacksonville state hospital, made up of patients, employees and members of employees' families (who lived on the grounds), was organized by 1872, and the stand was built seven years later. In those days before artifical amplification, it was designed to project the music toward the buildings so the patients indoors could hear.

While the bandstand is being restored, James Davis, professor in the department of history at Illinois college, and Dwight Bowers, of Smithsonian performing arts, will spend months on research, collecting information on the stand, asking residents of the area to go back into their trunks and attics and memories. In the end, they hope to produce a picture of the role this structure played in the community of Jacksonville and a welcome addition to the hitherto somewhat neglected history of bandstands in the United States.

Bands have been part of U.S. history from the very beginning. Musicians came with the first settlers — including the Puritans, whose reputation for shunning music is totally undeserved. New England, in fact, later developed a reputation as the home of the fine brass band. Each new wave of immigrants brought its contribution to American band music.

First organized bands were those attached to the Army and Navy. Players and their instruments were sometimes prizes of war. In 1807, one American naval commander shanghaied an unlucky Italian band, but later the British "bandnapped" it away.

Military bands, however, were not confined to military activities — in fact, players needed the extra money they earned by "moonlighting." (American military bands lost that privilege in 1908.) The industrial age made improved instruments available to more and more musicians, both professional and amateur. "During the Revolutionary war," Bowers explains, "your average band had eight members. By 1870, it could boast as many as 60."

Bands had no competition in the field of popular music. Especially in the West and South, Army bands were the only entertainment for civilians for many years and served multiple duty in minstrel shows, vaudeville and traveling theater. Professional civilian bands started organizing in the 1840s, by the 1850s the brass band movement was picking up steam and by the end of the Civil war there was no stopping it.

There were three types of brass or "military" bands in the late 19th century: those actually attached to the military, the professional business bands and the homegrown variety. The names of most professional bandleaders have faded into history. But that of Patrick Gilmore, the "Father of the American Band," may ring a bell because he has been immortalized in the lead-in to Merdeith Wilson's "76 Trombones."

Gilmore, who began his career just before the Civil War, would have approved of that song from "The Music Man" — itself a wonderful evocation of the magic of band music — with its 110 cornets, more than 1,000 reeds and "horns of every shape and kind." He parlayed showmanship and his sense of public taste into great success and had a profound effect on every band that came after him. Gilmore was noted for spectacular extravaganzas. In Boston in 1869, his second World Peace jubilee featured a chorus of 10,000, 1,000 instrumentalists, 100 anvils, two batteries of cannon and bells of the major Boston churches.

Gilmore was buried on Sept. 25, 1892. The next day, a newly formed band gave its inaugural concert, opening with a tribute to him. After 12 years as leader of the U.S. marine band, John Philip Sousa had decided to form his own, believing "that all over the country there was a demand for high-class military music."

By military music, Sousa did not mean just marches. Following the path set by Gilmore, he placed Wagnerian overtures and Liszt rhapsodies side by side on the program with "Dixie," "The Stars and Stripes Forever" (his own work), "Old Folks at Home" and "There'll be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." His success was instantaneous, phenomenal and permanent.

Professional bands played year-round in amusement parks and gardens, resorts, Chautauqua, concert halls and the perpetual round of expositions and fairs that peppered the calendars of the late 19th and very early 20th centuries. Competition was fierce.

Two bands were composed, so to speak, of the butcher, baker and candle-stick maker. Those among them who were veterans of the Civil War might have remembered how the whole band had enlisted, serving as medics in early years of the war and winning praise from military leaders — Sheridan, Lee, Stuart — who considered music vital to morale.

Local merchants usually bore most of the costs. Occasionally, the band played for money at concerts, picnics, excursions and political rallies. When a traveling theater came to town, the manager — often to his sorrow — would hire locals to beef up his orchestra. And at least once a week during the summer there was a free performance for all to share.

And there was always the dream, sometimes realized, that the hometown band would prove a stepping stone to one of the great professional bands.

Municipal groups, manufacturing companies, colleges and universities jumped on the bandwagon. There was a great boom in the business of selling and making uniforms and accessories as well as gleaming instruments. In 1908, "Sears Roebuck" carried "four magnificent lines" of instruments; everything a band could desire, from 55-cent triangle beaters to an $88.95 silver-plated tuba, all in a separate catalog that included instructions on how to select and purchase equipment, organize and manage a band.

"You probably know of some band about to be organized," the catalog said, and it was probably right. In 1889, "Harper's Weekly" estimated there were over 10,000 military (i.e., brass) bands in the United States. By 1890, an estimated 20,000 were blaring away.

By the 1920s, the automobile, radio, phonograph, movies, jazz, and vaudeville had drawn away an audience, already saturated with band music, whose newly sophisticated ear was increasingly less tolerant of the flaws of amateur performances. The effects were felt by both amateur and professional bands. Sousa's band was the great exception, prospering until his death in 1932. Brass bands became the property of high schools and colleges, courted by the manufacturers who turned to them as the craze faded.

Here and there, around the country, a few rare bands have continued the traditions. Yet there is a glimmer on the horizon. "Within the past five years," Bowers reports, "there has been a really serious renewed interest in brass band music and history." New bands have been formed, studios are cutting records.

"Once it becomes a commercial phenomenon," he says, "anything can happen. We may be at the start of the renaissance of the adult amateur brass band. There are plenty of people out there who know how to play the music." Maybe they'll realize they can keep their trombones even after they grow up.

STRESS: HOW IT AFFECTS YOU

People who live under constant pressure or stress are more likely to have a heart attack than people who live at a more relaxed or slower pace.

If you feel stress may be harming you, ask your doctor to recommend ways of dealing with your problems or ways of slowing down or relaxing.

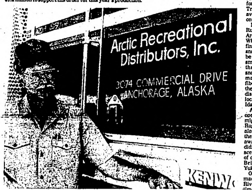
Dealer And Driver Share Interest In Arctic Cat

ALASKA DISTRIBUTOR Dennis Dunham of Anchorage (left) visits with Arctco president and chief executive officer Bill Ness following ribbon cutting ceremonies for the first snowmobile off the production line Monday. Dunham heads Arctic Recreational Products in Anchorage which has distributed about 1,200 Arctic Cat snowmobiles annually in the past. Dunham was an early supporter of Arctco's attempts to revive Arctic Cat manufacture and provided a letter of credit for $1.2 million to support his order for this year's production.



BOB RUGLAND is back on the job again, hauling Arctic Cat snowmobiles from Thief River Falls along a 3,000-mile route to Anchorage, Alaska. He left Thursday morning on his 75th trip. When he gets back for another load, he will have put in some 450,000 miles on the run in the last 10 years. Rugland also hauled the first semi-load of Arctic Cats ever shipped out of Thief River Falls, hauling them to Idaho Falls, Idaho. In making the Alaska run he drives a truck owned by Dennis Dunham, owner of Arctic Recreational Distributors, Inc.

When Arctic Cats again began rolling off the production line in Thief River Falls last week, two people who live thousands of miles apart but share a common interest in snowmobiles were mighty happy. They were Dennis Dunham of Anchorage, Alaska, and Bob Rugland of Thief River Falls.

Dunham operates Arctic Recreational Distributors, Inc., in Anchorage and sells snowmobiles throughout that huge, sparsely populated state. Rugland provides the link between manufacturer and distributor by driving the truck that transports Arctic Cats on the 3,000-mile trip. He left Thursday morning with his first load of machines produced by Arctco, Inc., and expects to make two round trips a month from now until about Christmas time.

Rugland, whose brother Steve was once a vice president of Arctic Enterprises and now operates Falls Surplus, lists Thief River Falls as home but could legitimately be considered a resident of his truck. Driving for Dunham, for North Star Transport of others, he averages 110,000 miles a year on the road.

No stranger to trucking, Rugland is no stranger to an Arctic Cat payload, either. When Arctic Enterprises finally manufactured enough snowmobiles so they couldn't be delivered in a pickup or small truck, Rugland hauled the first semi load of snowmobiles. They were red machines with white fiberglass hoods, came out of the plant where the school district service center is now located, and were hauled to Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Although the run is a long one — and one would think it might be monotonous — Rugland prefers to drive it alone. He says emphatically there is no problem staying awake on the Alaska run, but didn't say if it was due to the scenery, wildlife or 500 miles of dirt and gravel highway in British Columbia and the Yukon.

Over the years Rugland has made the trip from Thief River Falls to Anchorage 74 times and will run the circuit another eight to 10 times this year. The haul involves 36 to 40 snowmobiles north and usually an empty truck back, the trip taking six days each way. "But I wouldn't run double with Zsa Zsa Gabor even if she could drive," he quipped.

When he started hauling snowmobiles on the Anchorage run, there were 1,200 miles of dirt and gravel road between here and there. Improvements have been great but much remains to be done.

The truck Rugland drives is owned by Dunham and has sat idle since the Arctic Enterprises plant was closed. When Bob isn't trucking for Dennis, he drives for North Star Transport, a company he has worked for eight years. When we talked to him Wednesday, his truck was loaded with 38 new snowmobiles (at 570 pounds crated weight each) and attempts were being made to squeeze another three or four into an enclosed cargo area.

Despite Rugland's regular driving for the rest of this year, he won't be able to get the job done for his employer. Some of the machines Dunham has on order will have to be hauled to Seattle and sent by freighter to assure timely delivery. Dennis has ordered 550 machines — nearly 20 per cent of Arctco's total anticipated volume this year — but less than half of what he believes he could have sold.

"We have sold an average of 1,200 snowmobiles a year," Dunham said of the distributing company he has operated since 1972. "Most of them are used in western Alaska. They are a means of transportation and there is almost always enough snow in the winter so snowmobiles can be used."

Originally from Ross, a small town near Roseau, Dunham moved to Alaska in 1952. He worked on construction and in 1965 started his own contracting business. He knew Edgar Hetteen personally and made initial contact with him about the Alaska distributorship. It has been good for him and should RAILROAD ARTISANS Dennis Kezar (left) and Llewellyn (Gubby) Lane pose with the Dan-D Railroad steam engine by the depot they built on the Kezar farm. Named Jenkins Station in honor of Soo Line railroader Bob Jenkins who died several years ago, the depot will be equipped with railroad photos, telegrapher key and other memorabilia. Lane designed the station and the caboose which was built as an additional car for the train. The Dan-D Railroad is named in memory of Danny Dean Kezar, the Dennis Kezars' 20-year-old son who was just beginning a railroading career when he died in a mobile home fire on the Kezar farm Nov. 21, 1978. The Kezars expect to have the train running for the public in late August.

Home Railroad Developed At Dennis Kezar's Farm

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Dennis Kezar doesn't get enough of railroading as a Soo Line engineer, so over the past five years he has developed his own railroad at home. It's not the kind he could set up in the basement. The one-fourth scale Dan-D Railroad has a steam engine, passenger car, caboose and 448 yards of track complete with depot and water tower. . . and it hauls people.

"I've been thinking about this for the past 20 years," Kezar confided during an interview on his farm located one mile south and one-half mile west of Thief River Falls. "But we really started working on it only about five years ago, and everything didn't start coming into place until the past year or so."

Knowing the enjoyment children get out of riding on the train, Kezar plans to make it available to the public at various times throughout the year. He enjoys running the engine and seeing children have fun as the result of his efforts. And although he won't sell tickets, he will accept donations which he hopes will help to keep the railroad operating and perhaps even expand.

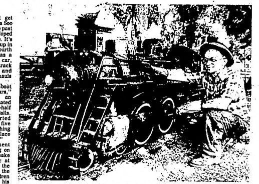
"We have been doing it for our own enjoyment, but it does get to be quite costly," Kezar said. He purchased the steam locomotive and one passenger car in Amarillo, TX, three years ago, but built the caboose, roadbed and track, water tower, turntable and depot himself — with the assistance of family and friends.

The track is constructed of two-inch challen iron purchased in random lengths and welded into 120-foot sections. Each section is joined to the next with a half-inch angle bar. In preparation for laying the track a number of trees had to be cleared and 60 cubic yards of gravel was hauled to create the roadbed.

Ties for the railroad are made of 2x4, 2x6 or 2x8 salvage lumber which Kezar treated for preservation and authenticity by dipping in hot used crankcase oil. He used about 1,800 ties in laying the present main line track and 120 feet of roundhouse lead which permits the train to be placed in roundhouse storage.

The tracks are not fastened to the ties, but are held together in proper spacing by half-inch rods welded between the tracks at 25-inch intervals. The tracks were laid in the summer of 1982 and the caboose was also built last summer.

Kezar built the caboose from scratch, turning the wheels from highly tempered steel, fashioning the springs from automobile valve springs, constructing the undercarriage and frame base from one-inch flat iron and three-inch channel iron. The main body of the car is constructed of Wainscoting attached to a wooden frame which was assembled with glued joints and screws for strength. It is 12 feet long, six feet high and weighs about 500 pounds.



DENNIS KEZAR has been having a lot of fun with the one-fourth scale railroad he has created on his farm one mile south and one-half mile west of Thief River Falls. He bought the engine and one car in Texas, built his own caboose, and has built and laid 448 yards of mainline track and 120 feet of roundhouse lead through the farm yard.

Llewellyn (Gubby) Lane designed the caboose as well as the depot which was build just this year. The depot has a wood platform and the interior is decorated with railroad pictures and memorabilia, including a telegrapher's key and several railroad lanterns.

Bemidji Airlines Starts Service Here August 21

In preparation for its replacement carrier service at the Thief River Falls regional airport, Bemidji Airlines has hired six new pilots and is employing three station agents to operate the Thief River Falls office, according to Barb Berggren, general manager of the airline.

Bemidji Airlines has been selected by the federal Civil Aeronautics board (CAB) to replace Republic Airlines as provider of essential air service for Thief River Falls. Although the CAB decision is being appealed, Bemidji Airlines is moving ahead with plans to inaugurate the service on August 21.

Larry Diffley, president of Bemidji Airlines, said the new service will provide five round-trip flights each day on weekdays to Minneapolis-St. Paul regional airport and three round-trips on Saturdays and Sundays.

Jerry Parnham of Thief River Falls has been hired as a captain on the run from Thief River Falls and five other pilots will be transferred to Thief River Falls. They include Jim Pederson of Crookston, Joel Hartfiel of New Ulm, Joe Poullot of Prior Lake, Dave Johnson of Minneapolis and Lew Snitchler of Marshfield, WI. Johnson and Snitchler will be moving their families to Thief River Falls.

Pilots based in Bemidji will be Jim Lightfoot of White Bear Lake, Mark Spanier of New Hope and Jon Paschka of Drayton, ND. Paschka will be chief pilot.

The airline has served Thief River Falls since September of 1982 with one round-trip daily Monday through Friday. The company was established on Dec. 7, 1981, when it provided two round-trips daily between Bemidji and Minneapolis. Last summer a third round-trip was added and weekend service was initiated.

Bemidji Airlines operates two Beechcraft Queen Air airplanes, which are nine-passenger aircraft. Dave Peterson of Thief River Falls will be one of three station agents required to operate the office at the regional airport here, and will be available to provide flight arrival and freight information.

Flights to Minneapolis from Thief River Falls will leave the regional airport here Monday through Friday at 6:45 and 10:15 a.m., 12 noon and 2:55 and 4:10 p.m. with respective arrivals in Minneapolis at 8:15 a.m., 12:05, 1:50, 4:45 and 6 p.m.

Flights from Minneapolis to Thief River Falls will leave Monday through Friday at 8:10 and 9:30 a.m., 12:25, 2:05 and 6:15 p.m. with arrival in Thief River Falls at 10 and 11:20 a.m., 2:15, 3:55 and 7:45 p.m.

Flights on Saturday and Sunday will leave Thief River Falls for Minneapolis at 6:45 a.m., 12 noon and 4:10 p.m. with arrival at 8:15, 1:50 and 6 p.m. Flights from Minneapolis on weekends will leave at 9:30 a.m., 2:05 and 6:15 p.m. with arrival at 11:20 a.m., 3:55 and 7:45 p.m.

The first flight from Thief River Falls to Minneapolis in the morning and the last one from Minneapolis to Thief River Falls in the evening are non-stop flights. The other flights are scheduled to make one stop in Bemidji.

General manager Berggren said that at the Minneapolis-St. Paul international airport, Bemidji Airlines flights arrive and depart from Gate 73, lower level on the green concourse of the main terminal. Air fare between Thief River Falls and Minneapolis is listed at $85 one way.

Republic Airlines is scheduled to provide its final service to Thief River Falls on Sunday, August 21, with the flight arriving here at 5:12 p.m. and departing for Minneapolis-St. Paul at 5:32 p.m. to be the last Republic plane landing here. Republic personnel have taken reassignment and will be leaving Thief River Falls following termination of service here.

Morris Howick Nominated For Hospital Board

Morris Howick of Thief River Falls has been nominated by petition as a candidate for election to the board of trustees of Northwestern hospital services. Nominations by members of the association remain open until August 15.

In accordance with by-laws of the association, nomination by the membership must be accompanied by the signature of five members of the association and a statement of willingness to serve by the nominee. Nominators for Howick are Harry E. Simons, Joyce Fox, L. Gordon Ballingrud, Andy Skaar, Randall Noper and J.M. Roche.

Call 681-2116 For Day Camp Registration

Telephone number to call to register for the 4-H day camps at Goodridge and Thief River Falls is 681-2116. A news story in Wednesday's edition of the Times contained a typographical error which resulted in a wrong number being listed.

Day camps will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. August 9 through 12 at the Pennington county sportsmen club park north of Thief River Falls, and August 16-19 at the park in Goodridge.

Orientation At Lincoln For Ninth Graders

Orientation for ninth graders at Lincoln high school will be conducted August 16, 17, 18 and 19 with ninth graders and their parents requested to attend one of these sessions.

Whitey Olson, Lincoln guidance director, said that the student's schedule for 1983-84 will be reviewed along with the student's cumulative folder. Information on opening day procedures will be presented and tours of Lincoln and the school district service center will be given.

For an appointment contact the Lincoln guidance office at 681-2700, extension 247.

TRFEA Offers Settlement At 20% Increase

Following about three hours of negotiations Tuesday evening in the School District 564 service center, the Thief River Falls Education association (TRFEA) presented what was termed a "settlement proposal" to the board of education. The proposal called for an unspecified package of a 20 per cent increase in salary and benefits over a two-year period plus certain contract language changes.

Asked about the "settlement offer", Supt. Robert Block said the TRFEA offer was definitely a positive sign, but that the district's financial condition would indicate that the parties are still far from reaching an agreement.

Earlier in the evening the board had presented a counter proposal which did not address salary or benefit increases but contained a number of items regarding contract language. The TRFEA negotiating team rejected the proposal and countered with a demand $50,000 less than had been initially requested. The school administration had projected the initial proposal by the teachers to represent a 53 per cent increase, with one per cent equivalent to $30,000.

The school board is still proposing no increase in salary or benefits, citing a lack of ability to provide dollars for such increases.

The TRFEA "Settlement offer" was presented as an evening storm approached Thief River Falls from the southwest. The meeting was hurriedly adjourned due to the threatening weather and another meeting set for August 24.

Supt. Block noted that the budget priorities of the board have been "doggedly debated" in recent rounds of budget cuts and that attention was called to this fact at the July 27 negotiating session.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Jodi Lian-Duran Olson Vows Spoken at Grygla

Jodi Lynn Lian and Duran Keith Olson exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, June 18, at 7:00 p.m., at Grace Lutheran church in Grygla.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Lian of Grygla. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Morris Olson, Thief River Falls.

Rev. Percy Smerek officiated at the double ring ceremony in the sanctuary graced with candle lit lanterns in the windows and candelabra at the parents' pews. Organist and pianist was Bernice Jelle. She played the traditional "Wedding March" by Wagner as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. The couple was given in marriage by their parents.

Vocalists were Glenda Olson, sister-in-law of the groom, and Larry Torgerson, a friend. Selections were "The Rose," "Song of Ruth," "God, A Woman, and A Man," and "The Lord's Prayer." Michelle Hovet, a cousin of the bride, read "Marriage Takes Three," and "I Love You."

The bride wore a white organza gown featuring a high mandarin collar, full bishop sleeves and an A-line skirt with a cathedral train. Re-embroidered Chantilly lace and seed pearls accented the bodice, cuffs and flounced hemline. Her fingertip veil was held by a lace and hand-pearled crown. She carried a cascade bouquet of mauve rose Sweetheart roses, white azaleas tipped in raspberry, silver starflowers and rose ribbon streamers.

The groom was attired in a silver Hampton jacket with gray trim, silver vest and trousers, a white pleated shirt and a boutonniere featuring two mauve roses and babies' breath.

Jaylene Lian, Grygla, attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Julie Cymbaluk, Crookston, a friend, and Cathy Olson, Thief River Falls, a sister of the groom. Junior bridesmaid was Dianna Olson, a sister of the groom. Serving as flower girls were Jennifer Lian, Grygla, and Hope Dahl, Middle River, cousins of the bride. All wore mauve floor-length gowns styled with three-quarter-length sleeves, sheer yokes with stand-up collars, and ruffles at the yoke and hem. The bridesmaids carried white lace fans with white ribbon streamers; and the flower girls carried white lace baskets, all decorated with flowers matching those in the bride's bouquet. Their lockets were gifts from the bride.

Best man was Ross Olson, a brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Eldon Myers, friend of the groom, and David Olson, a brother. Junior groomsman was Ryan Hovet, a cousin of the bride. All are Thief River Falls residents. Ushers were Donavon Dahl, Middle River, and Jeffrey Olson, Thief River Falls, cousins of the bride and groom, respectively. Their attire was similar to the groom's.

Serving as usherettes were Natalie and Linette Olson, sisters of the groom. Their street-length dresses of light rose sheer print over mauve were fashioned with square necklines and three-quarter-length puffed sleeves. Complementing their attire were wrist corsages of mauve roses and white azaleas, tipped in raspberry.

The mother of the bride was attired in a medium blue street-length dress topped by a matching lace jacket. The groom's mother wore a medium blue dress accented with deep blue beading. Their corsages were of white azaleas, tipped in mauve, raspberry starflowers and white ribbon. The fathers were attired like the groomsmen.

Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Lian, Grygla, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Olson and Inga Huseth, Thief River Falls, grandparents of the groom; Audrey and Art Johnson, Grygla, and Mable Schulz, Onalaska, Wis., great-aunts and great-uncle of the bride, and Merilee Olson, Thief River Falls, sister of the groom, who served as the bride's personal attendant.

Host and hostess couples at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Curtiss Hovet and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Olson, uncles and aunts of the bride and groom, respectively. At the guest book were Wes and Shelly Swanson, friends of the couple. Gifts were carried by the bride's cousins, Crystal and Christopher Lian. At the gift table were Pam Mostrom, friend of the bride, Jackie Rieck and Lou Ann Dahl, cousins of the bride.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. At the punch table were Randy and Cory Jorde, friends of the couple. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, supported by pillars and decorated with bells and a sugar mold Bible. Topping the upper tier was a silver cross with wedding rings and wedding bells. The cake was baked by Jannie Peterson, Grygla, and was cut and served by Anna Westberg, and Sharon Olson, aunts of the bride and groom. Pouring coffee were Erma Dahl and Barbara Olson, godmothers of the bride and groom, respectively. Waitresses were Michelle and Stephanie Hovet, Nichole Lian, Lorrie Dahl, cousins of the bride, and Jennifer Olson, cousin of the groom. The reception was served by members of the Eve circle of Grace Lutheran church.

Following a wedding trip along the North Shore of Lake Superior, the couple is at home at Rural Route 1, Thief River Falls. The bride is a 1979 graduate of Grygla high school and a 1983 graduate of Moorhead State university with degrees in elementary and special education. The groom is a 1974 graduate of Lincoln high school. He attended the Thief River Falls AVTI and is presently engaged in farming. Photo, Haugen photography, Goodridge.

L. Halvorsons Are Honored On 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Halvorson were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday afternoon, July 31, at an open house at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson.

The reunion culminated the reunion of all 10 children of the late Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Halvorson held that weekend at the Halvorson home.

For the occasion, Mrs. Halvorson was presented with a corsage of white chrysanthemums and a red rosebud, tied with a gold and white ribbon. Halvorson was given a white carnation boutonniere, tipped in red. The flowers were gifts from their sister-in-law, Alpha Halvorson.

During the afternoon, cake, ice cream and coffee were served. Centering the serving table was a two-tiered anniversary cake decorated with yellow roses and golden leaves, and topped with a 50th anniversary emblem. Also on the table was a corresponding sheet cake inscribed with the couple's names. The cakes, baked and decorated by Margaret Rupprecht, were cut and served by granddaughter, Nancy Halvorson of Minneapolis. A granddaughter-in-law, Jayne Halvorson, also of Minneapolis, served the ice cream. Rebecca Solem presided at the guest book, a gift from Nancy Halvorson.

Among the guests registered were relatives and friends from Anchorage, Alaska; Denver, Colo.; Williams, Duluth, Minneapolis, Detroit Lakes, Holt and Thief River Falls.

Toastmasters Meeting Set For August 9

Northwest Toastmasters will be meeting Tuesday, August 9, at 7:00 a.m., at the Pennington county courthouse basement meeting room.

Toastmaster of the morning will be Randy Adamson with Ron Martin and Carletta Tierney as speakers. Table topics will be presented by Greg Pribula. Deb Ernst will be the timer, Cliff Swanson, the wizard of Ahhs, and Al Rux, the grammarian.

Greg Pribula was the lone speaker at the meeting of the club held July 26. His topic was E.M.R., Extra Martial Relationships. He stressed the importance of communication in all relationships.

Table topics were based on summer activities. Ken Yutrzenka was winner giving information on his dream summer cabin and lake spot. Ron Martin was in the charge of the meeting and introductions of participants.

Guests are welcome to attend the meetings.

Correction-Addition

Several names were inadvertently omitted from the account of the Eidelbes family reunion published in a recent edition of the Times. Also attending the event were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tharaldson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Tharaldson and Ashley, Randy Tharaldson and Tara, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sjulestad and family, all of Goodridge; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Eidelbes, Minneapolis; Mrs. Bernard Fallon, Plummer; and Mrs. Randy Wright and Greg Sjulestad of Thief River Falls.

Local WCTU Hears Report Of World Meeting

Centennial observance of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union highlighted the 29th triennial convention of the organization held July 11-19 at the Hamilton hotel in Itasca, Ill.

At the convention, special tribute was paid to Francis E. Willard, founder of the World WCTU and instigator of the Polyglot petition, the first world-wide proclamation against the liquor traffic and opium trade which marked the beginning of world temperance reform.

It was noted that in order to secure more than 7,500,000 signatures on the petition, the project took nine years to complete. Heading the drive was world missionary Mary Clement Leavitt, who obtained the signatures in 50 languages and on various sizes and kinds of paper. Later a two-year task was required to mount the petitions on 2,000 yards of 18 inch wide white muslin, bound with red and blue braid. The rolls, stored on tiered shelves, were first displayed at world and national conventions but now are permanently exhibited in the Willard House museum in Evanston, Ill.

Heading the convention was World President Millicent Harry of Australia. Other officers were from Norway, England, Tesimania, South Africa and the United States. The USA National officers Mrs. Kermit Edgar, Mrs. R. Roy Jarrett, Juanita Whisler, Margaret Gee and Mrs. James Hatfield served as hostess officers. World departmental superintendents were from United States, Switzerland, Scotland, England, Finland, Canada, Australia and the Philippines.

Resolutions passed stressed the efforts to make illegal the transmission of obscene or pornographic materials in publications, films, television, radio programs, and cable television; the establishing of a "Right to Health," a basic human right, making it a fundamental offense to mutilate the female body; the urging of all airlines to discontinue the sale of alcoholic beverages and the serving of free alcoholic beverages on planes; and the continued efforts to curtail the advertising of alcoholic beverages in all mass media;

Also stressing that all national leaders exert every effort to maintain peace; the recommendation that drinking laws are strengthened by setting a more realistic level of .05 per cent or lower as the maximum alcohol blood content in driving under the influence; the stressing of abstinence of the consumption of alcohol by women of childbearing age to reduce the cogenital malformation and mental deficiencies in offspring; and that the advertising of cigarettes in mass media be illegal and that governments support all possible scientific research and education against smoking marijuana. An appeal was also made by Japan WCTU for the abolishment of nuclear weapons.

In her keynote address, President Harry quoted Thomas Arnold, "Two things we ought to learn from history: one that we are not in ourselves superior to our fathers; another that we are shamelessly and mostrously inferior to them if we do not advance beyond them." In reviewing her work in the past three years, and her travels to various countries around the world, she said that the extension of the WCTU work is one of tomorrow's greatest and most sacred obligations. She concluded by saying "through prayer, we can make today and tomorrow more meaningful than yesterday was."

Reports were also given by representatives of the children's programs, UNICEF and Loyal Temperance Legion. They stressed intensified child health care programs.

The convention also included numerous speech contests. Included was a men's contest, stressing that alcoholic beverages demoralizes, making people violent and dangerous; that alcoholism is not a disease, like measles, but is self-inflicted; and that alcohol is not essential to a healthy, happy life.

The report of the World convention was given at the regular meeting of the local WCTU held Friday, July 29, at the Community room at the Riverside Terrace. Reading the report was Mrs. Tarkel Ose, who attended the convention as a visitor. She was assisted by other members of the local group.

G. Merck-D. Tougas To Wed In September

Gloria Merck and Duane Tougas, both of Thief River Falls, announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage.

Both are employed in this city at Northwestern hospital.

The wedding ceremony will take place September 24 at St. Bernard's Catholic church.

Women's Aglow Meet-Retreat Are Scheduled

Two meetings are scheduled by the Women's Aglow Fellowship.

The local meeting will be held Friday, August 12, at 7:30 p.m., at the basement meeting room in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Guest speaker will be Curt (Jake) Jacobson of Detroit Lakes and formerly of Mahnomen. A reformed alcoholic, Jacobson is an ordained minister with Northern Lights missionary out-reach in northern Canada and southern Texas. He will give information on his deliverance from alcoholism and the healing miracles of his youngest child, born blind, who was healed of his other 12 afflictions.

The public is welcome to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

The second event is the Northwestern Minnesota Women's Aglow Fellowship retreat set for August 19-20 at Oak Hills. Guest speaker will be Charlyne "B" Beach, the organization's International field representative, who ministers to church youth groups, in a coffee house with the Christian Motorcyclist's association.

Advanced registration will be appreciated. Mail advanced registrations of $30 for the complete retreat; $15 for one day; and $5.00 for drop-ins to Karen Jensen, Box 5, Hackensack, MN 56452. Make checks payable to Women's Aglow Fellowship. The cost includes four meals, lodging at the Oak Hills dorms, and the use of recreational facilities.

Henry Anenson Is Honored On 75th Birthday

Approximately 150 relatives and friends gathered at the Henry Anenson farm home on Sunday, July 3, to help Anenson celebrate his 75th birthday.

Hosting the event, which included a dinner, luncheon and supper, were his 10 children and their spouses. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Ed (Mavis) Pickler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Manson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Brenda) Gulbranson, all of Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Larry Anenson, Beulah, N.D.; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Anenson, Thief River Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Burnell) Nynas, Hibbing, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie (Arlys) Proulx, Crookston; and Christy Anenson, at home.

Unable to be present but sending greetings were his daughter Orlena and her husband John Marcel of Pensacola, Fla.

Also present were a number of Anenson's 32 grandchildren. He also has two great-grandchildren.

Centering the serving table for the open house was a decorated birthday cake.

The honored guest received numerous cards and gifts to mark the occasion.

Monday Films Planned At NW Library In TRF

Northwest regional library has announced the titles of movies which it will be showing in the library meeting room at 2 p.m. Mondays, August 8 and 15.

August 8 movies will be: "Wilbur's Story," an excerpt from the feature-length film, "Charlotte's Web," featuring Wilbur the pig; and "Up a Tree," a cartoon featuring Chip 'n' Dale, a pair of chipmunks involved in a hilarious battle with lumberjack Donald Duck, who attempts to saw down the tree they live in.

August 15 movies will be: "The Red Balloon," a famous, prize-winning film about a little boy and his balloon, set against the sights, sounds and moods of old Paris. It features superior photography, sensitive insights, and is suitable for all ages; and "Dorothy and the Ostrich," a story about the trouble which results when an ostrich egg, mindlessly taken as a souvenir, hatches.

Summerfest Race Results Now Released

Results of Jaycee Summerfest events not previously listed in the Times have now been obtained from organizers.

In all-terrain cycle motocross races, winners were recorded in three classes: (125 cc) Clay Sorteberg, first; Brian Johnson, second; and John Hjelle, third; (200X racing class) Elliot Baker, first; Gordy Jerpstra, second; and Frank Quiratz, third; (175-200 cc) Ron Proulx, first; Shawn Underule, second; and Jockel Kruse, third; (250 cc) Jim Buchana, first; Roger Blasky, second; and Wayne Blasky, third. Winners in each class were determined on the basis of total points after three heats of racing.

Canoe race was held on a 12 mile course on the Red Lake River, between Smiley Bride and the beach area at Bill LaFave park. Winning teams were Todd Bottem and Mark Johnson, first; Jim Langland and The Sote, second; Jeff and Noel Johnson, third; and a special award was given to Paul and Chad Helgeland for completing the race in spite of their lack of experience.

With 32 runners participating in the Streakers Challenge foot race, 11 were listed as first place winners in various classes. In the 6.2 mile (10 kilometer) race, first place was awarded to Lon Aune, men 18 and under; Ray Kvalvog, men 19 to 29; Lori Ulferts, women 19 to 29; Jim Langland, men 30 to 39; Lois Wang, women 30 to 39; Dick Zeman, men 40 and over; and Marilyn Zeman, women 40 and over.

In the two mile race, John Thompson was first and Roy Stewart was second for men 18 and under; Jackie Smith was first for women 18 and under; Russell Sorenson was first and Jim Dusek was second for men 19 and over; and Kristy Forsberg was first and Sally Wiltse was second for women 19 and over. The race was cosponsored by Pepsi Cola Bottling Company, TG Sporting Goods, Model Hair Shoppe and KSNR FM radio station.

1983 ASC Rates On Commodity Loans Released

Leo Orpen, chairman of the Marshall county agricultural stabilization and conservation (ASC) committee, announced the following 1983 commodity loan rates for Marshall county: wheat, $3.71; barley, $2.05; oats, $1.25; rye, $2.25; and corn, $2.49. To date, no rate has been received for 1983 crop soybeans.

Loans will mature nine months after the month in which the loan was taken out.

Orpen also announced that the three year reserve program has been changed as follows. 1983 crop grain will have to be under regular loan for nine months before it can go into the reserve. Also there are no increased loan rates for grain entering the reserve. Grain will enter the reserve program at the regular loan rate.

Producer will be required to pay interest for one year of the three year reserve agreement in the event the grain is bought back.

Storage payments for the reserve will be 26.5 cents for wheat, barley and corn. Storage on oats is 20 cents per bushel per year.

Orpen requested that farmers bring in their bin measurements when requesting a loan on 1983 crop grain.

School Board Meets Tonight

Thief River Falls board of education will meet tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the school district service center.

Discussion will include nursery school, agreement with Oakland Park nursing home, health books for Franklin middle school, towel service charge, swimming program, accounts receivable and check procedures policy, bus drivers, drug and alcohol policy and a number of personnel items.

Negotiations report is also on the schedule.

Applicators Of Pesticides Need To Be Licensed

In Minnesota, people who apply pesticides for hire or apply "restricted-use" pesticides as part of their jobs must be licensed by the Minnesota department of agriculture. Private applicators who apply pesticides on their own crops and property do not need a license, but must participate in a training program every three years to use "restricted-use" products.

To qualify for a license, a pesticide applicator must complete monitored examinations, meet financial requirements and pay a license fee. After that, participation in an approved pesticide applicator training program is necessary for relicensing.

Minnesota agricultural extension service offers an applicator's correspondence study course to help both commercial and non-commercial pesticide applicators meet their annual training requirements for licensing renewal. Enrollment begins immediately for the 1983 course.

An applicator qualifies for the correspondence study course if he did not attend one of the statewide pesticide workshops in early 1983; plans to be relicensed in 1984; and is licensed in one of the following categories: herbicide, fungicide-insecticide, turf and ornamentals, aquatic, forest spraying, seed treating, oak and elm disease, rights-of-way, agricultural pest control-animal and mosquito control.

To meet the October 1 enrollment deadline, contact the office of special programs, 405 Coffey Hall, 1420 Eckles Ave., St. Paul, MN. 55108; phone (612) 373-0725.

Grygla's Fall Festival Set August 12-14

Ralph E. Rundell, soil conservation technician with the soil conservation service at Grygla, has issued a reminder that the Grygla fall festival is coming on August 12, 13 and 14.

He noted that although many farm families might be deeply involved in harvest activities at that time, the SCS would again be sponsoring agricultural exhibits. Lists of the classes of exhibits being solicited are available at the office. Exhibits should be brought to the community center for display and judging.

Rundell also notes that in visiting with farmers in the area, he has found many with moderate to severe crop losses. These have been credited not only to direct loss from drowning out, but indirectly through loss of yield and quality due to heat. He says that barley yields have been reported in the 35 to 40 bushel range, with weights from 32 to 44 pounds per bushel. He also reports moderate to severe rust in oats, with some smut in grains and incidents of sunflower midge. Rundell commented, "I hope the late grains are better so there are some crops to sell in our area."

MOVS Class Is For Managers Of Volunteers

"If we only had more volunteers we could do this project!" is a statement that is all too common in these days of increasing needs and decreasing resources. However, recognizing the need and then filling it is no simple matter. This is evidenced by hundreds of requests for assistance that the Minnesota office on volunteer services (M.O.V.S.) receives each year.

To address this problem, M.O.V.S. has developed a workshop on the topic of volunteer program management. As part of "Volunteer for Minnesota", a project for developing public-private partnerships in communities, that workshop will be conducted at eight different locations in Minnesota this coming September and October.

Purpose of these daylong workshops is to provide training in the key elements for planning and implementing effective volunteer programs and citizen participation efforts.

Training has been designed for public and private policy makers and advisors, leaders of voluntary and nonprofit organizations, volunteer coordinators and leaders, and staff people who work with volunteers.

Subjects that will be covered include preplanning, volunteer job descriptions, recruitment, placement, orientation, supervision, recognition and retention, and program evaluation.

Dates and locations for these workshops are: Fergus Falls, September 13; Willmar, September 15; Eveleth, September 20; Brainerd, September 27; Rochester, September 29; Crookston, October 4, Mankato, October 11; and Bloomington, October 18.

Fee for these workshops is $10, which includes registration, a handbook, workshop materials, and lunch.

For a workshop brochure or more information, contact Rita G. Goldhammer, project coordinator, Volunteer for Minnesota, Minnesota Office on Volunteer Services, 200 Administration Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; phone 800-652-9747.

"Star Trik" To End Library's Bookbug Series

Northwest regional library summer reading program, "Bookbug Adventures" ends on August 11 with "Star Trik" —a play which is a take-off on the popular T.V. series "Star Trek".

Therese Abrahamson from Greenbush, librarian of the Roseau branch of the Northwest regional library system, has directed this play. It stars Roseau children and was a part of the Roseau Summerfest activities. The play will be held at 2 p.m. at the library.

Reporting books for the "Bookbug Adventures" will end on August 9 so that certificates can be made out for children completing the program. All children in the program are asked to report their books soon.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Alex Easton
611 North LaBree
Thief River Falls

Barbecued Meatballs

1½ to 2 lbs., ground beef mixed with salt and pepper to taste
½ cup each finely ground green pepper and onion

Method: Mix and form into meatballs and bake on a cookie sheet for 15-20 minutes in a 350 degree oven. Remove from sheet and place in casserole and top with barbecue sauce. Return to oven and bake 25-30 minutes.

Sauce

¾ cup catsup
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
¾ cup barbecue sauce
1 to 2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce

Mrs. Easton stated that these meatballs are a family favorite. She serves them with buttered noodles, garnished with parsley. A green salad completes the meal.

The Eastons have lived in Thief River Falls for the past eight years. While here, Easton was president of Northland Community college. He is now president of a three college district, including campuses at Thief River Falls, Brainerd and Fergus Falls.

Mrs. Easton said that she has many happy memories of Thief River Falls, its people, and the many organizations. She has been very active at St. Bernard's Catholic church, where they are members, and for the past few years has taught the kindergarten at St. Bernard's school. She received her bachelor's degree in education in 1982 from Bemidji State university.

The Eastons have four children: Mrs. Charles (Lili) Fredeen, St. Paul; Steve, San Francisco, Calif., and Julie and Wendy, both of Thief River Falls.

The Easton's new address after the end of August will be Rt. 2, Box 170, Long Lake, Fergus Falls, MN 56537.

Minnesota 4th In Seed Potato Production

Latest national crop estimates show that Minnesota will continue to be the fourth leading state in providing certified seed for Irish potato production according to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols.

Barring adverse weather conditions during the balance of the growing season Minnesota certified seed potato producers may even increase their share of the national market.

Growers have entered 24,603.42 acres in the 1983 Minnesota certified inspection and seed quality control program. That is nearly a two per cent increase from the seed potato acreage entered in the Minnesota department of agriculture regulatory program last year. Nationally, the acreage entered for seed certification has been reduced from 1982 by more than five per cent.

Thirty specific varieties plus a larger than usual acreage of experimental and miscellaneous varieties are in Minnesota's 1983 program. Five leading varieties that account for 78 per cent of the total acreage entered for certiciation are Norchip, Kennebec, Russet Burbank, Red Pontiac and Norland.

New varieities appearing on the inventory this year include Centennial Russet, Conestaga, Erik and Redsen.

Ranking ahead of Minnesota in Irish potato acreage entered for seed certification are Idaho, Maine and North Dakota. Wisconsin is fifth. Combined acreage for Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin accounts for more than 37 per cent of this year's national seed potato production acres.

Production of certified seed accounts for about one third of the total Irish potato acreage harvested in Minnesota, with the bulk of the annual crop going directly into consumer fresh and processed potato products.

Potatoes are one of the best bargains currently among all consumer food staples, with the farmer receiving less than five cents a pound the past several months for this fresh produce item.

FIRST LOAD of Arctic Cat snowmobiles manufactured by Arctco, Inc., in Thief River Falls was loaded by noon Wednesday and ready to leave Thursday morning for Anchorage, Alaska. The snowmobiles — first of some 550 ordered by Arctic Recreational Distributors, Inc., of Anchorage — were the first to come off the assembly line after manufacturing began last Monday. Driving the truck is Bob Rugland of Thief River Falls who is making his 75th trip from Thief River Falls to Anchorage hauling Arctic Cat snowmobiles. He plans to make eight or 10 round trips between now and Christmas.

Home Railroad Developed On D. Kezar Farm

Dennis to Amarillo three years ago to pick up the steam locomotive and passenger car. The locomotive weighs about 3,500 pounds and the steel passenger car about 1,000. Leach's car was used to pull a trailer hauling the units back to Minnesota.

As the one-fourth scale railroad began to take shape, so did the Kezar farm shop. Equipment was added as it was needed in building the railroad and now includes a metal turning lathe, milling machine, drill press, hydraulic press, gas and electric welders, forge, anvils and other equipment. "When you work with this material, you almost have to take a step back in time," Kezar said, referring to his need for a forge and anvils.

Despite his engineering experience of 25 years during a 38-year career with the Soo Line, Dennis had to take a high pressure steam engineering course and be tested to secure a hobby license which permits him to operate the locomotive on the Dan-D Railroad. The license is good for life and Dennis has had his for four years.

Soft coal from the eastern United States is the best fuel for the engine but costs about $100 a ton. Kezar said running the engine for six or seven hours will take about 150 pounds of coal. One of his next projects will be the building of a coal shed by the water tower located near the Kezar farm home.

The water tower was built before the locomotive was purchased. It holds 300 gallons of water and is filled by rainwater. Kezar simply diverted the downspout from eaves troughs on his house from ground level to the top of the water tower.

Future plans (perhaps more accurately described as dreams) include more track to cover a larger area. Now 54 years young, Kezar has a few years before qualifying for retirement and having more time available to work on his home railroad project.

He joined the Soo Line at the roundhouse here in 1945, worked as a fireman on steam locomotives from 1951 to 1953 and became a diesel engineer in 1958. Most of his work has involved the run between Thief River Falls and Glenwood.

Kezar credits family members for their efforts on the project. His wife Betty and daughter Nancy (Mrs. Gary Reed) have done painting and sign making while sons Joe and Kevin have helped with various construction work. Another son, Mitch, who lives in the Twin Cities area, joins Joe and Kevin in capability to run the engine. Kris Gibson made some of the signs for the railroad as well and J.R. Rambeck donated the building used for a roundhouse.

Presently Dennis is building a 1916 Case traction tractor model in one-third scale, using plans and some purchased castings but having to make man of the parts himself.

Name of the railroad was selected to memorialize the Kezar's son Danny who died in a mobile home fire at the farm in 1978. The depot has been named Jenkins Station in honor of Bob Jenkins, a Soo Line railroader and friend of the family who died several years ago. A hand-lettered plaque on the depot wall pays tribute to these two people.

The Kezars plan to have the railroad running for the public in late August or early September. Dates and times will be announced in later issues of the Times.

Dealer, Driver Share Interest In Arctic Cat

be good for Arctco as well.

When Arctco put out inquiries about manufacturing Arctic Cats to order and requiring a letter of credit for every machine ordered, Dunham was in early with a letter of credit for $1.2 million. He indicated he is willing to go along with ordering on that basis — especially if it means he will be able to secure a supply of Arctic Cats to sell. He will also expand his line of Arcticwear clothing this year and believes the snowmobile sales will be a definite boost for clothing and accessories sales.

During the time Arctic Cats were not available, Dunham was not at a complete loss for product. He has a Suzuki motorcycle dealership and was able to obtain those machines. There was good snowfall in Alaska last year, he said, and he would have liked to have this year's supply of Arctic Cats to sell then.

Although they live at opposite ends of the shipping line, Rugland and Dunham share mutual respect for each other. Bob says Dennis is a good guy to drive for; Dennis says Bob is the best driver there is. With product to haul and product to sell, who can improve on a situation like that?

"The priorities of the school board have been well established and the district does not intend to break its budget if it can at all prevent it," Supt. Block said.

"The fund balance of the school district does not constitute cash but rather is based on the accrued accounting method. Moreover, the fund balance is necessary for cash flow and contingencies. The AVTI is in even greater difficulty with the new system of funding. Accordingly, the K-12 and AVTI are going to have to live within the respective operational revenues budget and we may well have a circumstance where any rates of increase for AVTI instructors will be different from those of K-12 instructors. Consequently, if all goes well in 1983 through 1985, then 1985-87 could be somewhat better."

Supt. Block said the school board has asked the teachers' cooperation for help in staying within its budget priorities. If the teachers are prepared for further negotiation, the school board is also prepared but within the constraints of overall budgetary problems, the superintendent added.

Mary Ueland Dies August 5; Rites August 8

Mrs. Ole (Mary) Ueland, 96, of Thief River Falls, died Friday afternoon, August 5, at Northwestern hospital.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ueland will be held today (Monday) at 2:00 p.m., at Redeemer Lutheran church with Rev. Donald Knudson officiating. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

The body reposed at the Green Funeral home on Sunday, from 2:00 to 9:00 p.m., and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in the August 17 edition of the Times.

Additional Information

Additional information has been received about the funeral services held for Lawrence Nicholson of this city. Special music was the prelude, "How Great Thou Art," a piano and organ duet by Marcia Knutilla and Jeanne Hargen. Vocal selections, in addition to a solo by Elaine Idso, was a selection by Nancy and Tony Ricci and Rocky Wilson. A tribute was given by son, Lynn Nicholson.

L. Konickson, 22 Services Held At Plummer

Funeral services for Larry Alan Konickson, 22, of Warroad and formerly of rural St. Hilaire, were held Saturday at 10:00 a.m., at the Immanuel Lutheran church at Plummer. Konickson died Wednesday morning following a one car accident earlier that morning west of Warroad.

Rev. Tim Miller officiated at the services. Special music was provided by the Carlson family with Effie Vigstol as organist. Interment was in the Emardville cemetery at Plummer. The Petterson Funeral home, Red Lake Falls, was in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers were Mike Cauliflower, Wade Storey, Greg Srnsky, Wayne Johnson, Merle Sorteberg and Scott Leining.

Larry Alan Konickson was born Jan. 8, 1961 at Thief River Falls and grew to manhood in the rural St. Hilaire community. He attended Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls, graduating in 1978. In 1981, he was graduated from the Thief River Falls AVTI, department of auto mechanics.

He was married Dec. 13, 1980 at Warroad to Barbara Lewis. Following his marriage, he farmed for a year with his brothers. Since then, he had been employed by Marvin Windows at Warroad. At the time of his death, he was a department senior.

He was a member of Zion Lutheran church at Warroad.

Surviving are his wife and daughter, Samantha, both of Warroad; his mother, Mrs. Alice Wright Konickson, rural Red Lake Falls; his father, Gust Konickson, Plummer; a sister, Julie Konickson, rural Red Lake Falls; four brothers: Donald Konickson, Plummer; Kevin, Steven and David, all of rural Red Lake Falls; his maternal grandmother, Florence Wright, Plummer, and two nieces and a nephew: Wendy, Nicole and Daniel Konickson, all of Plummer.

He was preceded in death by both grandfathers and one grandmother.

Mother Of Once TRF Resident Dies In N.D.

Mrs. Hilda Nygaard, 91, of Hillsboro, N.D., mother of former Thief River Falls resident Mrs. Myron (Margie) Halvorson of Ventura, Calif., died Friday, July 29, at a Hillsboro Nursing home.

Funeral services for Mrs. Nygaard were held Tuesday at the Immanuel Lutheran church in Buxton, N.D.

Mrs. Nygaard, the former Hilda Swenson, was born Feb. 12, 1892 near Nielsville. She was married in 1917 at Crookston to Emil Nygaard. The couple farmed near Cummings, N.D., before moving in 1947 to a farm near Buxton. In 1977, they became residents of a nursing home.

Surviving are three sons: Wallace and Kenneth Nygaard, both of Buxton, and Lloyd, Bismarck, N.D.; three daughters: Mrs. Myron (Donna) Brieland, Buxton; Mrs. Walter (Edna) Brend, Cummings; and Mrs. Myron (Margie) Halvorson, Ventura, Calif.; 18 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, four sisters: Lillian Nordgren, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Wilma Swenson, Crookston; Elvina Edium, Helena, Mont.; and Mrs. Willie (Laverne) Thompson, Hannaford, N.D.; and two brothers: Martin, Blaine, Wash., and Davis, Euless, Tex.

Ronald Vennes Services Held Friday At Zion

Funeral services for Ronald Vennes, 32, of rural Thief River Falls, were held Friday at 3:00 p.m., at Zion Lutheran church. Vennes died Wednesday at Northwestern hospital following a bout with cancer.

Rev. Richard Larson officiated at the services. Jerry Joringdal was the organist and David Morken, the soloist. Interment was in the Fort Snelling National cemetery in St. Paul. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were all friends attending the services.

Active pallbearers were David Anderson, Gordon Benson, James Blix, DuWayne Sonnenberg, Gail Steinhauer and Lynn Vennes.

Military honors were accorded by members of the Thief River Falls American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars posts.

Ronald Dale Vennes was born Feb. 10, 1951 in Thief River Falls to Gordon and Margaret Christianson Vennes. He received his elementary education in Frazee and his high school education in Thief River Falls, graduating from Lincoln in 1969.

He was a veteran of the Vietnam Conflict, serving in the U.S. Army from 1971-72.

On July 19, 1975, he was married in St. Paul to Cynthia Brooks. Following their marriage, the couple lived at Moorhead, where he attended Moorhead State university, and at Larimore, N.D., where he was employed by the Larimore Pioneer newspaper.

Since 1979, Vennes and his partner have operated a mink ranch near Thief River Falls.

He was a member of Zion Lutheran church and was on the board of directors of the Lake Region Fur Breeders association.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Steven, his mother, Margaret Miller, Maple Grove; his step-father, Otis Miller, Harlingen, Tex.; two sisters: Mrs. Deborah Smyre, Maple Grove; and Merry Moneus, Harlingen, Tex.; two brothers: Gary, Minneapolis; and Russell, Harlingen, Tex.; and one niece, Melanie Smyre.

He was preceded in death by his father and his grandparents.

WCTU MESSAGE

IT IS some of my business if you drink, and it's even more of my business if you happen to be one of the several distributors of liquor in this community, county, state or America.

Whether you drink or contribute in any way to those who do, IT IS some of my business, even my responsibility.

Senator McClellan of Arkansas has recently declared crime to be "our greatest peril." Let's face it, liquor is at the very roots!

If you drink, deal in it, or even favor those who do, you are guilty of contributing to the crime that is threatening our very existence.

IT IS, most certainly, some of my business if you drink, or if in any way you deal in the industry. You degrade my society, increase my insurance rates, raise my taxes, and impair my safety.

You threaten my home, and make it difficult for me to raise my children right. You lead weak and silly people astray, cause them to desert innocent children, molest decent children, and make it difficult for our young people to go straight.

You are responsible for the taxes that are about to stifle the average citizen into turning into dead beats to beat them.

If the bootlegger operates, IT IS some of my business to see that the law is enforced, if I live in a dry county. If not, IT IS some of my business, even my Christian obligation, to do all that I can to make my county dry.

Yes, IT IS some of my business, even my responsibility! When Christian people assume their God-given responsibility, and American citizens realize the impact this menace is having upon our generation, let us hope it won't be too late to wake up.

Cancer Case ID Grant Awarded

Minnesota department of health has received a $400,000 grant from the Bush foundation to study the possibility of establishing a new system for cancer case identification in the state.

Project was proposed in response to a 1981 state law, requiring that the department study the feasibility of a statewide cancer surveillance system. The proposed system would make use of pathologists' laboratory reports to identify newly diagnosed cases of cancer. Information about each case would be entered into a central computer system. One of the objectives of the system will be the evaluation of potential public health problems associated with environmental carcinogens, like those that have occurred in Duluth, St. Louis Park and New Brighton.

Information to be collected would include the date of diagnosis for each case, the patient's place of residence, the type of cancer, and certain demographic information about the patient. Data which could be used to identify individual patients would only be available to researchers through the patient's physician. Summary data would be readily available to the public, and to professionals in the field.

Health officials hope the new system will eventually provide a clearer picture of cancer incidence in the state. The new reporting system should make it easier to determine the public health significance of isolated "clusters" of cancer cases, without conducting an expensive investigation of cancer incidence in the affected population. The cancer surveillance system will also make it possible to learn more about the impact of the environment, the workplace, and personal living habits on cancer risks.

This is the first time the department has received a research grant from the Bush foundation, according to department authorities. The St. Paul-based foundation has, in the past, awarded grants premarily to recipients in the upper midwest, in the areas of education, humanities and the arts, community and social welfare, and health programs.

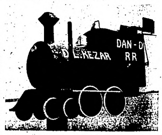
Proposed feasibility study, which will take two years, calls for a pilot test of the new pathology-based cancer reporting system at five Minnesota hospitals. Dr. Alan Bender, chief of the chronic diseases epidemiology section at the state health department, will be the principal investigator for the study. Helen Jagger, a department epidemiologist, will be the project director.

Participating facilities will include St. Mary's hospital, Duluth; St. John's hospital, Red Wing; Methodist hospital, St. Louis Park; University hospitals, Minneapolis; and the Mayo clinic hospitals, Rochester. Together, these hospitals are believed to account for nearly one third of all cancer cases diagnosed among Minnesota residents.

Department researchers will gather data about newly diagnosed cancer cases at all five hospitals, using both the new reporting system and a more elaborate system developed by the national cancer institute (NCI). The effectiveness of the new system will be measured by comparing the completeness, accuracy and cost of the new system with the NCI system.

It is expected that the new system will provide information on 95 per cent of the cancer diagnosed in Minnesota residents. It is also anticipated that the new system will be more efficient and less expensive to operate than the NCI reporting system.

Feasibility study will also focus on a number of other issues which could have an impact on the new reporting system, including: the problem of "linking" records dealing with the same case, but kept in different places, to avoid double counting or non-counting of cases; the problem of accounting for Minnesota residents who seek medical care in neighboring states; the problem of distinguishing between old and new cases of cancer; the problem of determining what types of cancer might be missed by the new reporting system; and the compatibility of the new system with other data systems used for cancer research.



RAILROADING is a big part of life at the Dennis Kezar farm southwest of Thief River Falls. Even the mailbox — created by Kevin Kezar and given to his father as a gift — portrays the railroad interest. Dennis, a Soo Line engineer, has been a railroader for 38 years in Thief River Falls and has now built a one-fourth scale railroad on his farm.

DPS Announces State Auto Safety Hotline

Minnesota motorists seeking information on motor vehicle recalls, defects and other auto safety related matters should be aware of the availability of a toll-free auto safety hotline, reminds the Minnesota department of public safety.

Operated by the national highway traffic safety administration (NHTSA), the hotline can be reached by dialing 800-424-9393 from anywhere in the contiguous United States. Operators are on duty from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Eastern time on weekdays. On weekends and after hours on weekdays, a recorded message asks the caller to leave a name and address, as well as the desired information.

Hotline is also available to the hearing impaired through teleprinter services, by calling 800-424-9153.

Hotline operators can provide assistance to consumers who report difficulties in obtaining corrective action for a safety recall already announced. NHTSA operators will refer questions on non-safety related automobile problems to other federal agencies, such as the federal trade commission, which handles automobile warranties or service problems, or the environmental protection agency, which deals with automobile emissions problems.

Consumers who call the hotline also may request printed materials on fuel economy ratings, crash test results, or the odometer tampering program as well as listings of other publications that may be ordered from NHTSA. All materials are free.

Federal safety agency said it logged more than 223,000 calls in 1982, well above the 160,000 calls made to the hotline in 1981. Established in 1975, the services of the auto safety hotline were expanded last year to include broader areas of consumer and safety information to the American public.

Most of the consumers who dialed the hotline either asked for recall information or reported safety problems they had experienced with their cars. A growing number, however, sought consumer-related information, often in response to NHTSA priority safety efforts, such as promoting of child restraint usage.

Ag-Alcohol Fuel Vehicles Complete Run

Eight vehicles powered by ag-alcohol fuel were scheduled to complete a five state, 1,000 mile endurance run at the Minnesota state capitol in St. Paul Tuesday kicking off the August observance of alternative energy month proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich. Vehicles will arrive at Farmfest '83 at 8 a.m. Wednesday marking the official opening of Farmfest '83 activities.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols will officially greet the participants in the renewable energy marathon on behalf of the Governor and underscore this state administration's commitment to help develop Minnesota's renewable farm and alternative energy resources. Nichols has modified his farm diesel tractor to use alcohol fuel.

Two Minnesota entries are among the eight alcohol powered vehicles that began the endurance run July 30 at Windom, and were scheduled to travel a circuit through South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin by 9 a.m. August 2, the scheduled arrival time at the state capitol.

Caravan made scheduled stops in 11 cities to focus public and media attention on the practical application of farm produced alcohol fuel, plus the Farmfest '83 exposition near Lake Crystal, August 3 to 5, which also features exhibits emphasizing the August alternative energy month theme. All eight vehicles will be exhibited during Farmfest '83.

Endurance run and a series of alternative energy emphasis activities at Farmfest are co-sponsored by the national alternative energy association, Minnesota fuel alcohol association, and the Minnesota department of agriculture.

American and Canadian advocates of alternative energy resources will participate in informational meetings open free to the public in the Farmfest '83 energy section at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. all three days; and at 6 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday at New Ulm. Minnesota fuel alcohol association will hold its annual membership meeting at Farmfest at 1 p.m. on Wednesday and the national alternative energy association annual meeting will be at 1 p.m. on Thursday.

Nursing Home Pre-Screening Now Mandatory

Minnesota institutionalizes its elderly at a rate 50 per cent higher than the national average, and spends a higher percentage of its medical assistance dollars on nursing home care than does most states. A pre-admission screening program became mandatory statewide on July 1 to help elderly Minnesotans explore alternatives to nursing home care.

Prior to July 1, when county participation was voluntary, the pre-admission screening program kept more than 40 per cent of medical assistance applicants out of long term facilities in those counties.

According to the Minnesota department of public welfare, of 1,646 people screened over a 15 month period, 737 remained in their community, 500 of them with the assistance of services received through an alternative care grant program.

Pre-admission screening and alternative care was authorized as a two county pilot project in 1980. It was made available to all 87 Minnesota counties on a voluntary participation basis beginning in 1981. The 37 participating counties contained a majority of Minnesota's population.

Pre-screening-alternative care program is designed to keep elderly Minnesotans, who need only limited assistance, out of total-care nursing home facilities. Such individuals instead would have a community-based alternative care program created for them.

Even some elderly needing total care can be helped to remain at home when an alternative care program can be designed to supplement assistance that might already be provided by friends, relatives or community services.

Alternative care services could include adult day-care, foster care, homemaker services, personal care, home health assistance, nursing, meal services, senior companions and friendly visitors, or transportation. Respite care, which provides relief for caregivers, usually relatives, is also available to relieve pressures that sometimes otherwise lead to unnecessary institutionalizations.

By keeping prospective clients of long-term care in their own or family homes in the community, those individuals benefit by being able to lead more normal lives, in familiar surroundings among friends and neighbors. Public agencies benefit because, when institutionalization is deterred, savings can run as high as $20,000 per patient per year.

Pre-admission screening has become essential with the moratorium on construction of new nursing home beds enacted by the 1983 legislature. Without a screening program to divert some applicants to community-based alternatives, Minnesota's high rate of nursing home placements, combined with the moratorium, could otherwise create a shortage of nursing home beds for those with an acute need.

Current law requires pre-admission screening for all nursing home applicants 65 years and older who are either eligible for medical assistance already, or who are expected to become eligible within 180 days of admission to a nursing home.

Because daily nursing home care costs are very high, many elderly nursing home residents quickly exhaust personal financial resources and become medical assistance recipients.

Pre-admission screening process involves a team evaluation of medical and social needs of applicants. A team typically includes a public health nurse from the local public health nursing service and a social worker from the local community welfare or social service agency. Applicant's personal physician or an outside physician is also consulted and may work with the team.

Other people might also be consulted or may work with the team in determining an alternative care plan. They could include family or neighbors, existing home care providers, staff of local social service agencies, or hospital social workers or nurses.

Screening team may determine there is a medical need for the level of care available in a nursing home. But many people who are essentially in good health may just be too frail to properly clean or maintain their homes, or too unsteady around a stove to prepare nutritional meals. For such people, the screening team is responsible for identifying exactly what service or combination of services is needed and available in the local community to enable the applicants to remain in the least restrictive environments, preferably in their own homes and communities.

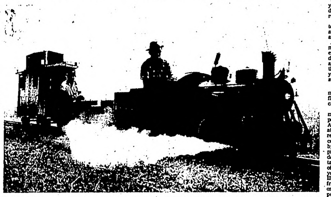
Accepting the recommendations of the screening team to use an alternative care plan is not mandatory. But the decision to proceed with a nursing home placement may not be made until community alternatives are known.

If the applicant or applicant's family chooses alternative care in the community, the screening team meets with all affected persons, including applicant, family, neighbors, and potential care or service providers. Together they develop a plan of care that lists necessary services, assign responsibility for providing services, and schedule follow-up visits to ensure that the services are being provided and that future needs will be attended to.

Funding through an alternative care grant program is available to provide supplemental services not otherwise available, but required to successfully initiate an alternative care plan. Funds come from a combination of federal, state and local sources.

In addition to screening applicants still living in the community, the expanded statewide program will soon also review applicants for nursing homes who are currently in acute-care settings such as hospitals. It will enable at least some of these citizens to return to their homes in the community instead of being sent to a long-term care facility.

Families or individuals wanting more information on the pre-admission screening process or on the avilability of alternative care arrangements in their community should contact their county social-service agency.



STEAM ENGINES are supposed to let off a little steam now and then. Dennis Kezar operates this one-fourth scale steam engine on the Dan-D Railroad which encircles his farm yard and windbreak. Passenger is Llewellyn (Gubby) Lane who designed and assisted with construction of the station and caboose which are part of the project.

WATER TOWER which fills the steam engine of the Dan-D railroad on the Dennis Kezar farm southeast of Thief River Falls was the first railroad item built on the farm. It holds 300 gallons of water and is filled by simply rearranging the downspout from eaves troughs on the house. Kezar, an engineer for the Soo Line railroad, prefers soft water for use in the stream engine and the collected rainwater works just fine.

Falling Red Meat Prices Hurt Producers

Falling prices for all red meat animals cut June cash receipts for Minnesota livestock producers to less than $106.3 million, the lowest monthly gross this year, according to agriculture commissioner Jim Nichols.

Hog producers, who have been battling loss level prices most of the past four years, saw their June market average for slaughter pork animals slided to a 17 month low of 44.2 cents a pound. That made the 436,200 hogs sold for commercial slaughter in Minnesota during June gross farmers only $46.8 million. June price was 23 per cent lower than a year ago, when market prices were moderately profitable.

Cattle ranchers also were caught in the price pinch. The 100,200 beef cattle sold for Minnesota slaughter during June grossed ranchers $58.9 million at an average price of 51.2 cents per pound, live weight basis.

Commissioner Nichols noted that the June red meat animal volume would have grossed livestock farmers an additional $17.5 million at the year ago market prices.

Sheep and lamb ranchers grossed an estimated $80,300 from June slaughter marketings of 7,600 animals at an average of 55.4 cents a pound, and veal calf sales grossed less than $43,000 at an average market price of 64 cents per pound, 11 per cent lower than a year ago.

June livestock slaughter marketings in Minnesota raised the estimated gross farm sales for the first six months of 1983 to $858.5 million.

Minnesota continued to be the sixth leading state in supplying the nation's domestic red meat products with a first half 1983 total of 844.4 million pounds, a seven per cent increase compared to the first six months of 1982.

The average number of cows milked in the U.S. in 1982 was 11 million, 103,000 more cows than were milked in 1981.

Rental Owners Must Install Energy Savers

As of July 1, owners of residental rental properties built before 1976 are required to comply with six additional energy efficiency standards. These standards, as well as the requirements for caulking and weatherstripping already in effect, are established by a law passed by the Minnesota state legislature in 1977.

New standards are:

— Install storm windows on all single glazed windows enclosing heated spaces.

— Install storm doors, unless the existing door, vestibule, or enclosed porch provides an R-value of two or more.

— Install positive shut offs on all fireplaces and fireplace stoves.

— Install insulation in all accessible attics to achieve a minimum total R-value of the insulation of R-19.

— Install insulation in all accessible rim joists to achieve a minimum total R-value of the insulation of R-11.

— Install insulation in all accessible walls to achieve a minimum total R-value of the insulation of R-11.

Standards already in effect are:

— Install weatherstripping on all operable exterior primary windows.

— Caulk, gasket or otherwise seal all accessible exterior joints including: at foundation and rim joist, around the window and door frames, between wall and roof, at utility penetrations, between wall panels, and all other openings in the exterior envelope.

These standards apply to all rental housing units, including apartment buildings, duplexes, and single family homes. Owners are only required to make improvements with a simple payback of 10 years or less, but in the vast majority of cases, each of these measures will pay back in less than 10 years.

Energy division of the Minnesota department of energy and economic development has the responsibility to enforce these standards, has the authority to sue owners who don't comply, and can seek penalties of up to $10,000 per day. However, the division is committed to working with landlords to comply with the standards, and does not routinely seek litigation. Instead, once a complaint is received, the owner is notified and reminded of the standards. If the owner is unsure what is required for a particular building, an inspection is arranged to determine specific requirements. The owner is then given a limited amount of time to have the improvements made. If improvements are still not made, the case will be referred to the Attorney General for litigation.

Tenants in unweatherized buildings can file a complaint by calling the energy division information center at 1-800-652-9747.

Energy division is working with several municipalities to establish agreements under which city housing staff can conduct inspections, enforce the standards, and assess penalties. Minneapolis and Fridley are already enforcing the standards locally, and St. Paul is considering an ordinance to do the same.

Substantial energy (and dollar) savings can result from complying with these standards. A 1979 study by Minnesota housing finance agency (MHFA) estimated energy savings of between five and 35 per cent, depending on the size of the building.

Taxpayers May Appeal IRS Audit, Exam

Taxpayers who disagree with the outcome of an examination of audit of their federal income tax returns have the right to appeal the decision of the examiner. In order to help taxpayers better understand their appeal rights, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) has prepared the following questions and answers:

Q. Why are some people's returns chosen for examination, while others are not?

A. Generally, the usual reason is to verify the correctness of income, exemptions, or deductions claimed on the return. Sometimes, however, returns are selected as part of a random sample under the taxpayer compliance measurement program (TCMP).

Q. What is TCMP?

A. TCMP — taxpayer compliance measurement program — is IRS's enforcement and research program. It is designed to measure and evaluate taxpayer compliance characteristics.

Q. If my return is selected for an examination, how will it be done?

A. The examination may be conducted by correspondence, or it may take place in your home or place of business, an IRS office, or the office of your attorney of accountant. While IRS makes the decision on the method and place, they try to select what is appropriate for the circumstances.

Q. My return has been selected for an examination. At the time I filed the return, I lived in a different state. Must I return to that state for the examination?

A. No. You may request that your case be transferred to the district in which you presently reside.

Q. Suppose the examiner tells me I owe more money, and I don't agree. Do I have any recourse?

A. Yes, you may immediately ask to speak to the examiner's supervisor. Often differences can be settled then and there. If not, you can take the necessary steps to have your case reviewed by an appeals officer.

Q. I'm scheduled for a meeting with an appeals officer, but there is no way that I can make it. What shall I do?

A. For a valid reason, you may ask that the meeting be postponed and rescheduled. Alternatively, if you cannot attend in person, you may be represented by your attorney, certified public accountant, or by a person enrolled to practice before the IRS. If you decide to send a representative, you must file a power of attorney. For this purpose, you can file IRS form 2848 or IRS form 2848-D, available from most local IRS offices, or any other properly written power of attorney or authorization.

Q. Suppose I am still not satisfied, even after the conference with the appeals officer. What recourse do I have then?

A. If you still disagree with the service, you can take your case to the United States tax court, U.S. claims court, or district court. These courts are independent and have no connection with IRS.

Q. I would like to know more about the appeals system. Where can I get additional information?

A. IRS has a free publication, Publication 556, "Examination of Returns, Appeal Rights and Claims for Refunds," available from the IRS.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

I was sitting at the national airport waiting for a friend's plane to arrive so that we could chat while taking a taxi to our hotel. I had about a half hour to wait. I heard two men, probably in their sixties or early seventies, definitely from Colorado, discussing something they had seen in Washington near the White House. They were awaiting the arrival of the plane that would take them back to Denver.

They had observed picketers in front of the White House, including two who had carried signs saying, "Rather Red Than Dead."

This sign had disturbed them.

I couldn't help but hear their conversation, and I want to relay it on to you because I believe it was both interesting and meaningful.

One of the fellows said that he could not understand how an American could carry a sign that indicated he would rather by a Red or Communist than dead. He had purchased a dictionary at the newspaper counter, and read off the definitions of dead. They included, "lacking in vitality, numb, motionless, inanimate, not productive, dull, ineffective, flat, unvaried, uninteresting, lusterless, nonresonant, extinct, obsolete, exhausted, worn out, deprived of civil life, not fresh or invigorating, unresponsive, giving no light or heat, not imparting motion, spent, muffled, tasteless, deceased, defunct, departed, inanimate and lifeless."

This Colorado senior citizen said that he had never made a lot of money nor been a social success. He probably had his name in the newspapers when he was born, graduated from high school, had his tonsils out, got a marriage license, was included in the wedding announcements for his three kids, and in the obituary for his wife. He had been in the service during World War II and got recalled for Korea. He was a Rotarian and an American Legionnaire.

He liked our American freedom because if there was one description he could easily apply to his life, it was that he had never been bored. New things happened all of the time, that required him and those around him to respond and react with understanding and solutions, or at least make an effort to do something. He recognized very early that he was on his own in a free national with a free will, and he liked that. He didn't feel like an inmate of a zoo who had to perform as his trainer or feeder required.

He said that he had voted for ten presidents and ten governors, and more congressmen and legislators than he could remember. He recalled when he had to make decisions... should he go on to college (he apparently did not)... was this the right girl for his lifemate... selection of job... determining whether he wanted to stay with that job and company (I got the impression that he stayed on until he retired)... what to do with his mother when his Dad died (he must have taken her into his home and made her a member of his extended family)... he had to make investment decisions and determine whether he wanted to buy a home... he didn't much like the men his daughters selected as husbands, but he went along (what else could he do)... he enjoyed fishing, hunting, camping, bowling and taking vacations when and where he wanted to do so... he was proud of his country because it was humane and human (which must have meant that its leaders could err).

What he could not understand was how someone with intelligence could even consider giving up his freedom and importance as an individual to be a Red. It was just incomprehensible to this man from Denver.

His friend had listened. He took over at this point and said that his definition of "dead" was, in his opinion, the same as "Red"... part of a system which de-emphasizes the human aspects of life, so that life is dull, flat, unvaried, uninteresting, lusterless, nonresonant, ineffective, muffled, tasteless, inanimate and lifeless. He felt that his biggest enjoyment in life came from making his own decisions, and knowing that the big decisions in our country come from the "bottom up," the people, and not from the "top down," the leaders. He even had voted to "can" a few leaders in his time.

He summed up by saying, "I don't believe there's much difference between being dead or Red!"

I listened to these two retirees, and I was impressed and thought you would be, too! They believe in the individual and freedom as being important. So do I!

That's Straight Talk!

Motorists May Be Fined If Tots Unbuckled

Starting August 1, law officers may ticket Minnesota motorists traveling with their children under the age of four if the tots are not buckled into an approved child passenger restraint.

1983 Legislature put teeth into the amended child "buckle-up" law — a $25 fine for second and subsequent offenses within a year's time.

Original law merely called for the parent or legal guardian to "equip and install" child restraint systems in their motor vehicles.

Under the amended law, a child passenger restraint system meeting federal motor vehicle safety standards must not only be installed, but used.

No penalty will be imposed for failure to install child passenger restraints if, within 30 days of the offense, violators can prove to the county court or violations bureau that approved devices have been purchased or otherwise obtained.

In the latter respect, there are now more than 100 programs in Minnesota that will loan or rent child passenger restraints to motorists affected by the revised law. Information on them is available from project childsafe, Minnesota safety council, telephone (612) 291-9150.

The law, which affects Minnesota residents only, applies to the travel of children in any motor vehicle owned by their parents or guardians that is equipped with factory-installed seat belts.

Violations of the law are petty misdemeanors, but they are not to be counted as chargeable traffic violations, the law specifies.

Block Watch Clubs Reduce Home Crimes

Block watch clubs formed by people who observe neighbor's homes and report unusual activity to the police are being organized across Minnesota to prevent crime. Examples from law enforcement agencies indicate block watch clubs are having a positive effect, Minnesota public safety commissioner Paul Tschida said this week.

Watch group was formed in Mankato in 1981 and includes a group of unarmed citizens who take turns patrolling the neighborhood each night. In the club's first year, home burglaries in the area dropped 63 per cent from 91 in 1981 to 32 in 1982. During 1981, 26 per cent of Mankato's home burglaries occurred in this neighborhood. The figure dropped to 10 per cent after the club's first year.

In November 1981 police organized watch groups in a Roseville neighborhood which had experienced more burglaries than any other city neighborhood between Jan. 1 and April 30, 1981. During the next year there was only one burglary in the area — an entry gained into an unlocked garage.

Fridley neighborhood had a burglary rate of one in every 10 homes when it began a block watch club in June 1978. The area's burglary rate dropped 100 per cent during the first two years of the watch program, according to Barbara Zandlo Hutchinson, crime prevention specialist with the Fridley police department. She also noted that the watch club is still active and neighborhood's burglary rate is half of what it was prior to organization.

Two neighborhood watch groups organized in mid-1982 in Maple Grove helped reduce overall reported crimes by 50 per cent as of January 1983, according to Lt. Ron Markgraf, Maple Grove police department. "Residents are enthusiastic about the watch groups," said Markgraf. "Some club members even patrol their neighbhrhood after dark, recording license numbers of suspicious vehicles and names of youngsters roaming the streets at that time. The license numbers and names are turned over to Markgraf for investigation.

To organize a block watch club, concerned neighbors can call their law enforcement agency for help in solving a crime problem. A neighborhood meeting is held and residents are encouraged to watch each other's homes. Neighbors should report any ususual activity (such as movement in a house that should be empty, a loiterer or a strange vehicle in a driveway) to their local police or sheriff.

Production per cow in the U.S. for 1982 was 12,316 pounds. This was an increase of 1.3 per cent over 1981.

American Crafts Break Boundaries

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

Only a moment earlier, the collector had been savoring the quality and good value of the original, glazed ceramic bowl purchased that morning. Then came an awful premonition, and in an instant the object lay shattered in nine jagged pieces on the concrete walk.

Two years later, long after gluing the shards back together and trying to live with the cracks and chips, the collector came upon this consoling report: Arizona potter Rick Dillingham likes the "archaic effect" and the "simple beauty" of repaired objects "so much that he now breaks his own creations and glues them back together so they'll look just like artifacts."

As this happy ending indicates, and as recent gallery and museum exhibits show, American craft-artists working in clay, glass, metal, fiber, wood, paper, textiles, jewelry and mixed media are breaking through conventional boundaries, both functional and decorative, which once easily defined but limited their work.

"Since the 1960s," says Lloyd Herman, director of the Smithsonian's Renwick Gallery in Washington, D.C., "there's been a merging of materials and ideas in crafts, although it is still respectable to make functional objects."

Today's artisits use contless techniques to create contemporary, thought-provoking sculptural objects, many of them filled with whimsy or satire. They combine various media in new, unexpected ways and redefine the look of utilitarian wares. They examine ordinary items for their artistic possibilities, and they fashion works from materials that imitate all sorts of other materials.

There is paper that for all the world resembles rawhide, glass that appears to be a nest of fibers, woven leather baskets that pass for straw and ceramics as delicate as lace. There are functional vessels too fragile to function and "jewelry" that contains no jewels.

"Traditional craftspeople have reached a high degree of sophistication, and fine arts people seem to have discovered craft materials and techniques as a means of reinterpreting what they know," says Lee Hall, the recently retired president of the Rhode Island school of design. Hall believes that art and craft objects always are at their best "when they unsettle me, make me think, force me to question old orders."

Today's enthusiasm for craft pieces — in part a reaction to mass-produced goods — is mirrored in the growing numbers of craft artists, the formation of major collections and the keen interest shown by museums and private galleries. "The numbers of collectors are growing as quickly as the number of artists," according to American crafts council president Jack Lenor Larsen.

Ironically, there is no permanent collection of 20th-century American crafts at the Smithsonian, an omission that the Renwick Gallery intends to remedy as it begins acquiring top quality objects by established and influential makers. While the popularity of crafts has grown steadily in the past 30 years, Herman points out that "there is no single resource available where collectors can go for information. Each has to trust his or her own eye to judge quality."

Once there was a time when art meant painting, prints and sculpture, period. Crafts were little more than second-class citizens. But no more. For many the old classifications are completely inadequate. (A number of art museums, however, choose to collect only the three traditional media.)

Tackling the arts and crafts issue at its fullest, French art historian Andre Malraux wrote in 1951, "I call that man an artist who creates forms... I call that man a craftsman who reproduces forms, however great may be the charm of his craftsmanship." More recently, Jonathan Fairbanks, a Boston Museum of Fine Arts curator, simply asserted that "there is no distinction between fine arts and fine crafts. And in the end it is not the material but the spiritual essence of things that fill us."

The old caste lines are blurred, Hall agrees, explaining that craftsworkers, who "once made things familiar," now show that "any material, whatever its history, can be transformed by human spirit to express concerns and feelings." The expressive, utilitarian teapots crafted by one Californian ceramicist, for example, "are more likely to function as art objects than serving pieces," Herman notes.

For many of these artists, glass is the favored medium today. An up-to-the-minute survey of new works by the Corning Museum of Glass indicates that a number of artists today are assembling flat planes of the material — rather than working with hot glass, which is blown, cast or molded — because of its suitability for pictorial work or sculpture.

An abstract woman's gown made of ordinary window screening was the hit at a recent juried craft show sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Smithsonian Associates. First-prize winner Debra Chase, a jewelry maker, said that, when the price of silver went up a few years ago, she looked around for an alternative material and found wire mesh a "rich" substitute. "People can't believe it is screening and have to touch it. My work makes us rethink what we take for granted."

Wood crafts also have taken off in varied directions. "There is a strong strain of orientalism in contemporary work," Fairbanks says, and adaptation is very strong: Witness the Windsor chair that has "spawned many descendants." One furniture maker, John Alexander of Baltimore, author of "Making a Chair from a Tree," has adapted the old-time mountain chair to today's requirement for creature comfort. Judy McKie of Cambridge, Mass., fuses the primative with the utilitarian, creating sculptural fantasies, such as a bench supported by four simply carved horses.

Natural forms and humor are the stock for other wood craft-artists. One creation: the "Bureaucrat," by Californian Michael Speaker. You guessed it, a chest of drawers shaped like a heavy-set man.

Change is also a fact of life for textiles, fiber, paper and mixed media, but ceramics is the craft of preference for many artisits. Clay, the basic building material of all ceramic objects, from humble earthenware to refined porcelain, is a substance of infinite creative possibilities that can be made to look, one authority writes, as "smooth as butter or as gritty as coarse gravel; it can be polished to a glossy sheen, or remain dull and earthy..."

Ceramics lead to a number of lives. Linked to the past are limited-edition decorative figurines of porcelain that Herman describes as "artful without being art." In contrast are items that many consider "vulgar," gift-shop ornaments dripping with gilding and lace draping. Then there are ceramic home and industrial products, including the proverbial kitchen sink.

But it is the one-of-a-kind ceramic art object that has soared in popularity with artists and collectors in recent years. Its rise in America traces to the 1876 Philadelphia centennial exposition where displays of oriental porcelain and French earthenwares led to the establishment of several small art potteries in Ohio.

Experimentation and growth came during the next decades as American potters experimented with various techniques and styles, usually in making vases and bowls generally patterned on European design trends, among them art nouveau and art deco.

The big break for American ceramics came in the early 1950s, when U.S. artists, liberated by the creative energy of abstract expressionism and the random colors and spontaneous design of Japanese pottery, cut loose many of the old European bonds. In the 1960s, funky, often irreverent (not to mention obscene) objects assaulted the tastefulness of the figurine tradition. "These movements and subsequent achievements thrust American ceramics into the forefront of world ceramics, and it has maintained this leadership," reports Garth Clark, author of "A Century of Ceramics in the United States, 1878-1978."

Today there is strong interest again in pots and other vessels; as often as not they are large, sculptural and delicate, fine to look at but really too fragile or big to use. There's also a call for ceramic collages that are meticulously crafted and filled with wit.

Still other creations pay homage to craft-artists of the past by borrowing elements from earlier decorative styles and freely applying ornamentaion and embellishment, once again in a departure from the design concepts of recent decades. And, as seen in glass, the human figure is emerging as a subject for ceramicists.

But it is "Untitled Ceramic No. 21" by Robert Hudson of Stinson Beach, CA, that intrigues one particular collector. Number 21 is a 15-inch-tall urn on which the artist has meticulously painted chips and cracks.

DWI Law Is Strengthened Even Further

Minnesota law pertaining to drunken driving has been strengthened to enhance the more dramatic changes which were made in 1982, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

Two changes, effective August 1, remove restrictions on use at a trial of an accused person's refusal to take a chemical test and provide that a suspect be informed that refusal to take a test will be used against him in court.

Revocation of a driver's license will be for a minimum period of six months if a test is refused. If a test is taken and the reading is .10 or above, revocation of the driver's license may be for a minimum period of 90 days.

1983 Legislature also repealed a provision of the law which would have required mandatory detoxification treatment of intoxicated drivers. That provision was scheduled to take effect on July 1 of this year but was rescinded effective June 10.

Minnesota state patrol is pleased with results of the law changes. "The latest change (the 'refusal' provision) will enhance our ability to test intoxicated drivers. It will also prove to be an added deterrent to driving while under the influence of alcohol," said Col. Roger Lodding, state patrol chief.

DWI law changes that were made in 1982 have contributed to getting more drunk drivers off our roads. In 1982, more than 38,000 Minnesotans lost their driving privileges. Vast majority of these were for alochol related offenses.

Congressman Sets Office Hours In Area

Congressman Arlan Stangeland will observe office hours in area communities late in August, according to word received from his Washington office. During the five-week congressional recess he plans to visit over 40 towns and conduct 17 "office hour" sessions.

The congressman will be at the courthouse in Thief River Falls Thursday, August 25, from 9 to 11 a.m., and at the community center in Greenbush the same day from 3:30 to 5 p.m. On August 26 he will be in the city hall at Karlstad from 9 to 11 a.m. and the courthouse at Warren from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Rep. Stangeland also plans on being in the harvest festival parade at Grygla on Saturday, August 13.

Issues Warning On Halon Fire Extinguishers

Caution is being advised before purchasing fire extinguishers from sales people who are offering 2½-pound Halon extinguishers for $69.95. Another brand can be purchased for $29 elsewhere on the market.

Halon fire extinguishers are normally used in the electronics industry, and are effective because they do not leave any residue. However, for the average home and farmowner, the dry chemical five pound ABC (all class) extinguisher is sufficient at one-third the cost.

Not all Halon extinguishers meet UL listings and the throw-away (non-rechargeable) are not approved for sale in Minnesota, according to Bruce Lillevold, fire prevention officer for the Marshall County Mutual Insurance company.

Door-To-Door Solicitors May Be Frauds

Attorney General's office recently issued a consumer alert warning Minnesotans to be on the lookout for bogus door-to-door home repair salespersons and self-styled charities solicitors.

"This is the time of year when we start getting calls from citizens who've been bilked by these door-knocking types of swindlers," Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey, III cautioned.

Home repair fraud is generally the work of con artists travelling in teams of two or more, offering to paint houses, repair chimneys, driveways or other property. "They'll do a quick, cosmetic job, take their money and run. By the time their work starts to fall apart, they and your money are gone."

Humphrey added that bogus door-to-door solicitors, too, look like the real thing, with causes ranging from cancer to crime prevention to some religious charity. "The difference between legal charities and swindlers is where the money goes," Humphrey stressed. "Most, if not all of it, will wind up in a fraudulent solicitor's pocket."

Humphrey suggested a few precautions consumers can take to protect themselves.

When confronted by home repair salespersons, ask to see their credentials. Some Minnesota cities require repair firms to be licensed and post a bond. Get other estimates from other dealers in your area for work that needs to be done. It may be advisable to pay more for a local dealer who can be more easily contacted should you have any warranty claims. Humphrey also suggested asking for and checking out references for other work the repair group has done, or calling the local better business bureau or chamber of commerce. Humphrey also cautioned against signing any contract until it is completely filled out and you understand it thoroughly.

When dealing with a person soliciting for a charitable purpose, Humphrey advises a close check of the person's credentials. "Under Minnesota law, the solicitor must disclose the name, address and telephone number of each charitable organization for which the solicitation is made and the percentage, if any, which may be tax deductable. This information must be prominently displayed on a card and shown to you."

Humphrey added that consumers should ask for a copy of the solicitation literature. Don't rely on information you're allowed to look at, but not to keep. Ask for and keep a receipt of your donation with the name, address (more than a post office box number) and telephone number of the organization, as well as the name of the solicitor.

"Legitimate charities will willingly supply this information," Humphrey said. "If the solicitor is vague or applies high pressure, don't give. If you have any doubts, you can always take the name, address and phone number of the organization and send a check later after you've had an opportunity to check it out."

In all cases of door-to-door sales, Humphrey advised consumers to pay by check or money order, not by cash. "Checks can be traced by you to the depositor should that need arise," Humphrey pointed out. "Especially with home repairs, be wary of salespersons who insist on cash or being paid in advance."

Humphrey urges anyone having questions about door-to-door sales, or someone who thinks they may have been swindled, to contact the Minnesota Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155, phone (612) 296-6196.

Farm Computer Training Is Set For Fair Time

Many farm computer specialists compare the coming of computers to the farm to the mechanization of agriculture earlier this century. Like then, the decision is not so much whether to use computers, but when to use computers.

To help farm families learn about this tool, a seminar, "Computers for Farm and Family," is being offered by the Minnesota agricultural extension service and "The Farmer-The Dakota Farmer" magazine. Seminar runs in conjunction with the Minnesota state fair, August 26-28 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Earle Brown Center, just west of the state fairgrounds on the University of Minnesota St. Paul campus.

During the event families will be able to see some 50 computer vendors exhibiting computer hardware and programs and giving daily half-hour presentations about their services and products. Sessions will be grouped around major topic areas (i.e. financial software, dairy and swine, herd management, etc.), so farmers can select the areas that interest them most.

University computer specialists will be leading educational sessions to introduce potential and new computer users to computer basics. After 9 a.m. registration, the educational session will begin at 9:30 with an overview of computers in agriculture and a session on buying and evaluating computer hardware and software. Afternoon session, which begins at 1:30 p.m., focuses on specific uses of computers in agriculture: in the dairy operation, as a financial and marketing tool and as a home-educational tool.

Running concurrently in another area, computer specialists will demonstrate computer programs designed especially for home and education use, including nutrition and menu planning, home management and energy concerns.

All sessions will be repeated daily so farm families can attend one or all three days of the seminar. A $15 pass ($5 for children age 5-15) allows participants to come and go as they please.

To obtain a pass for the seminar, contact the Office of Special Programs, Agricultural Extension Service, 405 Coffey Hall, 1420 Eckles Ave., St. Paul, MN. (612) 373-0725. Passes will be available at the door.

Ethnic Groups Have Distinct Values, Outlooks

by Deane Morrison
'U'M News Service

Carol Woehrer's mother wants to go to Las Vegas, but not to gamble. When she dies, she wants her body donated to medical science and cremated when science has finished its work. Her family has instructions to scatter her ashes from a plane over Las Vegas so she can "rise where the action is."

Mrs. Woehrer's friend Mary has no such plans. Mary believes that her family will take care of her when she dies, doing what they believe is most appropriate.

Said Carol Woehrer: "My mother is a German descent and Mary is Irish. The differences in how the two women plan for old age and beyond tend to be characteristic of those ethnic groups."

Woehrer, who is finishing a Ph.D. in American studies at the University of Minnesota, looks at the ways American families of various ethnic backgrounds view aging and the elderly. Differences, she said, are rooted in the particular family structure characteristic of the ethnic group.

German families, for example, emphasize autonomy and self-reliance. Children hear the phrase, "You made your bed, you lie in it," quite often, according to Woehrer. Her mother was exhibiting this independence by making arrangements for her own body after death. Irish families, on the other hand, emphasize the value of charity. Children learn to help other people in need, and to expect such aid from others in turn. Mrs. Woehrer's friend exhibited this attitude by expecting her family to take care of her after death, she explained.

"Ethnic groups also differ according to how family members perceive their roles and in the primary sources of identity for children. These factors influence family interactions when an elderly member needs special care," said Woehrer.

For example, Italian, Russian, Ukrainian and Polish families are usually lineal; the key relationship is between parental mentors and young people following in their paths. These families are close, and children draw identity, and often friends, primarily from other family members. Nuclear families are markedly interdependent, and strong support systems for the elderly exist. Grown children from these groups tend to get more intensively involved in caring for their elders, and are more likely to take in a widowed parent.

Scandinavians, said Woehrer, tend to exhibit more egalitarian family relationships, in which husband and wife are equal and reason is used to socialize children. Adults stress the importance of societal roles and contributions to the common good, and exhibit a high level of participation in community activities. Individual autonomy is also valued, as in German families. Consequently, older people of Scandinavian descent rely more on social institutions, such as nursing homes or high rise housing for the elderly, than on family support. Woehrer credits Scandinavian influence as a reason for Minnesota's leadership in health programs for the elderly.

Social changes can result in intergenerational distancing of family members, and family structure influences people's reactions, Woehrer said. Changes brought about by the women's movement or by increases in social status among younger family members cause distancing when new roles conflict with expectations. This is especially the case for lineal, closely knit families such as Italian and Slavic. But German families, although lineal, also value and expect autonomy in their children. In these families, distancing caused by independence of the children is more likely to be accepted.

Woehrer cited work by her colleague Verne Bengtson, who studied a California nursing home with many residents of Scandinavian descent. The residents' families reported improved family relations after institutionalization. They attributed this to the families' feeling that they were now less burdened with care of their parents, and to their parents' opportunity to develop new friendships.

Relationships between fathers and children sometimes change predictably as the parent ages, said Woehrer.

"Irish women have commented to me that fathers are not very interested in young children, but develop a kind of buddy relationship when the kids are older."

She quoted Senator Ted Kennedy, who described his relationship with his son: "We have a bond as father and son that's really extraordinary. He's a son, a friend and a colleague, a combination of all those things."

"This buddy relationship tends to be more characteristic of egalitarian families, including Jewish, Scandinavian and black, as well as Irish. It is less common in lineal families," she continued.

Woehrer said that many ethnic communities in the United States have retained their distinctive character, and that this has aided her research.

"You don't have to fly thousands of miles to find people from a wide variety of cultural backgrounds," she said, "it's all right here in our backyard."

Mink Ranchers Share In Cost Price Squeeze

Mink ranchers in this third leading fur farming state shared the same eroding cost price squeeze in 1982 as most of Minnesota's livestock agriculture, according to commissioner Jim Nichols, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture.

Only 144 mink ranches remained in operation here at the close of 1982, a nine per cent reduction compared to the last reporting year of 1980.

Minnesota's mink pelt production last year totaled 542,300, a more than 22 per cent increase from 1980, and that accounted for 13.3 per cent of national mink pelts harvested. U.S. production in 1982 was the highest since 1970. Half of the nation's mink ranches have disappeared during these past 12 years.

Fur market prices in 1982 averaged $29.40 for the average quality mink pelt, a 17 per cent drop from 1980, and nine per cent below the 1981 market average.

Estimated gross value of Minnesota's 1982 mink pelt production was $15.9 million, a less than two per cent gain compared to the two year earlier gross of $15.6 million. Last year's gross was the lowest since 1977.

This year's Minnesota mink pelt production is expected to show another increase, but at a slower rate than the national industry, based on the number of female mink bred for this year's pelt crop. Minnesota ranchers retained 143,600 female breeding mink for the current crop, compared to 137,300 held two years ago.

Only Wisconsin and Utah exceeded Minnesota in 1982 mink production, with respective totals of 1,158,300 and 545,400 pelts. Far out in front of the rest of the nation, these three states accounted for more than 55 per cent of 1982 mink pelts harvested.

UNDERCARRIAGE for the caboose built by Dennis Kezar and Llewellyn (Gubby) Lane for the one-fourth scale Dan-D railroad is shown above. The wheels were turned from highly tempered stock in the Kezar workshop and the springs are automobile valve springs. Three-inch channel iron and one-inch slat iron were used in construction of the caboose and the frame was assembled using glued joints and screws. The realistic siding is wainscoting attached over the frame. Dennis' wife Betty did the painting and daughter Nancy the lettering. The car will seat at least eight youngsters comfortably.

LEC Lists Five Cases Handled On August 5

Law Enforcement Center report dated Friday, August 5, listed four cases investigated by Thief River Falls police department and one case investigated by Pennington county sheriff's department, by reporting date.

Cases handled by the Thief River Falls police department included the following:

July 21 — Harvey Tauer, Thief River Falls, was driving north in the alley by the law enforcement center when his vehicle was struck by a bicycle ridden by Scott Daniels, 11, of Thief River Falls. Daniels received a bump on the leg and his bicycle sustained about $20 damage. The car was not damaged.

July 30 — Alice Seaverson, Thief River Falls, was attempting to make a left turn onto Highway 59 from the K-Mart entrance when she collided with a southbound vehicle driven by Carol Radniecki, rural Glyndon. Damages were estimated at $400 to the Radniecki vehicle and $250 to the Seaverson vehicle.

August 3 — Jon Furuseth, Thief River Falls, reported that a bicycle, value $65, had been stolen from his back yard.

August 4 — Douglas Marquart, Glyndon, was driving north on Highway 32 and struck a guard rail when he swerved to avoid colliding with a vehicle pulling out of Greenwood Street. Damages to the vehicle owned by Northwest Leasing Corp. of Fargo, ND. were estimated at $4,000. Gary Wachala, Fargo ND., a passenger in Marquart's vehicle, received facial lacerations, and Marquart reported pain in his back. Kenneth L. Poole, rural Thief River Falls, who was driving the other vehicle, was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

August 1 — Pennington county sheriff's office investigated a report from Erickson Trucking Co., rural Thief River Falls, that approximately 100 gallons of gasoline had been siphoned from a truck parked at the St. Hilaire elevator on two different occasions. Loss was estimated at approximately $120.

Strong To Visit In China For Trade Mission

Dave Strong, general manager of Forsberg's, Inc., leaves Minneapolis today enroute to Tokyo, Hong Kong and eventually Xian in the People Republic of China as part of a Minnesota department of agriculture trade mission to that country.

Forsberg's, Inc., which manufactures seed cleaning equipment, was the only non-metropolitan based company among six selected from Minnesota to take part in the mission. The six firms will share two large booths at the international trade show in China's interior.

Other companies included in the mission will be Paco Seeds, Inc., Buckbee-Mears, Inc., Fischbein, Inc., Thermo King, Inc., and Weigh-Tronics, Inc.

Strong will be accompanied on his trip by Henry Pawlowski, director of international trade for the Minnesota department of agriculture. Forsberg's has shipped a new model gravity separator and de-stoner to China and also forwarded promotional materials to Hong Kong to be translated into Chinese.

Forsberg's equipment has been sold in China previously through international sales representatives. Strong will stop in the Hawaiian Islands on his return to check on equipment which is being used in the macadamia nut industry there.

Air Force Prior Service Program Opens

Air Force announced recently it has opened 200 prior service positions to fill manning requirements for fiscal year 1983, according to Major Bryan Paul, Commander, 3556 USAF Recruiting Squadron., at Minneapolis.

"Critically needed by the Air Force are former servicemen trained in aircraft maintenance, radio communication, weapons, and munitions specialties — along with air traffic controllers, weather specialist, computer programming, and pararescue and engineering assistant," Major Bryan Paul said. Recruiters may offer these critically needed specialists their former rank back if they have not been out of service more than four years."

"Prior — service people interested in rejoining the Air Force should call their local Air Force recruiter listed in the white pages or call collect 612-725-9374 to determine if their speciality is still on the critical skills list."

Wiseth Sworn As Postmaster August 16

Marilyn Wiseth, who joined the U.S. Postal Service as a post office clerk at Goodridge, in 1968 will be sworn in as postmaster at Goodridge on August 16.

She had been a clerk-carrier at Thief River Falls. Appointment was announced last week by Duane Bellefeuille, sectional center manager-postmaster at Fargo, ND.

Installation ceremonies are scheduled for 10 a.m. at the Goodridge post office. Bellefeuille will administer the oath of office.

Wiseth succeeds Ernest Swanson who retired on April 4. In the interim, Eldora Paradis headed the office as officer-in-charge. She will return to her regular position as distribution clerk at Oklee.

Wiseth is a 22 year resident of the Goodridge community where she is very active in local organizations. She and her husband, Kenneth, have four children, Terry, Tony, Diane Paulson, and Shelly Hyland and five grandchildren.

Northland Football

While most of us are busy trying to figure out a way to beat the heat, John Helley is directing his energy to the start of the 1983 Northland community college football season.

Starting his fourth year as head coach of the Northmen, Helley will welcome players to an organizational meeting Saturday, August 27, at 9 a.m. at the school. Equipment will be issued and practice drills start the following Monday, August 29. Early season Northland practices will include conditioning drills from 7 to 7:45 a.m., with the heavier work-outs planned from 2 to 4 p.m. each day.

Helley expects a squad of about 35 players, almost evenly divided between freshmen and sophomores, to be on hand for the start of practice. It's not a large group by physical size or numbers, he admits, but he feels he'll have quality student-athletes on hand, mostly area products.

"If the kids come in shape ready to go, I think we can have a fun year," noted Helley, who is anxious to get started.

Headlining the list of returning lettermen will be linebacker Eric Bondy of Thief River Falls, captain of the defensive team, and quarterback Bob Rockwood of Fargo, captain of the defensive team, and quarterback Bob Robkwood of Fargo, captain of the offensive squad. Helley expects those two players to have outstanding seasons, and has high hopes for offensive back Kevin Roehl of Nevis, an all-state selection in nine-man play who has indicated he'll play here.

Northland opens its 1983 season with a non-conference game Sunday night, September 11, at Bemidji State University, playing the Beavers' junior varsity in a 7:30 p.m. game.

Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) play begins for the Northmen Sat., Sept. 17, at Itasca, with the Northmen playing Sat., Sept. 24, at Vermilion before they make their home debut Sat., Oct. 1, vs. Hibbing.

Rest of the Northland schedule will have the Northmen playing Sat., Oct. 8, vs. Mesabi; Sat., Oct. 15, at Brainerd; Sat., Oct. 22, vs. Fergus Falls; and Sat., Oct. 29, at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC).

Helley, who recently completed work on his second master's degree — this one in physical education to go along with one in history, figures UMC will be the preseason favorite in the newly-designed MCCC Northwest Division this fall where the Northmen, Trojans, Brainerd and Fergus Falls will compete for a post-season playoff berth. That winner will be paired against the Northeast Division winner — Itasca, Vermilion, Hibbing or Mesabi — in first round state playoff action Sat., Nov. 3. Central and Southern Divisions will also be matched up that weekend, with those first round winners meeting in the state playoff championship game.

Under that new format, Golden Valley Lutheran will not appear on the schedules of the northern teams this year. The perennially strong Royals were paired with the Northwest and Northeast teams in the north half of the two-division format used in the past.

Northland was winless in seven starts last year.

Miscellaneous

+ Schedule for the Ninth District American Legion baseball series matching Class AA winner Moorhead Blues vs. Class A winner Breckenridge featured a 2-out-of-3 game series beginning Saturday, Aug. 6, at 2 p.m. at Breckenridge, followed by a Sunday afternoon game at Matson Field in Moorhead. A third game, if needed, was scheduled for Sunday night at Moorhead. Winner moves on to the 1983 American Legion state tournament in New Ulm beginning Friday.

+ Competing in a shortstop golf tournament Thursday at Roseau, Thief River Falls' Marge Corliss won the championship flight with an 83, was meet medalist with a 40 and earned a prize for the long drive of the day.

— Youth Baseball —

Exceptionally close finishes highlighted the final games of the 1983 Thief River Falls summer youth baseball program last week as playoff champions were crowned in the Major and Minor Leagues and the regular season title was decided in the 7-8-year-old instructional program.

Major League

Red Lake Falls' entry in the Thief River Falls Bambino Major League for 10-11-12-year-olds, the regular season pennant winner, added the playoff title to its 1983 collection Thursday by beating the defending champion Yankees in the finals.

Unbeaten Red Lake Falls lost to the once-beaten Yankees 8-7 in the finals of the five-team double-elimination playoffs to force a second title-deciding game Thursday, with Red Lake Falls emerging with an extra-inning 9-8 victory.

Major League Playoffs

First round — Blue Jays 5, A's 1. Second round — Red Lake Falls 8, Blue Jays 1; Yankees 12, Twins 11.

Third round — Red Lake Falls 12, Yankees 6.

Fourth round loser's bracket — A's 6, Twins 5.

Fifth round loser's bracket — A's 15, Blue Jays 4.

Sixth round loser's bracket — Yankees 15, A's 2.

Finals — Yankees 8, Red Lake Falls 7 (both teams one loss).

Championship — Red Lake Falls 9, Yankees 8.

Minor League — East

Blue Jays finished as both regular season and playoff champions in the Bambino Minor League Eastern Division for 10-11-year-olds.

Tie-breaking run crossed the plate with two out in the bottom of the sixth inning Thursday as the Blue Jays tripped the A's 6-5 in the four-team, double-elimination playoff finals.

Minor League-East Playoffs

First round — Blue Jays 10, Twins 4; A's 4, Yankees 2.

Second round — Blue Jays 5, A's 0.

Third round loser's bracket — Yankees 24, Twins 2.

Fourth round loser's bracket — A's 5, Yankees 3.

Finals — Blue Jays 6, A's 5.

Minor League — West

Two high-scoring games highlighted the playoff finals in the Bambino Minor League Western Division for 9-10-year-olds.

Once-beaten Tigers scored three times in the seventh inning to shade the unbeaten Royals 28-27 in the finals to force a second title-deciding game Thursday afternoon in the four-team, double-elimination playoffs, with the Royals staging the rally this time, scoring 11 runs in the seventh for a 26-25 victory and the title.

Minor League-West Playoffs

First round — Orioles 17, Tigers 10; Royals 19, Red Sox 18.

Second round — Royals 25, Orioles 5.

Third round loser's bracket — Tigers 33, Red Sox 28.

Fourth round loser's bracket — Tigers 25, Orioles 15.

Finals — Tigers 28, Royals 27 (both teams have one loss).

Championship — Royals 26, Tigers 25.

7-8-Year-Olds

Final regular season games were played Wednesday in the 7-8-year-old program and a first place tie developed between the Phillies and Giants, both finishing 8-4.

Phillies beat the Reds 11-6 in their last start, with the Giants gaining a title tie in more dramatic fashion with a game-ending double play for a 13-12 come-from-behind victory over the Dodgers in a league where outs are counted as the score instead of runs.

Slow Pitch Softball Teams Eye District 7

Seven Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball teams have clinched District 7 tournament berths, with three other positions still up for grabs during the final days of regular season league play this week.

American Legion-Miller Beer-TG Sporting Goods is Thief River Falls' only ASA-sanctioned Class B team and the Division I co-leaders will appear in the Class B District 7 tournament at Crookston Sun., Aug. 14.

There are five available berths for Thief River Falls teams in the Class C District 7 tournament August 13-14 at Crookston, with E.T.'s Bees, Pepsi Bottling Co. and Farmer's Co-op Elevator already assured berths. Two remaining spots will go to either the Grygla Merchants, Nelson Implement or St. Hilaire Bears.

Class D District 7 tournament will be played August 20-21 at Crookston, with Berkner Agency-Best Western Inn, Stone's Mobile Radio and Wennberg's Welding owning three of the four Thief River Falls berths. The fourth will go to either Nichol's Beauty Nook-Paint & Glass Supply or The Blacksheep, according to Dennis Bendickson, Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association president.

Dates Are Set For Goodridge, Grygla Football

Equipment will be issued Thursday, August 11, to members of the Goodridge-Grygla cooperative high school football team.

Equipment will be issued at Grygla from 6:30 to 8 a.m. and at Goodridge from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Players are reminded to bring their signed parent's slip on Thursday.

— Men's Slow Pitch —

Regular season schedule comes to a close this week in the Thief River Falls men's slow pitch softball association.

Post-season play will include the Division III playoffs on Sun., Aug. 14; the Division I playoffs on Sun., Aug. 21; and the Division II playoffs the week of Aug. 15-19.

League line-up was reduced with the expulsion of The Law, a Division III team that surpassed the league's allowable number of forfeits. Their change in status prompted several alterations in the league records since the five wins recorded by The Law were reversed into wins for The Blacksheep, TRF Aggies, Fleet Supply and Walseth Construction (2).

Snowmobiles To Run On Water

Quadna Mountain resort in Hill City will be the site of the snowmobile watercross races on Hill Lake later this month.

Qualifying runs will start Saturday, August 20, at 11 a.m. and continue through to the championship runs on Sunday, August 21.

"All the racers need to do will be to stay above water for 600 feet on Saturday to qualify", says Sam Thompson, Quadna's manager.

For additional information concerning the snowmobile watercross, call Thompson at 218-697-2324.

— Women's Slow Pitch —

Thief River Falls women's slow pitch softball league completed its 1983 regular season schedule Wednesday, with post-season divisional playoffs planned for Sunday, August 7, beginning at 9 a.m.

In final regular season action, Cindy Bruggeman hit two grand slam home runs in the first two innings to power Roseau Transport over American Legion 12-7.

Doreen Larson hit three home runs as Northern Employers Agency handled Pizza Hut 17-4.

A grand slam home run by Kelly Storhaug and a homer by Coco Stokke carried Hardware Hank past the Ridge Runners 15-10.

Al & Wally's Country Market edged Hutchinson Transfer 10-9 as Arlene Walseth homered and Chickee Kofstad tripled, while the Schmidt Stealers beat Hutchinson Transfer 7-4 and the Health Hustlers defeated Al & Wally's Country Market 11-1.

Final league standings are minus three scores: Mon., July 18 — Pizza Hut vs. Health Hustlers; Mon., Aug. 1 — American Legion vs. Honeybees; and Wed., Aug. 3 — Pizza Hut vs. Ridge Runners.

Thurs., Aug. 11 — United Satellite Systems vs. Popplers, 9 p.m.

Fri., Aug. 12 — Popplers vs. Melvies, 7:30 p.m.; United Satellite Systems vs. Melvies, 9 p.m.

In men's fast pitch softball action Wednesday night, Schmidts-Coke came from behind to upend Melvies 12-8.

Melvies had broken a 5-5 tie with three runs in the bottom of the fourth and the two teams went to an extra inning before the winners pushed four runs across in the top of the eighth. Paul Walker had four hits, inclding his seventh homer and six RBI's for the winners.

Second game Wednesday found Neibauer's getting revenge from the only team to beat them as they doubled Popplers 4-2. Bruce Johnson had two of Neibauer's six hits and scored a pair of runs.

Thursday night, United Satellite Systems (USS) took both ends of a doubleheader from Melvies, 10-1 and 8-1, as Tony Johnson tossed a pair of three-hitters. Mitch Semanko had three hits to pace a 13-hit attack for the winners in game two.

In the only action Friday night, Schmidts-Coke used the long ball in thrashing Popplers 10-2.

Walker's eighth homer, a two run shot in the first inning for a 7-0 bulge. Popplers got their runs on Jeff Hendrickson's two-run homer in the top of the third. Winning pitcher Mark DuChamp fanned eight and held Popplers to two hits.

Wednesday night, Schmidts-Coke takes on Neibauers in an important doubleheader. The two teams also have a make-up game from June 15 and Neibauer's has a rainout with Popplers that will be played if needed.

T-Shirt History, Future Studied

by Ina Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Services

Public speaking is a lot easier than it used to be. Today, you don't even need a soap box. If you want to get something off your chest — simply put a T-shirt on it. Thanks to this ubiquitous topper, you can now wear more than your heart on your sleeve.

In more circumspect eras of American life, one's clothing — from high-button shoes to button-down collars — was not in the habit of announcing one's private feelings to the world. Today, Americans wear T-shirts to identify themselves, to trumpet political preferences, to boast cultural connections and to make social statements. Quite often, they wear T-shirts just for laughs and to share their sense of humor with the passing parade.

T-shirts are a serious business as well. According to Carl Piazza, editor of Impressions, the trade magazine for the imprinted sportswear industry, American T-shirt sales in recent years have totaled $3-$5 billion annually.

T-shirt is the casual-wear garment of choice for millions of Americans of all ages, sizes, shapes and descriptions. Imprinted T-shirts of every conceivable design decorate the American landscape. People, including historians at the Smithsonian Institution, collect them. It's hard to imagine that this sartorial saga started with a plain-as-peeled-potatoes undershirt.

In the beginning, in fact, it was for fatigue duties, such as peeling potatoes, that military men unofficially wore this useful garment. American soldiers were sent to France in 1917 to fight World War I in long-sleeved wool undershirts. However, a number of doughboys came home in the light knit-cotton undershirts worn by French soldiers. American manufacturers eventually began producing quantities of sleeveless, knit-cotton undershirts and some short-sleeved ones in the "T" shape that gave the T-shirt its name.

The "T" was the shape of things to come, but the favorite of men in the '30s was the sleeveless "athletic" shirt, originally adapted from the top part of the tank swimsuit worn at the turn of the century. That is, it was the favorite until Clark Gable took off his shirt in the 1934 Academy Award-winning film, "It Happened One Night," and revealed an undershirtless chest. Several years had to pass before undershirt sales in America recovered.

The T-shirt was truly launched by World War II when the U.S. Navy issued it as regulation underwear. Sailors, who called it a skivvy shirt, welcomed the comfort and practicality of a garment they could work in, sleep in and use to polish any offensively dull brass that might come under a superior's steely gaze. After the war, American men stayed faithful to T-shirts — as underwear — until, once again, a screen idol presented them with new possibilities.

Marlon Brando brought the T-shirt out of underwear drawers and put it into the closets of millions of Americans. As Stanley Kowalski in the 1951 film, "A Streetcar Named Desire," Brando's wardrobe was simple but effective — a T-shirt that showed off his muscles and a torn T-shirt that showed off his muscles even better. James Dean and Elvis Presley followed suit with basic-white T-shirts that dazzled their fans.

Glorious technicolor drawned on the basic-white T-shirt in the late 1950s. Southern California's drag-racing culture took great pride in airbrush-decorated cars done in flames, pinstripes and exotic lettering, and a number of these automobile artists turned their airbrushes to the hot rodders' T-shirts as well. Bold, colorful and often outrageous, these sprayed-paint airbrush designs were the prototypes for many of today's heat transfer and screen printed T-shirt designs.

The imprinted T-shirt got an international boost when American actress Jean Seberg sported a trail-blazing T-shirt touting the English-language newspaper published in Paris. When she wore her T-shirt with the words "Herald Tribune" headlined across the front in the 1961 French film, "Breathless," the international set breathlessly snapped up the few that had ben printed. Clearly, the T-shirt was mere underwear no longer.

Underwear became outerwear, with a vengeance. In the 1960s, millions of Americans fought for civil rights and against the Vietnamese War on college campuses and on city streets. These street soldiers had their own uniform. "In the 1960s, T-shirts and jeans were the uniform of protest," Barbara Dickstein of the Smithsonian Institution says. As Dickstein, a museum specialist in 20th-century costume, observes, "We all wear clothing as a kind of uniform — a way of identifying ourselves to the rest of the world."

Edith Mayo, a political history curator in the Smithsonian's Museum of American History agrees and adds, "After the mid-'60s, T-shirts became a major form of political communication and expression — a political street medium much like the torch-light parades of the 19th century."

Imprinted T-shirts are wearable history — cloth chronicles of the recent past. Americans all over the country are not only wearing T-shirts but also collecting them. Some people attend auctions and acquire oldies such as an "OZ" T-shirt from the 1939 movie, "The Wizard of Oz." And combing thrift shops, antique clothing stores and flea markets sometimes results in a find like on collector's 1948 Roy Rogers T-shirt. Other people rely on historical intuition and save gems, such as an Elvis Presley T-shirt featuring his greatest hits.

If you want to collect something, T-shirts are relatively inexpensive, easy to store — and you can wear your collection. Unless you're a collector at the Smithsonian. There, Dickstein, Mayo and Ellen Roney Hughes all collect T-shirts, but these artifacts are treated with the same meticulous care given to the Smithsonian's 100 million other objects.

Hughes, a museum specialist in the Museum of American History's division of community life, has a favorite object in the History of American Sports collection — the T-shirt of Karren Stead. In 1975, when Stead was 11, she became the first girl to win the All-American Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio. It wasn't until 1971 that girls were officially permitted to race in the Soap Box Derby, although Alice Johnson, her long golden hair hidden beneath her cap, came in second in the very first Soap Box Derby, held in Dayton, Ohio, in 1933. "This T-shirt is a symbol of the growing achievement of women in American sports in the '70s," Hughes says proudly.

Mayo collects T-shirts and other artifacts to chronicle American political and social issues, women's history and political campaigns. The earliest T-shirt in the Smithsonian is the "DEW-it-with DEWEY" shirt created for the 1948 Truman-Dewey presidential campaign. It is a child's size, as is a 1952 "IKE" T-shirt and a 1960 "Kennedy for President" T-shirt imprinted with Kennedy's PT 109. There's another from 1964 in a child's lettering saying, "We'd Vote for LBJ."

"Political gimmics — buttons, household items, hankies, women's jewely, children's toys — go back to the mid-19th century," Mayo points out. "Even before the vote for women, partisanship was a family affair." Mayo attends political rallies and protest gatherings to collect the Smithsonian's T-shirts. Would she ask for the T-shirt off a participant's back? "I have done that once or twice," she admits.

Sense of social history guides Barbara Dickstein in collecting representative T-shirts like the early Rolling Stones concert shirt in the collection. "We don't collect fashion for its own sake," she says. "We collect what's in people's closets — clothing that is worn in everyday life in given periods of time. Today, just about everybody, at one time or another, wears T-shirts.

Just about everybody, it seems, has a good reason to wear T-shirts. Some folks wear fabric leaflets like the "Save the Baby Seals" T-shirt to communicate belief in a cause. Other people wear their "Picassos" and similar wash-and-wear masterpieces to express their love of culture. Tourists who have gone anywhere at all wear their "I Love Anywhere" T-shirts as a happy memory. Stay-at-homes wear their "I'm Not a Tourist, I Live Here" shirts as defensive armor. The comedian, Chevy Chase, wears his "I'm Chevy Chase and you're not" T-shirt so you'll know who he is — and who you are.

Is the end of the T-shirt tale in sight? "The only constant in the history of clothing is change," Barbara Dickstein observes. "The eye becomes saturated and moves on." In the meantime, the T-shirt continues to reach new heights. The Challenger astronauts wore their Class of '78 "TFNG (Thirty-Five New Guys) We Deliver" T-shirts in outer space. And President Reagan may or may not wear his T-shirt with the presidential seal in the White House. As for the rest of America, it's still Ts for 200 million, as the great American T-party rolls along.

Proposes Grant For Non-Point Pollution Aid

Legislation proposed by Senator Dave Durenberger is part of a new clean water program approved by a Senate environment and public works subcommittee.

The program is a $150 million federal grant to states for fighting so-called "non-point source" pollution — water pollution from sources such as mining, timber cutting, agricultural or urban runoff, which cannot be traced to a single point of origin. Studies indicate that half or more of the nation's water pollution is of this type.

The environmental pollution subcommittee, of which Durenberger is a member, designed the program as part of the clean water act amendments of 1983 (S. 431), which would reauthorize the 11-year-old clean water act. The amendments are expected to go to the full committee next week.

The new grant would pay up to 50 per cent of a state's non-point source water pollution program. Under the legislation, each state would have to identify bodies of water that do not meet water quality standards because of non-point source pollution, and to identify the types of human activities that cause the pollution. States would then have to specify the "level of management practices practicable" to adequately control the pollution, and draw up a plan requiring those practices to be in place within four years.

Durenberger's provisions include the requirement to identify categories and subcategories of human activities causing non-point source pollution, and the requirement to specify needed management practices and set a compliance deadline.

Durenberger said the "management practices" requirement "is not intended to mandate the combination of all available and economically achievable practices which would do the best job in preventing non-point source pollution. Rather, it is our intention to bring those who are not at the norm or average good practice up to that level considered typical good management for that activity."

Another Durenberger provision prohibits federal assistance to any person or government to engage in an activity inconsistent with a state's non-point source pollution plan.

"It is entirely reasonable to require that federal agencies respect state and local law and regulation," Durenberger said, adding that the preservation of state authority is vital to the new program.

"The states will identify the problem areas, design the plans and implement them. Although structuring the program this way will lead to a great deal of variability across the nation, I think it is the only way that we can approach a problem so complicated at this time," Durenberger said. However, he added that states would be expected to rely heavily upon local officials in designing their plans.

"We will never make adequate progress in the area of water quality until we take a serious stance on non-point source pollution. Our approach to date has been ineffectual — planning, but no action. We now know a great deal about this type of pollution and how to control it, and it's time to put that knowledge to work," he said.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

In 1981, 16,794 businesses went bankrupt. In 1982, that figure grew to 25,346. Taking those numbers by themselves, the nightly news portrayed a gloomy picture of the American economy: dying small businesses closing their doors and disappearing. The death of entrepreneurship.

But the bankruptcies did not occur in a vacuum. There are two other numbers you may not have seen reported — the number of new business incorporations. In 1981, 581,242 new businesses incorporated. In 1982, 566,942 new companies sprang to life.

The past two years have not seen the death or decay of American entrepreneurship, but rather a vigorous revival — thanks in large part to the reductions in the capital gains tax of 1978 and the cuts in personal income taxes in 1981.

Starting a new business is hard work and risky. The marketplace is a strict taskmaster. Consumers are fickle. Many new firms fail. Indeed, surveys of successful entrepreneurs show that they have often failed more than once before they found the right good or service at the right price.

The genius of America is not that we are all guaranteed to succeed at whatever we undertake — for we have no such promise, there is no midas touch. The genius of America, of the free market, is that we are all free. Free to make our own choices. Free to succeed. Free to fail. Free to try again.

With that freedom comes the responsibility for our decisions — and the risk of making mistakes. Such risks can be frightening. In our personal lives we make decisions with great consequences. Where to live. Who to marry. Wrong decisions can be costly.

In business, entrepreneurs must decide where to locate. What product or service to provide. At what cost. Employees face the choice of what business to work with — there are more than 11 million businesses in America to choose from.

All these decisions carry with them the risks of choosing incorrectly. And governments around the world have grown large and powerful by offering to reduce those risks at the cost of human freedom. Oh, it would be possible to have prevented the 25,000 bankruptcies in 1982. All the government would have to do is tax the successful new firms enough to subsidize the losses and presto — no bankruptcies. (But who then would spend the time and effort to start a new shop or factory?)

In France, the nationalized industries are free from risk. They will never go bankrupt. The taxpayers of France are shelling out almost $8 billion this year to eliminate this risk. Nor do industries go belly-up in the Soviet Union. But on the other hand, when was the last time you heard about a technological breakthrough or new product from behind the Iron Curtain?

Certainly we can reduce — and sometimes eliminate — risk, but always at the cost of freedom and innovation. (One can always protect oneself against an automobile accident by staying in bed.)

Science has learned to cure diseases, create energy from the atom, and splice genes through trial and error. The American economy has become the greatest in the world — producing one quarter of the goods and services in the entire world — by allowing individual Americans the freedom to try and make their dreams a reality. Sometimes succeeding, sometimes failing, but on balance, moving us forward by creating new jobs and wealth.

Yes, there are risks as well as rewards in the vibrant and dynamic free market system. Not every wildcatter strikes oil. But as we look at the nations around the globe, and peek behind the Iron Curtain, we must remember that the path of trading away our freedoms for the promise of security entails great risks of its own.

Yuri Andropov, leader of the Soviet Union, recently stated, "Communists are convinced that the future belongs to socialism. Such is the march of history."

Mr. Andropov is wrong. If a member of the Soviet Politburo could work up the courage to tell Andropov what is happening in the world he would realize that around the globe socialism is in full retreat. It has failed as an economic system. It is intellectually bankrupt. And, moreover, the people know this.

In the democratic nations of the West, election after election has demonstrated the popular support for the free enterprise system and the rejection of state controlled economies.

In 1979, Margaret Thatcher won a landslide victory over the Labour Party which had been moving swiftly toward a socialist world view. Britain's rejection of socialism was reconfirmed in the June 9 landslide for Thatcher and her free market Tory Party.

In Germany, Helmut Kohl's coalition tossed out the increasingly left wing Social Democrat party which had ruled West Germany for more than 10 years.

In Norway, Denmark and Japan the parties that supported lower taxes, less regulation and growth oriented free market policies have been elected or reelected. And in France, the people have taken to the streets in violent demonstrations when the socialist government they elected actually imposed socialism on the French people.

In those nations controlled by the Communists (who do not allow elections), the people continue to vote with their feet. Despite the Berlin Wall, Eastern Europeans continue to flee westward to the capitalist nations. Whenever Fidel Castro opens the smallest crack in the door from his island prison, thousands risk their lives leaving everything behind to flee.

Vietnam offers another example. Throughout that nation's history it has suffered occupation by the Chinese, the Japanese, a long and brutal war during the 1960s, and natural disasters such as typhoons and famine. And yet, it was only the imposition of socialism which caused the mass exodus of boat people who continue to flee socialism. How bad is socialism? The Vietnamese give us the answer. It is worst than occupation, civil war or famine.

Even in the Communist nations that continue to profess belief in socialism, economic necessity is bringing free market reforms. China and the Soviet Union are allowing small plots of private farmland — which invariably outperform the larger collective farms. Their economic journals discuss incentives and yes, even profits. Hungary is leading the way in "creeping capitalism." Ideology aside, the people must eat.

The economic failure of socialism can no longer be hidden. The people of Hong Kong, a free market haven on the Chinese coast, enjoy a standard of living 14 times greater than the mainland which languishes under socialist planning. Taiwan's per capita GNP is eight times that of its socialist counterpart. And in Europe, the Western capitalist nations enjoy a much higher standard of living — to say nothing of the basic freedoms we take granted — than their Eastern European neighbors. And due to boundary crossing television and radio, the East Germans, the Poles and the Czechs know it.

Karl Marx was right when he said capitalism was the greatest engine of progress that the world had ever known. He was wrong when he predicted that people would willingly trade that progress for the economic stagnation and human misery that is socialism.

Bad Incentives Lead To Bad Decisions

Years ago, the advocates of the welfare state used to argue that the government could perform many tasks more efficiently than the private sector. They spoke of economies of scale and the superiority of planning.

Today, few would seriously contend that government — at the federal, state or local level — can compete with private enterprise for efficiency. The evidence is too overwhelming in the other direction.

More and more cities are contracting our services to the private sector and discovering that the costs of garbage collection, road repairs, and even fire protection can be cut in half — or more. Other contrasts between government and the private sector are equally stark. Compare the privately owned United States telephone service with its state-owned counterparts in any nation. Or privately owned farms in America with the miserably inefficient Soviet collective farms.

But we don't need to take out our pocket calculators to see the greater efficiency of the free market. Simply take a walk through city hall or call a government agency for information. Contrast that with a private business. Case closed.

Okay, so even liberals admit that government is inefficient. The interesting questions here is why.

I submit that it is a question of incentives.

The incentives for business are both carrot and stick. If one is innovative and finds new and less expensive ways to provide the public what it wants, the financial rewards can be great. The penalty for excessive costs, sloppy quality or an inability to adapt to a changing market is early retirement via bankruptcy court.

The incentives in government, however, are perverse. They reward failure, empire building and excessive spending.

A government employee's status, salary and pension, are based, not on his or her efficiency, but on the number of employees he supervises and the amount of taxpayers' money that passes through his office. Build your empire, get a raise. (If a private businessman hired more employees than necessary, the extra cost would price him out of the market.)

Incentives in government work also actively reward failure.

Let's say you have just been put in charge of an agency designed to eliminate poverty. You hire employees. Billions are spent. Yet, if poverty increases, this becomes an argument for hiring more bureaucrats and spending even more of the taxpayers' money. The program has failed —you are promoted.

On the other hand, if you did eliminate poverty, you and your friends would be out of a job. (So now you know one of the many reasons why the poverty standard is continuously raised.)

Goverment "incentives" also encourage wasteful spending. If your agency spends its annual budget in three months, the solution is clear: You need a larger budget. If your neighbor who produces widgets in the private sector did this he would be out of work. Also, the stories are legion of bureaucrats "unloading" their budget in the final days of the fiscal year so that next year's budget won't be cut!

The goverment simply lacks the discipline of the marketplace. Everyday businesses that fail to provide what consumers want — at a price they will pay — go out of business. Yet, when was the last time we heard of a government agency closing its doors?

On the individual level, employees in the private sector who do not perform are fired. Goverment employees, however, are virtually impossible to fire.

Because of these structural disincentives, those services that could be performed by the private sector should be contracted out, or privatized. Service would improve, costs would fall and the tax burden could be reduced. The time to start is now. The government simply isn't getting any more efficient with the passing days.

LEGAL NOTICE

Aug. 1, 8, 1983
Notice of Hearing

TO ALL PERSONS INTERESTED IN JUDICIAL DITCH NO. 23 IN MARSHALL COUNTY, MN.:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE, that the Marshall County Board of Commissioners has filed with the County Auditor a resolution stating that it would be desirable or advantageous in the construction or maintenance of Excel Township, to make a minor alteration or change in a public drainage ditch to wit:

Judicial Ditch No. 23, that ditch system directly affecting said highway and further stating that the alteration or change would not affect the efficiency or functioning of said ditch system and portion of Judicial Ditch No. 23 proposed to be changed involves relocating and reconstructing approximately 800 feet of the ditch along the west side of Excel Township Road No. 463, located between Sections No. 3 and 4, T154N, R43W. An existing centerline culvert under said road will be salvaged and relocated as a field entrance pipe to Lot 5, Section 4, T154N, R43W. All as shown with particularity by the plans of such proposed changes which are on file with the Marshall County Auditor.

YOU WILL PLEASE TAKE NOTE FURTHER, that said resolution will be heard by the Marshall County Board in the Commissioners' room at the Courthouse in Warren, MN on the 16th day of August, 1983 at four o'clock P.M. (4:00 P.M.) at which time all persons interested may appear and be heard and present arguments for or against said resolution.

Boat Touring Popular As Vacation Idea

Boat touring in Minnesota is as varied as the waters in which these licensed boats traverse. The tours operate on regular schedules from early May until late October with the greater number of trips scheduled for June, July, August and early September. All of them are narrated and reflect the folklore and nostalgia of the area.

The cruises can be an hour or two in length or a three to five-night trip. The boat trips listed here are arranged alphabetically from the city of origin.

The Duluth harbor cruise on the Vista King or Queen begins at excursion dock near the Duluth arena-auditorium. The boats cruise under the aerial lift bridge into Lake Superior (weather permitting) with the return via the ship canal into St. Louis bay with its panorama of foreign and domestic deep-water freighters.

For an unusual trip, take the Kettle Falls boat trip in Voyageurs national park from Woodenfrog campground or Kabetogama Lake visitor center to Kettle Falls on the Rainy river. This six hour trip leaves at 2 p.m. on Sundays and 9 a.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays. At Kettle Falls there is an hour and a half stop for eating or hiking. With a less determined destination, the park also offers Bald Eagle search boat trips and blueberry safaris at 9 a.m. on Sunday and 2 p.m. Wednesdays and Saturdays. For reservations call (218) 875-2181.

At the Mississippi river dock in downtown Red Wing, the excursion sternwheeler City of Red Wing takes the main channel of the river. The City of Red Wing features Friday and Saturdy evening dinner-dance cruises in addition to the regular two hour trips.

From St. Paul's historic riverfront you can board the Jonathan Padelford or the Josiah Snelling for a two hour trip up and back from old Fort Snelling or take four hour trips through lock No. 1. The Padelford and Snelling also have Friday and Saturday night dinner-dancing cruises as well as other specials. The Viking Explorer also leaves the same Harriet Island dock and takes trips between St. Paul and Dubuque. It has 20 staterooms, lounge and dining room. Trips are for three or five-night duration.

At Taylors Falls near Interstate park or at the Trading Post near the Minnesota-Wisconsin bridge, board either the Taylors Falls Queen or the Kathy M for a trip up and down the St. Croix river with its spectacular stone cliffs and glacial kettles or "pot holes".

For more information about any of these boat cruises, contact the Minnesota Travel Information Center, 240 Bremer Building, 419 North Robert St., St. Paul, MN 55101. Outside the metro area call 1-800-652-9747.

Minnesota travel information is a service of the Minnesota tourism division and is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

UHT Milk Is Stable Without Refrigeration

Ultra high temperature (UHT) milk is simply natural milk which has been processed and packaged in a manner that prevents it from turning sour-even without refrigeration. Raw milk will sour in hours and, at best, in a few days if not refrigerated.

Pasteurized milk is milk which has been heat-treated at temperatures high enough to destroy pathogenic microorganisms and render it safe in a public health sense. Pasteurized milk will also keep longer than raw milk.

Ultra pasteurized milk has been heat-treated to destroy essentially all of the microorganisms, but has generally not been packaged in a sterile, hermetically sealed container.

Ultra high temperature (UHT) milk receives roughly the same heat treatment as ultra pasteurized milk, but is packaged under aseptic conditions in sterile packages, which mean it will not spoil in food distribution channels even without refrigeration.

All of these milks will taste a little different. Pasteurized milk has a heated flavor, as compared to its raw counterpart. Ultra pasteurized milk has a little more heated flavor than its pasteurized counterpart due to its higher temperature processing treatment. UHT milk, by the same comparison, has about the same flavor as ultra pasteurized milk because its heat treatment is roughly the same. The real difference between the two is UHT milk is packaged aseptically in sterile, hermetically sealed containers.

Pasteurized milk is typically heated to at least 160 degrees and held for a minimum of 16 seconds, after which it is cooled and bottled. By contrast, UHT milk is heated to about 280 degrees for a few seconds. Pasteurization renders the product safe. UHT treatment renders it both safe and sterile.

UHT milk is produced by the use of some rather sophisticated processing and packaging equipment, along with automatic controls for total product safety. It yields a finished product that is completely sterile. The milk is protected from light and air and the penetration of microorganisms and is, therefore, shelf-stable without refrigeration and will maintain this quality for up to 90 days.

While this process is new in this country, we would hasten to add it has been a commercial process in many parts of the world for some time. Its uniqueness is really a combination of modern, high-speed processing equipment plus an aseptic packaging system and a final package composition that includes paper, polyethylene and aluminum foil. The net result is a shelf stable milk.

The application of this process to the Grade A raw milk which we have in this country is also new. It is exactly the same kind of raw milk that is used in its pasteurized milk counterpart. It is homogenized with only vitamins added and contains no preservatives of any kind.

In 1915, the LaFollette Seaman's Act was approved, regulating conditions of employment for maritime workers, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Important Events in American Labor History."

Ag Census Data Provides Answers In MN

Census of agriculture data find a vast variety of uses in Minnesota, ranging from problem solving for researchers to statistics for full fledged annual publications, according to the commerce department's census bureau.

As one professional put it "Census data provide the answers for a lot of calls we get on agriculture."

Report forms for the 1982 census of agriculture have gone out and are being returned by farmers and ranchers throughout the nation. But completed report forms from all farmers are needed to ensure an accurate picture of agriculture. Census officials urge Minnesota farmers who have not returned their forms to do so, emphasizing that prompt return of the forms will speed availability of needed county data.

Discussing the use of census of agriculture data in Minnesota, George Howse, assistant in charge of the statistical reporting service (SRS) in St. Paul, says "it is useful in answering a lot of calls we get asking for detailed information on agriculture."

"We frequently are asked the number of farms by counties, the number of corporate farms and for data on crops which the SRS does not estimate. We answer these questions from census data." Howse adds that "every five years SRS surveys are reviewed, using the census of agriculture as benchmarks, leveling out figures on which we do not have good support."

In addition, census data are used in two University of Minnesota publications. "Minnesota Rural Real Estate," published for a number of years annually by Dr. Philip Raup, professor of agricultural economics, gives Minnesota land values by county, and is considered authoritative.

University agricultural experiment station bulletin entitled "A Technology Assessment of Commercial Corn in the United States," gives acreage, yield and production input for the crop. It is published by Dr. W. Burt Sundquist, University agricultural economist.

University librarian, Louise Letnes, says census data are used heavily by both graduate students and faculty members, frequently for determining by county, the number of farms and livestock inventories. The census is one of the very few places where such information can be found, she adds.

Statistics from the 1978 census show the 102,963 farms in Minnesota are a major economic force in the state, with agricultural product sales reaching a total of $4.5 billion for a per farm average of $44,118. Ten Minnesota counties had gross agricultural sales of more than $100 million or more each. They are Faribault, Freeborn, Jackson, Kandiyohi, Martin, Otter Tail, Polk, Redwood, Renville and Stearns.

As an indication of contributions Minnesota farms made to commerce in the state, their operators reported selected farm production expenses of $2.1 billion during the census year. The greatest amount, $501.6 million, was paid out for livestock and poultry feed.

Minnesota ranchers and farmers engaged in the production of crops or livestock during 1982 who failed to receive a census report form may request one from the Bureau of the Census, Agriculture Division, 1201 East Tenth Street, Jeffersonville, Indiana 47133. Census officials state that if complete records are not available, respondents may make reasonable estimates.

Law protects the privacy of information from individual report forms, and the information cannot be used for taxation, investigation or regulation.

Wildlife Group Puts Species On Extinct List

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) has proposed that the Sampson's Pearly Mussel be removed from the endangered species list in the face of overwhelming evidence that the creature no longer exists.

Originally identified and described in 1861, the mussel inhabited the lower reaches of the Wabash river in Illinois and Indiana, and possibly parts of the Ohio river in the general vicinity of the Wabash and Ohio confluence. It was placed on the U.S. list of Endangered and Threatened species on June 14, 1976.

Extensive searches have failed to turn up a living specimen during the past 50 years, leading to the conclusion that it is extinct.

Pearly mussel apparently occupied only gravel and sand bars, which were destroyed over the years by siltation that resulted from dredging and the construction of dams. A decline in water quality as a result of an inflow of chemicals from industry and agriculture is also believed to have contributed to the mussel's extinction.

As required by the Endangered and Threatened Species Act of 1968, the Secretary of Interior conducts a review of each listed species every five years to determine if any species should be removed or have a change in status.

If the Sampson's Pearly Mussel is removed from the list, federal agencies will no longer be required to consult with the Secretary of Interior to insure that the animal is protected from any kind of construction, dredging, etc. Also, federal restrictions on taking the species will no longer apply.

Comments regarding the proposal to remove this mussel from the Endangered and Threatened list can be forwarded to the Regional Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Federal Building, Fort Snelling, Twin Cities, MN 55111.

Over 30 female former World War II prisoners of war were honored in Washington in April for their valiant service helping the wounded during the battles of Bataan and Corregidor. The group attended various ceremonies, including a meeting with President Reagan, during their visit.

DNR Hotline Has Questions

days?

Fish are being killed by elevated water temperatures brought on by the prolonged hot spell during the latter part of July. Most of the dead fish observed in Bemidji area lakes are tullibee. This is not a recent phenomenon. Forty years ago, noted Minnesota Ichthyologists Samuel Eddy and Thaddeus Surber wrote in their book, "Minnesota Fishes", that "all the various members of this genus are cold-water fishes and do not thrive in warm water. Evidence of this fact is seen in many warm-water lakes like Mille Lacs, where tullibee does not continue to exist, but where thousands die each year during August." Stan Daley, Regional Fisheries Supervisor.
